EMBATTLED EMPIRE: THE PATRICK STORY

People Or The Product?

By DAVID DIETZ
(First of four articles)

The capitalist mind throbs at the thought of it all:

From America to South Africa and Australia, an empire of 206 corporations worth millions, dealing in everything from motivational training to cosmetics to engine additives.

Salaries of $50,000, $150,000, $300,000 and more. Money, money, money.

Up, up and away goes the world of William Penn Patrick, a cigar-smoking, poker-playing former school teacher and gubernatorial candidate who watches over his empire from a huge office in San Rafael.

Working largely out of Marin County, the 42-year-old Patrick has made his fortune virtually overnight, utilizing a set of motivational principles and a business scheme that he says can make a poor man a rich one within mere weeks and months.

It has done just that to some. A woman in Washington D.C., came out of the black ghetto, signed up with Patrick's first major company, Holiday Magic cosmetics, and today earns about $250,000 a year. Success stories told by the Patrick conglomerate are legion — former salesmen, school teachers and nurses earn $100,000 in a month, win a year's lease to a Cadillac limousine and build luxurious oceanside mansions.

How do they do it? What's Patrick's superplan? Does everybody make that kind of money?

That's where the hitch comes in: state governments, federal authorities and Better Business Bureaus have been asking such questions for years, and not liking the answers. Some of the claims of affluence may be true, officials say, but the trouble is, how the money is made and who gets stepped on in the rush to success.

The Patrick technique is "pyramid" investing, concentrating more on attracting people into the organization than on sale of the product. It's used not only by Patrick but in organizations run by two Holiday Magic alumni, flamboyant Glenn W. Turner of Koscot, a cosmetic firm, and the "Dare to be Great" motivational course and William E. Bailey of Bestline home care products.

Although dealing their wares door-to-door, the pyramid operators work markedly differently from "direct selling" groups such as Avon and Tupperware and "multilevel" distributors such as Amway in the home care products line. These stress advancement through sales rather than through recruiting other salesmen, a practice sometimes called "headhunting."

Attorneys general in most of the 50 states have taken legal action against the pyramid operators, charging them variously with conducting a lottery, an endless chain scheme or with violating franchise and security regulations. Amid claims by Patrict that all businesses have "faint hearts" and disgruntled drop-outs, the officials cite case after case of investors losing large sums of money, even life savings, in the pyramid schemes.

The reasons, authorities say: investors find the marketing area already saturated with other investors; lack of product advertisement; failure to deliver promised goods; too highly priced merchandise.

Patrick, calling his plan "free enterprise personified," has at least held his own in battles with several of the states, but the Federal Trade Commission is attacking as well. The FTC is in the midst of a nationwide series of hearings on Patrick's Holiday Magic.

And the Securities and Exchange Commission has moved to take jurisdiction over pyramid operations.

Patrick, who in one year, 1966, received $905,000 in salary and loans from Holiday Magic, says his organization is run with integrity and "doing business as any business should under the American free enterprise system."

Insisting he is the victim of jealous business competitors and over ambitious governmental agencies riding the wave of consumerism, Patrick said the other day in his lavish office at 616 Canal Street: "When they attack us, they've got a tiger by the tail."

A twist on the old chain letter scheme, pyramid marketing is said to have been first used on a large scale by Nutri-Bio, door-to-door distributor of health food supplements. The company — for which Patrick once worked as a distributor under president Bob Cummings, the actor who now heads a vitamin and health food firm in Patrick's empire — grew quickly two decades ago until the Food and Drug Administra-

PRODUCTS OR PEOPLE? — Behind a go-go theme the Patrick empire has risen from a small cosmetics company to a world-wide conglomerate, drawing thousands of investors along the way. The name of the game is money, pyramid style.

Budget, Taxes Up Slightly

The San Rafael City Council last night adopted a budget of $7,268,000 for 1972-73 and set a tax rate of 92 cents per $100 assessed valuation, an increase of two cents over last year.

Councilmen Fred E. Jensen and Harry A. Barbier opposed the tax increase which had been proposed by City Mgr. James H. McCown.

According to Finance Director John B. Averett, the tax breakdown is: general fund, 52 cents; parks and recreation, 13; library, 12; bonds, 10, and sewers, five.

The budget as adopted is up from last year's $7,176,255 spending program and is about $300,000 less than proposed in June by McCown.

Adoption of the budget package came after the council unanimously agreed on a $1,683,000 capital improvement budget. The council had earlier adopted a $5,585,000 operating budget.

McCown had proposed a $5,421,617 operating budget and a $2,086,308 capital improvement budget.

The budget brings the city's general fund to $125,000, an all-time low, according to Jensen. The councilman, who declared the city was "going broke," nevertheless voted against increasing the tax rate.

Included in the 1972-73 spending program is $51,000 for employee salary raises, although the council last night failed to reach an agreement with its police and fire personnel.

Averett said the $51,000 and the $125,000 general fund surplus would cover salary increases for safety personnel.

City fathers rejected the recommendation of a three-man mediation team which urged an across-the-board 5 per cent pay increase for police and firemen

Hamilton Boxer Wins First Bout

MUNICH (UPI) — Jesse Valdez, welterweight boxer from Hamilton Air Force Base, became the darling of the predominantly German crowd at the Olympic boxing arena last night in his opening bout. (See Sports for other Olympic results.)

Mark Spitz set his third world record and won his third Olympic gold medal today when he overtook American teammate Steve Genter on the final lap to win the men's 200 meter freestyle in 1:52.8.

Valdez, whose hometown is Houston, Tex., was given a standing ovation by the crowd after decisioning Komlan Kalipe of Togo. He became the fourth American boxing winner in as many bouts involving U.S. men. Other American first round winners were light heavyweight Raymond Russell, featherweight Louis Self and light flyweight Davey Armstrong.

"I don't know if I could have knocked him out or anything," said Valdez, "but I've got 12 years of experience and I believe I know when I'm ahead on points. I'll fight that kid from Peru (Carlos Burga) next. He's going to be a lot tougher, but he makes a lot of mistakes and I don't think I'll have much trouble with him."

Valdez, who says he is going to quit boxing after the Olympics, was the last American to fight on Monday's program, and he dominated the bout, displaying crisp left hooks and speedy combinations. To win a gold medal in his weight class, Valdez would have to win five more bouts.

The veteran welterweight is one of two Hamilton Air Force Base boxers on the U.S. team. The other, Ricardo (Ricky) Carreras, bantamweight, is awaiting his first bout.

12,000 GIs Will Be Pulled Out Of War

'Final' Troop Phaseout Cuts Force To 27,000

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon announced today he would withdraw 12,000 U.S. troops from Vietnam over the next three months, reducing the U.S. force level to 27,000 men by Dec. 1.

This represented a total reduction of 522,500 men in the U.S. commitment to Vietnam since Nixon began his withdrawal program on June 8, 1969. The rate of withdrawal—4,000 men per month—is slightly lower than the 5,000-man current withdrawal rate.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who announced the withdrawal, left open the possibility that this may be the last troop cut until a settlement of the conflict is negotiated. Nixon has pledged to keep an American presence in Vietnam until an internationally supervised cease fire is arranged throughout Southeast Asia and all U.S. prisoners of war are released.

Ziegler said another statement on force levels would be made before Dec. 1, the expiration date of the current withdrawal but stopped short of saying that additional cuts would then be ordered.

"That statement will be based on conditions at that time," Ziegler said.

He said Nixon decided to continue the withdrawal program "after consultations with the government in Vietnam and after a thorough review of the Indochina situation."

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief national security adviser, visited Saigon earlier this month to discuss with South Vietnamese President Thieu the withdrawal program and coordinating it with negotiating progress in Paris.

The latest cut brings the total reduction of U.S. forces to 95 per cent of the 549,500 Americans in Vietnam when Nixon took office.

In addition to the forces in Vietnam, the United States has approximately 42,000 service men in Thailand and 39,000 offshore in the Seventh Fleet who are engaged in the war effort.

This force was augmented during the stepped up military activity ordered by Nixon May 8 in response to North Vietnam's offensive in the south.

Previously, about 30,000 troops were in Thailand and about 20,000 offshore in the South China Sea.

Nixon announced Monday that the draft will be abolished as of next July, and the nation will revert to an all-volunteer army for the first time in a generation.

Nixon several months ago set that as the target date to fulfill his 1968 campaign promise to do away with the draft.

Nixon made the announcement after meeting with Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who submitted a report saying it was possible to put together an all-volunteer force of 2.3 million active duty servicemen and women and 1 million reservists. Nixon said such a force would be able "to meet our vital, long term national security needs."

Laird said there are two conditions to achieving an end to conscription which he is confident Congress will approve —a special incentive to increase enlistments of physicians, and extension of the active-duty enlistment bonus to reservists and the National Guard.

Laird told reporters Nixon was already ahead of his own timetable for troop reductions in Vietnam. The United States currently has about 37,000 troops there, Laird said, more than meeting the goal announced earlier of cutting troop strength to 39,000 by Sept. 1.

Nixon was expected to announce a reducton that would leave a residual force of about 25,000 men in Vietnam until the war is settled. Nixon has said several times he opposes total withdrawal until Hanoi releases all U.S. prisoners of war.

Skepticism Over Nixon Draft Plan

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Some called it "incredible." Others said it was "about time." But almost all agreed President Nixon's announcement that the draft will end in July was the right thing to do in "a political year."

"I think it's an election year ploy," said Ronald Depontes, 18, Honolulu. "But I'm very happy."

Joe Martin, 17, a Brooklyn high school student said, "I don't think he will really do it. He just wants to get re-elected. They'll probably pass the law again by the time its my turn."

"Impossible," said Ed Mantooth, 24, Irving, Tex." I don't believe he will do it. Incredible. I don't understand why he'd take such a step. There will never be an all volunteer army with our world wide military commitments."

A counselor at the Seattle Draft Counseling Center, Gary Gelow, 28, said "it's right in a political year. I think we will have to wait until after the election to see. I'm highly skeptical, I don't think they can keep their quotas up without the draft."

Kenneth Wayne, Marietta, Ga., almost "wrecked" his car when he heard the announcement.

"When I heard that on the radio, I almost wrecked my car," said the 21-year-old Wayne. "Now I don't know who to vote for. I'm scared Nixon might just be saying that to get votes, but if he means it, I'll switch over from McGovern."

Jim Cantu, 21, Bellevue, said

McGovern's New Aid Plan Unveiled

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern today scrapped his controversial $1,000-per-person grant plan and replaced it with a liberalized welfare program intended to lift all American families above the poverty line. He also told a Wall Street audience that Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas would be named treasury secretary in a McGovern administration.

In a speech to the New York Society of Security Analysts, McGovern said his new program provides no federal benefits to those who refuse to work. He also proposed plugging $22 billion in tax loopholes, including the capital gains feature so dear to the heart of Wall Street.

McGovern's revised welfare plan would guarantee $4,000 a year in cash and food stamps to a family of four with no other income and no member able to work. Aides said details of the work requirement were not yet final, but they probably would be somewhat less severe than provisions of the existing law. But aides said that a person who refuses an available job would receive no benefits.

In his surprise announcement that Mills would be his choice for treasury secretary, McGovern said that the Arkansas Democrat, who heads the taxwriting Ways and Means Committee, is "a wise and prudent man with vast experience."

McGovern said his welfare plan was "an alternative to the present welfare mess."

"We cannot permanently exist part in prosperity, part in poverty, and with the majority of our people under relentless economic pressure," McGovern said in his prepared text.

The Democratic Presidential candidate offered more detail for his "fair share" tax reform plan than he did for the welfare program.

McGovern called for elimination over a three-year period of 11 preferences from the current income tax laws which permit rich individuals and corporations to legally avoid taxes.

Taken together, the proposals would add $22 billion to government revenue in 1975, increasing individual income taxes $12.6 billion and corporations by $9.4 billion.

But the South Dakota senator said his program would not increase the taxes of any person whose income comes entirely from wages and salaries.

In addition to the welfare plan, which McGovern said would cost $5 billion a year, he proposed creation of public service jobs, such as teacher aides, park workers, and similiar tasks to provide employment for 1 million people at a cost of about $6 billion annually. He said this would remove 3.5 million people—the workers and their families—from welfare.

In addition he proposed a $3 billion liberalization of Social Security to remove the aged poor from welfare.

"Jobs ar the cornerstone of my policy," McGovern said. "I will take whatever steps are necessary to guarantee a job opportunity to every man and woman in America able to work, including idle youths able and willing to work."

Tax Rate Held Steady In Tiburon

By JAY GOODWIN

As a final gesture to improve the chances of Tiburon's $1.25 million open space bond election, the city council last night shaved more than three cents off the anticipated 1972-1973 tax rate and held the rate at last year's level. (Other Tiburon Council stories, page 14.)

At the suggestion of Mayor Albert H. Sennett, the council held the tax rate at 73.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation by cutting from the budget $10,000 previously added for two new tennis courts at Del Mar School.

This year's budget of $845,000 adopted in June, is about $120,000 higher than last year's primarily to cover the added cost of the city's first police department.

A 15 per cent increase in the asseseed value of property in Tiburon allowed the city council to raise expenditures without

$138 Million To Marin County In Federal Outlays Last Year

Federal outlays in Marin totaled almost $138 million in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1971, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, has reported.

The total included salaries to federal employees, retirement payments and funding of dozens of special aid programs ranging from social security hospital benefits for the aged to urban renewal.

The largest single category was more than $56 million from the Department of Defense. This included $19 million in salaries for personnel on active duty, $12 million for retired personnel, $13 million in salaries to civilian employees, and $1 million for national guard salaries. Most of the remaining $11 million was in contracts for services provided military installations by civilian firms.

The second largest category was more than $42 million spent by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Of this, $23 million was for social security old age payments, $4 million for social security hospital benefits for the aged, $2 million for aid to families with dependent children, $2 million for medical assistance grants, and some $11 million in a host of other assistance programs.

The third largest was $10.4 million by the Veterans Administration

The Post Office was next, with expenditures at more than $7 million, followed by the Treasury Department at $5.4 million and the Department of Transportation at $4.8 million, mostly for highway construction.

The Department of Agriculture spent almost $2 million, largely for food stamp bonus coupons. Some of this also was for school lunch and milk programs.

Other figures reported by Mailliard were: Department of Commerce, $824,772; Department of Housing and Urban Development, $1,919,987; Department of the Interior, $1,224,711; Department of Justice, $7,370; Labor Department, $1,369,313; Civil Service Commission, $3,568,895; General Services Administration, $118,756; Office of Economic Opportunity, $288,931, and Small Business Adminstration, $224,230.

Boris Late, Too; Game Under Way

REYKJAVIK (UPI) — Boris Spassky and traditionally tardy Bobby Fischer both showed up late for today's 20th game in the $250,000 world championship chess match, but made up for lost time by running through the first 10 moves at a record pace.

Fischer playing white and moving first, was four minutes late. He opened with his favorite king's pawn. Spassky strolled in three minutes later and responded with his queen's pawn.

The two sped through the first 10 moves and settled into the Sicilian defense, Najodorf variation.

Trains Tied Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Penn Central Railroad commuters faced long delays and scattered train cancellations during the morning rush hours today as the railroad struggled to repair damage caused by a series of track fires that stranded 60,000 commuters last night.

A railroad spokesman said only three of four tracks in the Park Avenue tunnel had been reopened as the rush hour neared its peak. The spokesman said they hoped to reopen the fourth track by this evening.

'Cod Fish' War?

LONDON (UPI) — Iceland and Britain may find themselves in the middle of a "cod war" Friday unless Britain's last-minute effort to work out a settlement is successful, government sources said today.

The British government yesterday delivered a note to Iceland proposing new talks to avert a confrontation in the freezing North Atlantic.

13 Copter Deaths

BANGKOK (UPI) — Thirteen persons, including two Thai Army generals and five colonels, were killed when an army helicopter crashed and caught fire yesterday in Ratchaburi, a province about 50 miles west of Bangkok.

Lt. Gen. Kriangkrai Attanant, 59, commander of Thailand's 1st Army region, and 12 other military and police personnel died when the 13-seat UH1 helicopter fell from 1,000 feet into an open field.

Among the dead were the region's chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Chidchai Phodam, five colonels, two majors and the four-man crew of the helicopter.

Plea For Stranded

LONDON (UPI) — A 12-member delegation went to the U.S. Embassy today to plead for help for 100 Americans stranded at Gatwick Airport with tickets for a charter flight to New York that never existed.

"Our situation is desperate," Mrs. Ruth Jacob, a 45-year-old music teacher from New York, told newsmen. "We are running short of money and we feel it is up to the American Embassy to pay the bill."

The 100 stranded passengers who should have left for New York Sunday were visited yesterday by American Consul Ralph Xadeu. He was abused and threatened when he told them the consulate could not advance living expenses or money for fares on other flights.

Back To Vienna

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty ended today an emotional three-day observation of Hungarian religious and patriotic holidays with his refugee flock here and flew back to his exiled home in Vienna.

"I was greatly surprised and pleased by the enormous manifestation of sincere sympathy shown to me," the 80-year-old Hungarian primate told a group of about 20 Hungarian priests who showed up to see him off.

Angela In Russia, Welcomed As Hero

he black American Communist arrived Monday for her first visit to the Soviet Union, the nation that yelled "frame-up" when Miss Davis was tried on charges of conspiring to commit murder and kidnaping. She was acquitted.

"To everyone in our country, you have become very close and very dear," cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova told Miss Davis at Sheremetyevo Airport. The first and only woman to travel in space added:

"Allow me to hug you and kiss you on behalf of all the people of the Soviet Union." She did.

Miss Davis replied:

"It is an expressibly wonderful feeling to be here on the soil of the Soviet Union. Had it not been for the international campaign waged throughout the world, particularly in the Socialist countries and in the Soviet Union, I am certain that I would never have been released from prison."

A San Jose, Calif., court in June acquitted Miss Davis of conspiry charges in connection with a prisoners escape attempt at Marin County courthouse in 1970.

About 400 persons, mostly women, were on hand at the airport. One sign in English read: "Warm greetings to the brave American patriot." Many threw bouquets of flowers at her as she walked to her car.

Miss Davis came to the Soviet Union as guest of several Soviet organizations. She will extensively tour the country.

Mrs. McGovern; More Surprises About Eagleton

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eleanor McGovern, wife of the Democratic presidential candidate, said Monday when the entire history of this year's campaign is written there will be some surprises regarding Sen. Thomas Eagleton's leaving the ticket.

"The story hasn't all been told," Mrs. McGovern said, but she would give no other details, saying only that they would be released when the history is written.

Eagleton dropped out as Sen. George McGovern's running-mate after he revealed that he had undergone psychiatric treatment in the early 1960s.

When the full story is told, Mrs. McGovern said, "Americans will be proud of both men."

U.N. Urges Freedom For Puerto Rico

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The U.N. Decolonization Committee, a 22-member body of mostly third world nations, declared Monday that Puerto Rico should be granted independence from the United States.

The move, which is not binding and had no immediate practical consequence except to embarrass the United States, came on a resolution that was approved 12-0 with 10 abstentions. Iraq introduced the measure 10 days ago on behalf of Cuba, providing a sounding board for attacks on the United States by China and the Soviet Union as well as Cuba.

Delegates from abstaining nations pointed out that the General Assembly had opposed a similar move on the issue of Puerto Rican independence last year and said the committee should not try overriding the higher body's decision.

The resolution instructed a special working group of the committee to submit a report early next year on dealing with the Puerto Rican question after recognizing the colonial status of the island.

FDA Recalls 10 Vitamin Brands

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has recalled 10 brands of daily vitamin tablets in nine Western states finding them contaminated with significant amounts of the strong sedative amobarbital.

Amobarbital, of the barbiturate family, can seriously depress breathing and may be fatal to certain persons with marked sensitity to barbiturates, according to the FDA. The agency said Monday persons particularly susceptible to amobarbital are alcholics, heavy drinkers and individuals with emphysema or other serious pulmonary diseases.

The vitamins were sold in California, Washington, Oregon, Kansas, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, and Wyoming although the FDA said purchasers may live in other nearby states. It is estimated that 10 per cent or less of the suspect lot have not been sold and are still on the retail market.

The FDA advised consumers to check any tablets they may have to assure that they are not among the lot being recalled. But they added that no adverse affects have yet been reported.

The contamination was initially discovered during a routine military test for possible drug abuse which disclosed barbiturates in the urine of one of those tested. Follow ups by the military implicated the vitamin as the source of the drug and the FDA confirmed the presence of the amobarbital.

The brand names and their distributors for the 100-tablet bottles were Clinic, Howe Products Inc.; Bonded, Pay and Save, Seattle; Grigg's Dept. Store, Pasco, Wash.; Alpine, Alpine Laboratories, Seattle; Bi'Mart, Bi'Mart Drugs, Eugene, Ore.

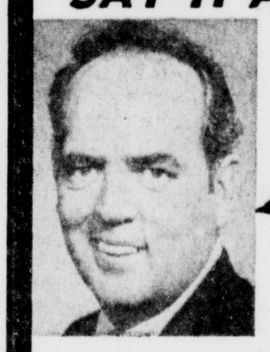

The contaminated vitimins in the 250-tablet bottles were Bonded, Pay And Save, Seattle; Clinic, Howe Products, Inc., P'Ns, P'Ns Corp., Seattle; House of Value, House of Value, Seattle; Ah, Ah Stores, Inc.; Renton, Wash.; Olympic, B&B Wholesale Drugs, Olympia, Wash.; Alpine, Alpine Laboratories, Seattle; Hi Ho, Hi Ho Pharmacy, Puyallup, Wash.; and Bi'Mart, Bi'Mart Drugs, Eugene, Ore.

GENEVA (UPI)—The International Air Transport Association (IATA) said today terrorist movements are trying on an organized basis to give bomb packages to aircraft passengers just before their flights.

tion halted the operation on false labeling complaints.

It was from Nutri-Bio that Patrick, a failure at several business ventures before cosmetics came along, learned the pyramid plan, refining it later to send him on his way to fortune.

Investors are recruited into the Patrick's pyramid firms for the most part through so-called opportunity meetings. The sessions usually are held in conference rooms of hotels and motels in major cities of America and foreign lands.

Lured by newspaper advertisements or referred by people already with the company, potential recruits are shown a motivational film, hear praise for the product and industry growth and learn that a position may be obtained for a fee ranging from $90 to $4,500.

Only in multilevel marketing, prospective investors were told in a recent meeting run by one of Patrick's companies in San Francisco, is it possible to earn $50,000 in the first year. And the way to do it, a recruiter made it clear to one prospect later, is to build your own organization, recruit others into the program.

"Selling bodies is what we object to," said Dean W. Determan, vice president of governmental and legal affairs for the Council of Better Business Bureaus in Washington, D.C.

Persons inquiring at the San Francisco Better Business Bureau about Patrick's companies are given a pamphlet attacking firms which "concentrate mainly on the quick profits to be earned by recuriting others to invest . . . The merchandise or service to be sold is largely ignored."

The pamphlet goes on to say that pyramid companies make little or no mention of market saturation that can result when distributors eager to recoup their investment begin recuiting from the "ever decreasing number of potential investors in a given area."

Recruiters, always nattily dressed and working from scripts, boast at opportunity sessions of personal wealth, but when asked for a statement of the average income of distributors in the company, say such figures aren't available.

The truth, law enforcement officials say, is that the income picture is well known to the companies. But as the New York Attorney General's Office noted recently, only 79 out of 1,604 distributors and supervisors in a Koscot operation in that state earned more than $5,000 in a year, and only 10 made more than $20,000.

While not having comparable figures on Patrick firms, the California attorney general's office has noted in a suit against one of the Patrick firms, Alexander Taylor Inc., a clothing distributor, that the company's top achiever in retail sales, as opposed to wholesale, or distributorship sales, earned only $600-$1,000 over a five-month period.

Ben Gay III of San Rafael, ousted Holiday Magic president and now a critic of pyramid plans, said that only a very few distributors can boast of true wealth. As Holiday Magic president, he said he can recall a virtually endless row of zero earnings listed on a computer print-out of distributor wages.

Gay said he was berated by Patrick on several occasions for pacing emphasis on retail sales. The system, Gay recalled Patrick saying, is "built on greed" and that "we're not here to retail."

In a complex formula of fees, commissions, and overrides, the Patrick pyramid plan consists of four basic marketing levels — retailer, organizer, master distributor and general distributor. Some factors, such as financial commitments and distributor titles, vary, however, among the tycoon's five pyramid companies.

Besides Holiday Magic, operating since 1964, the firms are Sta-Power Products, distributor of engine and transmission additives; Alexander Taylor Inc.; Bob Cummings Inc., vitamins and health food supplements, and Ameriprise, home care products.

Investors, told the way to success is to build their own organization, initially "buy in" for fees ranging from $15 to $4,500, depending on the level entered. Recruits may start as retailers, organizers or masters. General distributor comes later.

In return for his entry fee, an investor obtains retail products and the right to recruit others who, in turn, can repeat the process. Organizations grow within the organization.

Since few new investors are willing or able to come up with the $4,500 cost of a master distributorship, most are recruited at the organizer level.

But organizers, entitled to products at 30 per cent discount, are induced to move up to the master and general distributor levels. There, the discount is higher — up to 65 per cent — and recruitment commissions and bonuses are greater.

Various lures are dangled in front of hesitant organizers. First, a finance plan is available for those unable to raise the $4,500 master's fee. Ther terms are $2,500 down and the balance within two years at 6 per cent interest.

Then, the company repeatedly extends deadlines set for periodic increases in the investment sum, hoping to lure more prospects. A recent deadline has been extended three times by Holiday Magic, for instance.

(An organizer also can also sell $6,000 worth of retail goods in a calendar month to move up, but this is rarely done.)

General is the most lucrative — albeit costly — of the positions, reached only by masters. The general requirement is $4,000, $3,000 of which is given to the general "sponsoring" the master's rise to the top spot. The company keeps $1,000.

In addition, new generals also must replace themselves as masters and take required sales training at $250. They are cautioned, moreover, that if they want to succeed in the company, they had better take motivational and psychological training at a cost of $1,150.

Says Gay, "It's legalized, sophisticated, corporate blackmail."

Throughout the whole structure, "extra training" sometimes is "offered" for $750 — also on a you-better-be-there-or-else basis. Such sessions can attract up to 3,000 persons in major cities.

Besides the 65 per cent discount, generals receive a 10 per cent override on retail purchases by organizers or retailers from masters in his (the general's) organization, as well as a 1 per cent monthly override, based on retail purchases, when the master in his organization moves up to general. The override is based on the new general's purchases.

At the discounts given, product will move down through the organization thus: a $6.99 bottle of night cream will be sold to the general for $2.45, to the master for $3.15 and to the organizers and retailers for $4.89. Finally, the customer makes the $6.99 purchase.

Can one get out if one decides one doesn't like the program after buying in? It's no simply job, and an expensive one on top of it, at least in Holiday Magic.

Besides, only master distributors are eligible. Holiday Magic will give one a 90 per cent refund provided one attends four opportunity meetings, four business training classes, completes instructor general class ($250) and completes four cosmetic training classes.

Defending the so-called buyback agreement, Patrick indicated the company structure was largely to the distributor's benefit. But he said he only recently had ordered his Holiday Magic staff to refund an investment made by an elderly woman who had fallen ill.

"We can't have programs continually serving the businessmen," he said.

Joint Effort To Register Voters

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Democratic National Chairman Jean Westwood Monday asked the Republican National Committee to engage in a joint effort to register 45 million unregistered voters.

"I am most anxious to see that the registration efforts of the two parties are coordinated in this national effort to enfranchise the millions of Americans who are now deprived of their right to vote," Mrs. Westwood said in a telegram Monday to the GOP.

She noted the Republicans had said at their national convention that they were "willing to match the Democratic effort (to register qualified voters) dollar for dollar."

Registration By Women's League

The League of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin will register voters Aug. 31 to Sept. 4 at the Marin County Fair at the Civic Center.

The League is also registering voters at local shopping centers.

A citizen must register to vote if he has moved, changed his name, or did not vote in the last general election.

The last day to register is Oct. 8.

Mayor Sennett urged the council to postpone construction of the courts until next summer, in an effort to sooth Tiburon taxpayers and insure the victory of the bond election Oct. 3.

Tiburon voters will be asked to authorize the sale of $1.25 million worth of bonds to finance the acquistion of open space along the Tiburon peninsula ridgelands. Interest and principal on the open space bonds will add about 29 cents per $100 assessed valuation to the city's tax rate, according to City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer.

While asking for a $10,000 cut in the tennis court budget, Mayor Sennet held out some hope for the tennis players in Tiburon. He asked the council to scrutinize the city's revenue figures in January in an effort to find an additional $10,000 to hasten construction of the courts.

Unhappy with the prospect of delaying the courts, Councilman Allan N. Littman again suggested that Belvedere and Reed School District be urged to share the $20,000 cost. Answering Littman, former parks and recreation commissioner Donald K. Loomis said it was very unlikely that the school district would contribute more than the value of its land at the Del Mar School site to the tennis court project. Loomis said the district has projects of its own with a higher priority than the courts.

Councilman and another former parks and recreation commissioner, Albert Aramburu said he thought excess money could be found for the courts even if the budget were pruned by $10,000.

After councilmen M. Carlisle Becker and Branwell D. Fanning said they favored holding the line at 73.5 cents, the council passed the resolution setting the tax rate by a 4-1 vote, with Aramburu dissenting.

"It's good. But it's sad that it seems like another political trick. I don't see why the President can't end it sooner."

Steve Tidwell, 21, Texas City, Tex., said the President is doing it but doesn't deserve the credit.

"It's about time," Tidwell said. "It's nice to know that the Berkeley movement finally did something. It's taken them all this time. Look at what it took to get it done. People shot at Kent. And then when it's done it's done by Nixon."

Michael Schwartz, 22, Detroit, had this to say:

"Let me make one thing perfectly clear. I don't believe it. I just got my 1-A classification Saturday."

Novato Man Commended By Airline

A 25-year-old Novatan, who helped to foil the attempted hijacking of an airliner in Vietnam July 1, has been commended by Pan American World Airways.

Donald Zile, a civilian employee at Da Nang, South Vietnam, jumped from the plane with what was believed to be a bomb, ran 100 yards and threw it into a grassy area.

What the hijacker said was a bomb turned out to be two lemons wrapped in tinfoil.

Paul T. Rennel, vice president and assistant to the president of the airline, commending Zile, said: "With your assistance not only was this attempted hijacking frustrated, but other potential hijackers discouraged and other hijackings averted."

The hijacker, who attempted to divert a 747 from Guam to Hanoi, was shot dead at the Saigon airport by a passenger after being jumped by the pilot.

Zile, a former physical education teacher at Redwood High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen E. Zile, 1375 Monte Maria Avenue, Novato.

retroactive to July 1, as well as a $15 monthly increase in medical insurance benefits.

Instead, councilmen after closed session offered safety personnel a 5 per cent pay increase effective Sept. 1 and a $2 monthly increase in insurance benefits.

Police representative Sgt. Henry W. Ingwersen charged the council was "not bargaining in good faith" and said it was "ludicrous" for the city to pay $3,000 for the mediators' report and then "throw it out the door."

Ingwersen and firemen's representative Donald Wolford rejected the city's counteroffer and said they would call a news conference today on the matter.

McCown later told the Independent-Journal the city's offer was "the end," and that police and fire personnel salaries would continue at present rates if the offer were not eventually accepted.

"We're not required to go into binding arbitration," McCown said.

The council last night announced that the Berkeley firm of Duncan and Jones had been chosen to prepare the city's new general plan at a "cost to be negotiated."

The council adjourned in memory of Supervisor John F. McInnis, who died yesterday.

PLAN

program would eliminate the special treatment of capital gains—now taxed at half the rate of other income—to produce $8 billion of the $22 billion his reform program would require.

Other proposed reforms would affect estate and gift taxes, real estate tax shelters, depletion allowances, taxation of foreign assets, tax-free municipal bonds, and tax savings from "hobby farms."

"I have said for years the federal tax structure is unfair because it burdens the many and benefits special interests," he said. "How can anyone defend the following real-life case, taken from the U.S. Treasury's own report: This American enjoyed an income of $2.3 million from oil and gas, capital gains and dividends and interest; he paid tax at less than half the 14 per cent rate a working person pays on the first $1,000 taxed."

The McGovern tax proposal, coupled with his earlier call for a $32-billion cut in defense spending over the next three years, would net the government $54 billion. The welfare, Social Security and job creation plans covered in the speech would cost $14 billion. He vowed to keep additional programs proposed during the campaign within the $40 billion surplus.

McGovern's selection of a group of stock market analysts as the live audience for his announcement combined with his emphasis on work rather than handouts was intended to offset the something-for-nothing impression created by his prenomination suggestion of a welfare reform plan built around a taxable grant of $1,000 for every person.

Republicans seized on the $1,000 feature as the takeoff point for charges that McGovern was fiscally irresponsible and would generate massive tax increases. The Democratic candidate disputes both charges.

McGovern has said he will emphasize economics—especially inflation and unemployment —in his campaign to wrest the White House from President Nixon.

"I think he (Nixon) has mismanaged the economy more than any other president in the 20th Century," McGovern said Monday in an oratorical flourish that placed his estimation of Nixon's policies below those of President Herbert Hoover who presided over the beginning of the Depression of the 1930s.

"People are asking George McGovern to clarify his tax plan," McGovern said. "What is Richard Nixon's tax plan? People are asking me to clarify my welfare plan. What has Richard Nixon done in four years to clean up the welfare mess?

"Mr. Nixon has been the man that presided over four years of unemployment, four years of rising food prices, four years of increasing welfare rolls, four years of rising crime and drug addiction."

Cable Will Carry KFTY To Sonoma

Many Marin and Southern Sonoma residents may be receiving KFTY Television of Santa Rosa on channel 50.

The station programming is from 5:30 to 10:30 p.m. daily with strong emphasis on local sports and news.

He said permission was granted yesterday for Storer Cable TV to carry programming on channel 11 in Rohnert Park, Sonoma, Sebastopol and Calistoga.

Henry Shapiro, UPI, Moscow, dean of Western correspondents in the USSR

If you could convince the Soviets that you were HENRY SHAPIRO of United Press International you'd get in. But since you can't, better let Shapiro do it for you . . . and then write a dispatch which you can read in the I-J.

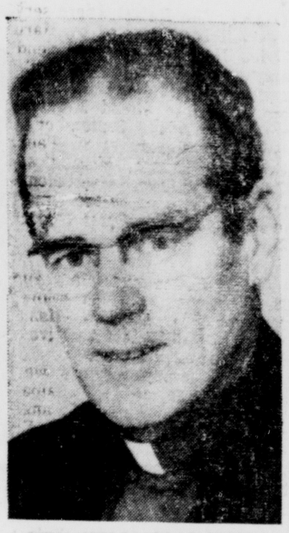

For more than 30 years Shapiro has been manager of UPI'S Moscow Bureau. He is the dean of Western correspondents there. His abilities, his writing and his honors are known and respected throughout the world—even by the Russians!

His assignment is perhaps the most difficult of any correspondent. He must maintain a delicate balance within a totalitarian world yet report to you, the reader, on events often unreported within the USSR itself. He must maintain accreditation yet maintain credibility with his audience for reliable reporting.

Such talents have enabled Henry Shapiro to cover every major event in the USSR since the treason trials of the Thirties, the siege of Leningrad, Stalin's death, Khrushchev's rise and fall from power, the Soviet space flights—the entire spectrum of the USSR.

When you read Shapiro's dispatches in the I-J you can be sure you are receiving authoritative information. He's your man in the Kremlin. In fact, one of the few men who comes out with the news . . . because he's "in."

USF Board Picks New President

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The University of San Francisco Board of Trustees Monday named Rev. William C. McInnes, S.J., a noted Connecticut Jesuit educator, as the school's new president.

Father McInnes, 49, is currently president of Fairfield University and Fairfield College Preparatory in Fairfield, Conn. He gained national prominence as the principal litigant in Tilton V. Richardson, a landmark Supreme Court case testing the constitutional propriety of federal grants to church-related schools.

Father McInnes succeeds the Rev. Albert R. Jonsen, S.J., who resigned the presidency on June 30 after three years in office. He will serve as visiting professor of medical ethics at the University of California at San Francisco and will also be a fellow with the Kennedy Foundation.

Father Jonsen agreed to continue as president of USF, which has an enrollment of 6,000, until his successor was named, and Father McInnes' appointment was made effective September 1.

Father McInnes has been president of Jesuit Fairfield for nine years and is known for his support of "open education" — a term covering the opportunities opening up for non-college citizens of all ages —and for his advocacy of broader interaction between campus and community.

He is currently the chairman of a committee appointed by the Connecticut Legislature to investigate nontraditional approaches to college degrees, including "external" degrees earned without campus attendance.

He is also president of the Connecticut Association for Community Action, ahd Higher Education Center for Urban Studies in Bridgeport, Conn., and the Connecticut Higher Education Television Association.

Fund-Raiser Slated

Backers for Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni's reelection will hold a fund-raising "Ride a Pony for Arrigoni" Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Fairfax home of Gilbert P. Murphy, 942 Bolinas Road.

Reduced Assessment Applications Filed

By 5 p.m. yesterday, 418 applications for reduced assessments had been filed with the assessment appeals board, according to secretary Mona Elder.

However, the total market value of the property protested will not be known for several days because owners had until 5 p.m. to mail their protests. It will take several days for these to come in and several more to total the value of the property, she said.

County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel said that last year there were 379 claims. The county had placed a market value of $25,016,626 of these parcels and the owners claimed that their market value was $19,574,767, he said.

Last year the total assessed valuation of Marin County was $715,905,185 and this year it is $764,764,928. Broemmel said that he expected the protests to run proportionately higher.

The assessor's office last year handled 251 of the protests and with six of these still pending, he said. This was 66 per cent of the protests. The assessments appeals board handled 128 cases he said.

Between the assessor and the board, $3,586,913 of market value was knocked off the assessor's rolls, $2,191,718 by the assessors and $1,395,195 by the board, according to Broemmel.

The board will start hearing protests on Sept. 22 and every Friday, excepting holidays, until it has completed the job, Broemmel said. Last year it took until Feb. 25 to hear all the protests, he said.

The largest reduction granted last year was to the Tiburon Hills Apartments whose market value was reduced from $2.8 to $2.4 million dollars. The owners claimed that the apartments were worth $1.8 million, he said.

All protests are handled on market value and assessed value for tax purposes is 25 per cent of market value, Broemmel said.

Sewer Line Funds Win Board Nod

The Almonte Sanitary District board last night authorized a $5,000 expenditure to complete upgrading of its sewer lines.

So far, the district has spent $6,000 to correct water infiltration in the lines.

The board learned from Yoder, Trotter, and Orlob, consultants to the Water Quality Control Board, that the upgrading of the sewer lines means that the district has received credits for 87 building connections.

The board also heard a financial report from Secretary John J. Crncich. According to Crncich, the district spent $29,000 last year. Of that money, $10,000 was used for maintenance of sewer lines, $14,000 went to the City of Mill Valley as fees for treatment of sewage, and $5,000 was spent on other administrative and operating expenses.

Tomorrow's Road Work Announced

Projects in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect the flow of traffic tomorrow were announced today by the State Division of Highways.

Sections of freeway involved are:

1. Kastania Road, two miles south of Petaluma, one outside southbound lane closed from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. for asphalt support work.

2. Sir Francis Drake Boulevard off-ramp near Larkspur, one southbound outside lane closed from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for slab removal and repairs.

3. Waldo Grade from Marin City southbound, one inside land and one outside lane closed from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for cleanup work and shoulder repair.

White Rhino Is Born In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Zoo officials think a rare white rhinoceros born Monday is the first one conceived and born in captivity in the United States.

Zoo Director Louis Disabato said the birth took 30 to 45 minutes and both mother and the baby rhino appeared in good health, although humans have had to keep their distance.

"She is very protective of her baby," Disabato said.

The white rhinos were once an endangered species originating in Africa.

The parents are Fred and Gertrude, both seven years old, who have been in the San Antonio Zoo since 1970. Disabato said officials had not decided yet what to name the baby, pending determination of its sex.

The newcomer weighed an estimated 70 to 80 pounds, but Disabato said it is nevertheless difficult to tell when a female rhinoceros is pregnant. An increase in Gertrude's rate of breathing made zookeepers suspicious.

"We had an idea and we just hoped we were right," Disabato said. "Everythipg seemed to go perfectly as far as the birth was concerned."

Disabato, who said he has never heard of another such conception and birth in captivity, said officials have not yet confirmed that the baby rhino is nursing yet. He said if necessary, attendants could feed the baby.

Britain Said Making Arms Sales Pitches

LONDON (UPI)—Britain is quietly promoting a campaign for worldwide sales of its arms and defense equipment, British sources said today.,

But government quarters stressed that each order is treated on its merits to avoid upsetting the balance of strength in any part of the world, especially in areas where conflicts are prevalent.

Overseas sales of weapons and a variety of defense equipment, including electronics and radar devices, were estimated to bring in up to $750 million in the current fiscal year 1972-1973.

Iran alone was expected to place orders in the neighborhood of $250 million following extensive negotiations.

The Middle East, notably Egypt, also has expressed new interest in British arms, above all modern electronic defense equipment, followingits quarrel with Russia and an anticipated drying up of Soviet arms deliveries.

A number of other countries also have been looking for arms here, but these appear to concern smaller orders.

The government maintains official silence on arms sales and negotiations for security reasons, but some details have been leaking out lately, signifying a notable scale of arms business.

Catalogues listing the scale of British military hardware and accesories available for sale overseas have reportedly been supplied to British missions abroad.

These give an idea of what Britain, political security considerations permitting, may be able to supply in the arms field, including a variety of new electronic and radar equipment whereon security brakes may be less stringent than on outright weapons

The most comprehensive single orders appear to be coming presently from Iran, reportedly involving several hundred light tanks, naval communications equipment, corvettes and anti-aircraft missiles.

Bakersfield Hit By Dust Blanket

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI)—Swirling dust cut visibility to near zero Monday night on one of two superhighways where a similar turbulence Sunday caused multiple collisions in which seven persons were killed and 90 injured.

There were no accidents from Monday's dust blanket, which was kicked up by gusty winds along Interstate 5, a major north-south artery. Traffic was rerouted for one hour to nearby U.S. 99.

More dust storms are expected in the Southern San Joaquin Valley of Central California.

Admitted Robber Given Six-Month Jail Term

A 21-year-old Larkspur man who had admitted robbing a motorist was given a suspended term in state prison yesterday, then ordered to serve six months in the county jail.

However, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court gave Richard Dean Guendner credit for 133 days he has spent in jail since his arrest in April.

Guendner was also placed on probation for three years.

The change of plea form Guendner signed when he admitted guilt last month didn't include the suspended prison time, but Buendner agreed when Gardiner insisted on it.

"I want him to live with the prospect that he could go to the big house if he looks at somebody crosseyed," the judge said.

Guendner was arrested after Thomas Scott Robertson of Toburon told Larkspur Police two men who threatened him with a knife and gun made him drive up Baltimore Canyon, then took $75 from him after he gave them a ride.

Steven John Papas, 21, of San Francisco is awaiting trial on the robbery charge in superior court next month.

U.S. Ships Make A Daring Strike

SAIGON (UPI) — Warships and planes of the U.S. 7th Fleet led personally by Vice Adm. J. L. Holloway II, the fleet commander, sank two North Vietnamese torpedo boats Sunday in the Gulf of Tonkin after bombarding targets barely two miles from Haiphong in the most daring naval strike of the war.

The U.S. Navy, in a delayed report, said no American losses were reported but that North Vietnamese shells exploding within 30 feet of the destroyer USS Robison showered the signal bridge with shrapnel. Another destroyer, the USS Sarsfield, operating 200 miles to the south, was damaged by shrapnel from shore batteries the same day.

Official Radio Hanoi claimed that two of the four U.S. warships were "set afire" by Communist shore batteries.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command said he could draw no connection between the confirmed presence of a Chinese minesweeper in Haiphong port and the air-sea raids around the city.

Other military sources speculated the United States was attempting to show it could bring full military power to bear on Haiphong if the Communists — North Vietnamese or Chinese—make any attempt to clear the harbor of mines.

Holloway went into battle aboard his flagship, the heavy cruiser USS Newport News. He was so exhilarated at the combined air and sea operation that he messaged his men:

"Tonight I had the opportunity to observe a truly professional and flawlessly executed naval operation...My personal congratulations and a heartiest well done to each of you.

"Your daring raid into strongly defended enemy territory proved once again the ability of the 7th Fleet to apply pressure at a time and place of its own choosing."

It was the closest naval battle to Haiphong in this offensive and possibly for the entire war. The four U.S. warships fired on targets within two miles of Haiphong while carrier-borne jets attacked targets inside the city itself in the coordinated air-sea attack. Last May 10, a five-ship task force hit targets four miles from Haiphong, the closest they had come.

It was a reported clash between ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet and North Vietnamese torpedo boats in the summer of 1968 that led then President Lyndon B. Johnson to unleash the U.S. air war against North Vietnam.

The naval action overshadowed these other major developments in Vietnam:

—U.S. Air Force Capt. Richard S. Ritchie of Reidsville, N.C., piloting an F4 Phantom, shot down a MIG21 30 miles west of Hanoi Monday, making him the first Air Force ace of the Indochina War and the third among Navy and Marine fliers. The action came when U.S. planes flew around tropical storm Cora and hit targets 35 miles north of Hanoi and missile sites 35 miles from the China border.

—Communist troops cut two highway bridges just outside of Saigon during the night, demonstrating their ability to move undetected through government-held areas. One bridge was 13 miles northwest of Saigon on Highway 1, the other was 40 miles away.

—South Vietnamese Marines reported more heavy fighting in Quang Tri City in the extreme northeast corner of South Vietnam where they were hit today by 1,210 rounds of mortar and artillery fire while trying to recapture the city. B52s heavily bombed Communist positions nearby.

Two Arrests Made After Altercation

A San Rafael woman and a man were arrested in San Rafael last night on separate counts stemming from a fracas at the Bermuda Palms, 737 Francisco Boulevard at 12:41 a.m. today.

Booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court was Linda Ann Caruso, 19, of 60 Canal Street. Also booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $500 bail to appear today also was Richard Allen Middleton, 26, of no known address.

Miss Caruso was arrested on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and possession of a concealed weapon. Middleton was arrested on suspicion of disturbing the peace and resisting arrest.

According to police, Middleton was involved in a scuffle involving several Hells Angels and some other men at a rock concert held in the Bermuda Palms motel. Officers were called to the motel after a carload of men reported that a Hell's Angel had fired several shots at the car, according to police.

Police identified Miss Caruso as the girlfriend of a Hell's Angel reportedly involved in the incident and arrested her in the parking lot of the Montecito shopping center after a search turned up a revolver and five pills believed to be drugs.

Immediate G.M., Ford Price Hikes Denied — But Door Ajar

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Price Commission today denied requests by General Motors and Ford to raise prices immediately on their 1973 model automobiles, but kept open the possibility of increases later this year.

Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr., in announcing the decision, said the action was taken because the two giant firms might realize greater profit margins than permitted under the Economic Stabilization Act if the increases were authorized.

Increases requested by Chrysler, American Motors and International Harvester remained suspended pending the outcome of public hearings the commission has scheduled starting Sept. 12 for a review of auto industry pricing policies.

Both GM and Ford declined immediate comment on the commission's ruling, apparently to assess its impact.

Grayson said Ford and General Motors could come back as early as Oct. 1 with new increase requests based on financial data from their thirdquarter figures. He conceded that the commission could grant the new requests prior to November but he emphatically denied the order was issued with an eye toward giving the administration a pre-election image of being tough on business.,

"We made this decision independent of any election date," Grayson said.

General Motors, the traditional price leader in the auto industry, had asked the commission for a $54 average increase on its 1973 passenger cars and trucks. Ford wanted to boost its prices by an average $59. Both companies said they needed the extra money to cover costs of government-required safety bumper and exhaust standards.

Both requests had been scaled down —Ford from $91.52 and General Motors from $85 — after the administration called the companies' top executives to the White House two weeks ago to ask that the increases be withdrawn.

The increases of the three other companies were: Chrysler $91.32, American Motors $149.68 and International Harvester $47.

A decision as to how much, if any, of these increases should take effect will be made after testimony from next month's hearings has been digested, Grayson said.

In letters to GM chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg and Ford executive vice president J. Edward Lundy, Grayson said the increases were turned down because the companies were "not technically qualified at this time for price increase consideration."

Grayson said both Ford and GM had exceeded their base-period profit margins for the six-month period ending June 30. He said "seasonality" factors permitted the higher profit margin during this period, but that a forecast submitted for the remainder of the 1972 fiscal year "fails to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the commission that your base period profit margin will not be exceeded for that fiscal year."

Under the Economic Stabilization Act, companies are not restricted as to the size of their profits, but any substantial increase in profits must be achieved through heavier sales volume. The rule states that a company's profit margin — profits as a percentage of sales —may not exceed the average of the best two of the last three fiscal years.

San Anselman Files For Seat

Only one candidate has filed with the Marin County Elections Office to run in the San Anselmo School District trustee election Nov. 7.

Deadline for filing is 5 p.m. Friday.

The election of a new trustee was put on the November ballot after Basil H. Scalabrini resigned in July. Scalabrini — elected in April 1969 — had not attended a board meeting since early March.

School Post Has Single Candidate

Only one person has so far filed candidacy papers for vacant seat on the Marin County Schools board, trustee district No. 1 (Novato), in the November election.

He is William L. Sisk of 7 Nassau Court, Novato, who was appointed to the board May 17 to fill the unexpired term of James A. Swensen.

Swensen retired June 1. Five Novato residents applied for the position, and the county board voted behind closed doors to appoint Sisk to the position.

County schools Supt. Virgil S. Hollis and the board refused to divulge the names of the other four applicants until a private-citizen's suit earlier this month forced the disclosure.

Sisk, 41, is district manager for Equitable Life Assurance Society. He and his wife Rachael are the parents of four children. His father, Homer L. Sisk of Santa Rosa, was at one time superintendent of Fairfax schools.

He ran unsuccessfully for the Marin Community College District Board last April, polling 6,515 votes, the fifth highest count of the 12 candidates.

The county elections department said no other residents have taken out candidacy papers for the election. The deadline for filing is 5 p.m. Friday.

Four Hurt In Two-Car Crash

Leslie M. Stewart, 19, of 3508 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma, was reported in satisfactory condition at Community Hospital of Sonoma County with a broken left hip suffered in a two-car accident at 5 a.m. today on Old Adobe Road near Frates Road, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said his car veered over the center line and struck head-on a car driven by Manuel Lopes, 38, of 40 Meacham Road, Petaluma.

Lopes and his son, Herman, 13, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts along with a passenger in Stewart's car, Kent Kurtz, 22, of 424 Donner Avenue, Petaluma.

Bay Plan Is Supported In Bolinas

The Bolinas Planning Group voted unanimously last night to support the Association of Bay Area Governments' new tough master plan for the bay area's 246 miles of ocean coastline.

The group, formed to prepare the master plan for the Bolinas area, indicated it favors the ABAG plan, according to Patrick Holland, administrative assistant for the local planning organization.

The plan proposes a regional agency empowered to halt or limit development in coastal areas of Marin, Sonoma, San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

Also proposed is public purchase of 39,510 acres of coastland, including 17,600 acres in Marin, for between $66 and $81 million.

Holland said the group also agreed to send letters to major landowners in the area, asking them what they intend to do with their property and urging closer communication between the owners and the planning group.

Troupe To Present 'Animal Farm' Friday

The play will run Friday and Saturday nights through Sept. 30.

County Agency Board To Discuss Services

Services to be performed by the Marin County Redevelopment Agency's newly-formed project area committee will be discussed at an adjourned meeting of the agency board at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

The area committee was organized to advise the agency in redevelopment matters and will have several duties, including meeting with Marin City residents to keep the community up to date on what is happening on the redevelopment scene.

Tower To Serve As Commercial Relay

The radio relay tower on Sonoma Mountain at Petaluma approved Thursday by the Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments will serve as a commercial relay tower and not for citizen band radios as reported in Friday's Independent-Journal.

Robert Thompson, a partner, said the tower will be used as a radio relay station for tow trucks and other businesses needing long-range communication.

N.J. Daily Will Cease Publication

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—The Evening News, once New Jersey's largest newspaper, will cease publication Thursday, four months after it came back on the streets following an 11-month strike, it was announced today.

Bruce Mair, president of the Evening News Publishing Co., a subsidiary of Media General Inc. of Richmond, Va., said the problems that forced the decision were "solely financial."

At the time of the strike by editorial workers seeking their first contract, the News had a daily circulation of about 240,000 and a Sunday circulation of some 400,000.

The Sunday paper and much of the physical assets had been sold during the strike to the Morning Star-Ledger, a Newhouse newspaper, for $20 million.

"Closing the doors of a newspaper is a sad decision, paricularly when this decision involves a newspaper which all of its long life earned real stature in the community it serves and in the minds of leaders of our professions," Mair said in a statement. "It was, indeed, one of this country's great and better known newspapers."

Mair said that "losses have been accelerating and are now being incurred at the rate of more than $8 million per year."

He said when publication resumed on April 10 after the strike, "thousands of readers" bought the paper, but he gave no circulation figures. He said that thousands more didn't purchase the News, with many of them saying too little advertising was the reason.

He said many potential advertisers ignored the paper "because circulation was significantly smaller than it had been before the strike."

Alfred de Poto, assistant metropolitan editor, said the notice was posted on a bulletin board in the third floor newsroom about 9:30 a.m.

"It shook up a lot of people like me who've been here a long time," said de Poto, 57, who joined the newspaper in 1947.

"I consider it the best in the nation. It's a damn shame."

The paper had about 210 reporters and photographers when the strike by the Newspaper Guild began, May 26, 1971. The following day craft workers walked off the job in support, and the paper halted publication.

Although the strike ended not long after the reporters accepted a contract with a top minimum of $220 weekly for experienced personnel, reporters said today that many raises had not been paid because federal Pay Board approval had not yet been given.

Media General purchased the News in 1970 from the Scudder family, which had founded it in 1883.

Mair's statement did not say whether the properties still owned by the News would be sold. Media General had also bought from the Scudder family The Garden State Paper Co., a newspaper recycling firm in Garfield.

GAO Denies It 'Deviated' By Making Fund Report Public

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department has rebuked the General Accounting Office (GAO) for releasing to the public its detailed report on $350,000 in Republican campaign contributions at the same time it was recommending possible criminal prosecution.

"Disclosures of this nature run counter to normal investigative procedures and may prejudice a potential defendant's right to a fair trial," the Justice Department said Monday. "It should be noted that GAO, for whatever reason, deviated from its past practice by making public its report."

The GAO, Congress' investigative unit, issued a report Saturday saying it found "apparent and possible" violations of the 1971 law requiring disclosure of campaign donations and spending.

The report, which was undertaken as a direct result of the alleged bugging raid on the Democratic National Committee headquarters June 17, said the $350,000 fund under question apparently included $114,000 received by the Committee to Reelect the President and deposited in a bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of five men arrested in connection with the Democratic headquarters break-in.

Philip S. Hughes, director of the GAO elections office denied his office had erred in releasing the report. He said the GAO had made public reports in at least three other recent cases.

The Justice Department said it received the report Monday and sent it to the criminal division "for review and appropriate action."

A central figure in the funds controversy, which has developed into a major election issue, was Maurice H. Stans, Finance Chairman for Nixon's re-election committee.

Stans told the GAO that the $350,000 fund had been collected before April 7, the day the new reporting law went into effect. But he said all records regarding the origins of the money apparently had been destroyed.

Stans was questioned privately Monday by attorney Edward Bennett Williams, representing the Democratic National Committee in its $1 million damage suit it filed against the Republicans following the bugging raid arrests.

In other developments:

— Rep. Wright Patman, Chairman of the House Banking Committee, invited Stans to testify before his panel, which has announced plans to investigate the so-called Watergate incident. Stans charged Sunday that the GAO report was riddled with "misrepresentations" and "inaccuracies" and Patman asked him to make them public.

—Democratic National Chairman Jean Westwood said in New York she expected a number of indictments to result from the ongoing federal grand jury bugging investigation. She said the GAO report "exposes incredibly loose, if not actually illicit, transactions by a swarm of people in and around the Committee to Re-elect the President."

— Democratic Presidential candidate George S. McGovern said he would welcome a GAO investigation of his campaign funds because he said he has nothing to hide. Stans had suggested Sunday that the GAO run a full audit on the Democrat's campaign treasury.

—Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's chief adviser, said in Baltimore the Nixon Administration was sitting on a major scandal and the voters would not forget that on election day.

—Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst told the Washington Post that his department's investigation of the bugging case would be "the most extensive, thorough and comprehensive" since the inquiry into President John F. Kennedy's assassination nine years ago.

Local Airline Gets Some Extra Business

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—President Idi Amin has ordered all the 60,000 non-citizen Asians being expelled from Uganda over the next two months to fly out by the locally owned airline, East African Airways.

Amin told troops Monday at Jinja, central Uganda, the decision was made because East African Airways was jointly owned by the governments of Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania, and the three partner states were "duty bound to support it in every possible way".

Tomales Bay Development Again Blocked By County

By MARY LEYDECKER

In a marathon session fraught with legal snarls, the Marin County Planning Commission yesterday first offered some hope to the would-be developer of the Martinelli Farms property but then turned him down again.

Developer Lawrence J. Walters of Inverness was back before the commission again with a proposal for 68 large residential lots on a 260-acre site located at the tip of Tomales Bay on Shoreline Highway.

The proposal has been long fought by conservationists and West Marin residents for varying reasons, including the belief it will be an "enclave for the rich."

Walters's first plans were turned down in May by the board of supervisors, which asked him to move prospective building away from areas designated open space in the proposed countywide general plan.

During a long discussion yesterday Walters's attorney, Leland H. Jordan, told the commission that the county has no open space element in the general plan because it was adopted without proper hearings solely in order to obtain state funds to buy open space.

The commission, unsure of whether this was the case, decided to consider the matter anyway because the same open space is designated in the West Marin interim plan.

Although Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo thought the commission ought to adhere strictly to the interim ordinance (due to expire in 10 days), other commissioners finally voted to change requirements somewhat by swapping open space with Walters in a manner recommended by the planning staff.

The change, however, was not greeted with enthusiasm by Walters, who told the commission it had "just ruined a perfectly good piece of property." He had asked a different swap of open space.

He said his plan no longer could be carried out with the new open space boundaries and that the commission was forcing him to "build another Terra Linda."

Walters, who said he had been working on his plan for about a year, told the commission, "there has been no discussion of good planning — only political pressure" in deciding the matter.

He also said the commission may have "just bought the property" through inverse condemnation, a proceeding which also worried at least one commissioner, William B. Lynch, who said he did not feel "on solid legal ground."

After the open space change was approved, the commission then voted 5-2 (George P. Leonard and Kenneth G. Stevens dissenting) to turn down Walters' proposed map, which now no longer fit the boundaries of open space.

Walters planned not only to appeal the matter to the board of supervisors but apparently also to take court action if denied at that level.

His attorney had a court recorder take down yesterday's lengthy proceedings during which many persons derided the plan as "premature," "too expensive and sophisticated" and "not in keeping with West Marin's rural character."

HAFB Joint Use Talks Ruled Out

The Marin County Planning Commission last night bowed to pressure from Novato residents and decided not to discuss joint civilian-military use of Hamilton Air Force Base.

The matter came up at the end of a 12-hour meeting of the commission, and Margaret B. Azevedo, chairing the session, indicated she wanted to refer the subject to a committee for study and then bring it back to the full commission.

But Commissioner William B. Lynch, a Novato resident, protested that this "is a Novato issue." He cited the strong stand by the Novato City Council, which recently voted to oppose civilian airline operations at the base.

Lynch also was disturbed by a report by Werner Von Gundell, county planning director, which said planning staff did not believe that a maximum of 20 civilian flights a day at the base would have a serious impact on North Marin.

The report also said such flights might encourage light industry in the county, providing a broader tax base.

Mrs. Azevedo, after being told by Novato Mayor F. Wayne Sartain that Novato did not want the planning commission to consider the matter, reluctantly agreed not to.

"I still believe it's of concern to the whole county, however," she said. The commission voted to ask the board of supervisors, who had referred the joint use discussion to the commission, what it wanted done.

The Marin County Aviation Commission last week voted to approve a 20-flight-a-day civilian operation at Hamilton despite protests by Novato residents who fear increased noise, pollution and traffic.

Hilltop Housing Density Cut By County Planners

The Marin County Planning Commission, after listening to complaints from neighbors about a proposed hilltop subdivision near Tiburon, yesterday chopped away at the density requested for the proposed Highlands development.

The commission approved four units to the acre for the 30-acre site overlooking the Bel Aire and Reedlands subdivisions, instead of five units an acre as requested by the developers.

Architect-planner Robert Goetz said he would revise plans for the proposal — earlier to have included 41 single-family residences and 107 townhouses — before presenting the master plan map to the commission Sept. 11.

Residents near the subdivision — Goetz said it had never been designated as open space — objected to increased traffic, sewage problems and school crowding.

Commissioners were impressed, however, only with arguments that the original plan contained too many houses on the hilltop.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

PINEHILL — Adopted a staff recommendation to rezone 1.65 acres on Pinehill Road in Tamalpais Valley to a residential, multiple planned district allowing 15 units per acre. The vacant property formerly was zoned for 32 units per acre.

SHORELINE — Voted to recommend to the board of supervisors that properties along the north side of Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley be rezoned from a higher multiple use to a zoning allowing one unit for each 3,500 square feet. Properties on the south side would be rezoned to allow one unit for each 6,000 square feet.

RESTAURANT — Approved plans for a restaurant and bar, to be called the Galley, on the frontage road off Highway 101 near Rafael Meadows.

DENIAL — Turned down an appeal by Donald F. Walters that he be allowed to subdivide property on Maple Street in Tamalpais Valley into three lots instead of two as directed by the planning director.

DIVISION — Allowed Jack H. Stockstill to split 48 acres west of Bear Valley Road into four lots instead of three but kept road improvement conditions imposed by the planning department.

Pride In Languages

MOSCOW (AP) — Specialized schools in Moscow take pride in their teaching of foreign languages. The news agency Tass, in one of its ventures into English, says: "Many graduates speak English or German so fluently as if they have lived for several years in New York or Hamburg."

'Status Quo' Plan In W. Marin Questioned

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday received and took a dim view of a proposal by the county planning staff aimed at keeping West Marin's villages pretty much the way they are.

The staff report on "village expansion area" had been requested by the commission in connection with Martinelli Farms development proposals.

Suggestions that standards be set to keep the same mix of people as currently reside in the rural villages were greeted with skepticism by Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo.

"Are you saying that "there is a special or magical character (about West Marin) . . . that we must now try to maintain but not allow elsewhere?" she asked Planning Director Werner Von Gundell.

The staff report, whcih emphasized allowing the little towns to develop slowly with housing "in a price range consistent with the income distribution of local residents," also was criticized by Commissioner William B. Lynch.

He said the West Marin area cannot be the home of many low or moderate income persons because it is not close to transportation or many jobs.

Von Gundell countered that many retired persons and those who work in the villages make up a good percentage of the population.

Commissioner George P. Leonard, a West Marin resident, said he would like to see Stinson Beach, for example, "grow into a viable community" with such amenities as a doctor, drug store and bank.

Commissioner John F. West, also a West Marin resident, said that while he agreed that major tourist developments such as golf courses, convention centers and tennis ranches should be discouraged, accommodations for visitors in the villages could be an asset.

Although Mrs. Azevedo and Lynch expressed concern over "using land-use planning to control social and economic factors," some audience members approved this method.

Attorney Paul Kayfetz of Bolinas said public opinion "is running opposite" and that the public "doesn't think planning commissioners are going nearly far enough" and are "playing traditional games with developers."

The commission took no action on the village report but agreed to study it further in a committee. Mrs. Azevedo called it "only a beginning" in defining growth for West Marin's towns.

Robbery Reported

A man in his 20s withlong brown hair and a thick moustache pulled a bandana over his face, walked into the Stop and Go market at 2224 Fourth Street, San Rafael at 9 p.m. yesterday and forced a clerk to give him $143 in cash receipts at gunpoint before speeding away in a car, police reported today.

Accident Rate

TOKYO (UPI) — About 40 persons die every day in traffic accidents in Japan. The National Police Agency, however, reports that the number of traffic fatalities this year has been lower than last year. A total of 7,005 persons had died in traffic accidents at the mid-year mark.

New Round Of Fierce Fighting

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A lone sniper fired Tuesday on British soldiers manning a post near Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital, scene of an overnight gunbattle which the army called the worst in months. The army said possibly 10 gunmen were wounded in an exchange of more than 1,200 rounds during the night.

No one was hit in the mid-morning attack and the fire wasnot returned, an army spokesman said.

The army said two gunmen were definitely hit in the 90-minute overnight battle and claimed another eight as possible hits. There were no army casualties.

Army commanders said snipers fired at the 250-man Broadway post near the hospital from about 10 positions, three of them inside the hospital grounds. One sniper was on the roof of the nurses' home.

"The shooting was nonstop," said Kathleen Lucas, 18,a trainee nurse at the hospital. "We looked out of the windows and every now and again you could see little red sparks going through the sky." The army estimated between 700 and 1,000 rounds were fired by gunmen during the battle which erupted at about 11:30 p.m. Monday. Troops returned an estimated 500 rounds, a spokesman said.

At least five delivery rooms in the maternity unit overlooked the battle scene. A security source said hospital officers and army commanders were checking to see whether any changes were needed in guarding the hospital or in hospital routine because of the incident.

The Royal Victoria Hospital is one of Europe's top hospitals for treatment of heart ailments.

An army spokesman said later that the gunmen had shown a "callous and utter disregard for the lives and safety of patients of the hospital."

As the battle raged, a number of armored cars were called up to evacuate an eightman observation post about 200 yards away at the city end of the M1 motorway. The soldiers were brought out without injury.

The army said the gunfight was the biggest in Belfast in months and the first major one in Ulster since troops invaded Irish Republican Army "no-go" Roman Catholic areas in Londonderry last month.

Figures released by the army during the day showed at least 50 persons have died in Northern Ireland this month, 13 of them in execution style slayings.

Connally 'Job Forecast' Fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The administration's estimate that 300,000 new auto industry jobs would be created by repealing the automobile exise tax has failed to materialize, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, said today.

Vanik said an analysis shows that the repeal cost the treasury $2.6 billion in revenue since it was adopted, but did not increase employment.

Vanik is a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, which supported the administration's proposal last year when it was presented by then Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

A PUZZLED MOTORIST

A puzzled motorist alights from his auto in Portland, Ore., to make sure he is reading the signs on SW 4th Avenue correct. While the one-way sign points off in one direction, another sign below tells him to "keep right." After watching the flow of traffic, the motorist elected to take the "one-way" route.

Safety Council Estimates Toll

CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Safety Council has estimated that between 580 and 680 persons could die in traffic accidents during the three-day Labor Day weekend.

The council said Monday traffic deaths during a nonholiday weekend and "working Monday" would be about 470 "at this time of year."

The Labor Day period last year claimed 616 lives due to traffic accidents. However, the council said there are 3 million more drivers and 4 million more vehicles registered this Labor Day.

The council also estimated there would be between 23,000 and 27,000 persons injured during the holiday, compared to a "normal" 19,000 traffic injuries.

Historic Korean Talks Due To Open

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UPI) —A South Korean Red Cross delegation arrived in North Korea today for talks on reuniting families separated by nearly three decades of conflict on the divided peninsula.

A South Korean government spokesman said the 34-member party arrived in Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, at 1:25 a.m. EDT after the 125-mile drive from Panmunjom in the Demilitarized Zone. The motorcade crossed the "Bridge of No Return" at Panmunjom to enter Communist territory for the first full-scale North-South meeting since the end of the Korean War.

The South Korean delegation arrived in Pyongyang in a convoy of 30 cars, leaving the two-lane highway from Panmunjom to enter the city on the main street that was used as an airstrip by Communist forces during the Korean War.

The Seoul delegation members are to open talks with their Northern counterparts at 9 p.m. EDT today on plans for reuniting Korean families. South Korea has estimated that at least 10 million persons have been separated because of conflict, beginning with World War II and lasting throughout the Korean War of 1950-53.

The South Korean delegation left Seoul for the short drive to Panmunjom, the truce village where the United Nations Command and the Communist North negotiated a cease-fire that ended the Korean War in 1953. The "Bridge of No Return" spans a small stream that separates North and South Korea.

Twenty South Korean newsmen accompanied the delegation in the 30-car convoy provided by the North Koreans. A truckload of personal luggage and packages of gifts for the North Korean Red Cross delegation followed the convoy.

Kim Tai-Hui, vice president of the North Korean Red Cross, welcomed the delegation in the truce village. North Korean students welcomed the South Koreans with small bouquets of flowers.

Kim and the South Korean delegation chief, Lee Bum-Suk, will direct the two sides in the four-day series of meetings. The North Korean Red Cross will send a delegation to Seoul Sept. 13 for a reciprocal meeting of the same length.

South Korean Red Cross sources said the delegation expects little progress from the two meetings but expressed hope that continued contact would bring results. They said the initial contact would be little more than "warming-up exercises."

SHOPPERS' CHOICE — Toy rifles, some selling for less than 25 cents, balloons, basketballs and small rubber balls are some of the items on display in the toy department of Peking's East Wind store. A person also can choose from 17 types of ping pong paddles.

GOVERNMENT STORES

Peking Shopping: Macy's It Isn't

By H.L. STEVENSON
Editor of UPI

PEKING (UPI)—You can choose from 17 types of ping pong paddles in the downtown East Wind Department Store.

But you cannot find a washing machine or clothes dryer or vacuum cleaner.

Across the street, at the Peking Department Store, you can purchase vitamin C tablets a few steps from where accupuncture kits are sold to the "barefoot doctors" of the China countryside or herb remedies are dispensed to the city dweller with heartburn or headache.

"Yes, we sell quite a few vitamins," the smiling woman behind the drug counter tells an American visitor on a busy Saturday afternoon. A bottle of 100 multiple vitamins costs 44 cents.

Both stores are operated by the government, as are the neighborhood stores where cooking utensils fill the windows and the "summer clearance" price is no different than that of December. They charge identical prices and their windows in mid-August were decorated with modest displays of colorful cups and saucers. Macy's and Gimbels would find the stores drab, poorly lighted, the merchandising from an era 20 years or more ago, and most of the goods inferior to those you can buy in Minneapolis or San Antonio or Buffalo.

But to the nearly 8 million people in the Chinese capital, there is a wide choice of wines and cigars; racks of skirts and blouses, some of them in bright hues, and many counters of the drab, baggy gray slacks seen everywhere in the city. Bright silks sell for a song but there are few takers.

There are counters of cameras, alarm clocks and transistor radios but these "luxury" items draw few shoppers. Cotton cloth is rationed in China and at these counters, with many bright patterns as well as white bolts, the crowd was two and three deep. The brighter fabrics are used almost exclusively for the blouses and skirts of the little girls.

The stores display more than a dozen types of the black, buckled slippers Chinese women wear. Not a high heel was in sight. The slippers sell for an average 3.25 yuan, or about $1.43 in the United States.

There are toy counters in each store but the variety is rather skimpy, ranging from $2. for a fancily-dressed plastic doll to about two cents for a small rubber ball.

A 10-year veteran in the People's Liberation Army, his wife and their small son were shopping for a toy rifle. Chin Chin selected a model, one of about four at the counter, for less than 25 cents. His 20month-old son seemed pleased, grinned and waved it in the air. His father did not think it unusual that one of his son's first toys was a rifle. "American children play with guns, don't they?" the father asked.

In the men's department, a sheep-lined canvas coat sells for $56. Trousers range from $2.85 to $16. White shortsleeved shirts sell for about $2.50. Shoes sell for $1.50.

In the sporting goods section, the championship Double Happiness ping pong paddle ("the ones our very best players use," the clerk says) sell for about $4.50 each. Top quality Hong Shuang Xi ping pong balls go for about 25 cents each. There are several brands of basketballs but there are no golf clubs or tennis rackets.

An American shopper in either of the two large stores draws a crowd of curious faces. Stop to talk to a shopper such as the PLA soldier and it borders on a mob scene. The store management moves in quickly to quietly disperse the watching throng.

One of the American women in the party feels the displays of merchandise falls far short of that available back home.

"But if I were Chinese, this would be a great store," she says.

Drug May Aid Heart Surgery

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —A synthetic drug that mimics the human body's own substances, such as adrenalin, may provide a valuable tool to forecast the reactions of patients to open heart surgery, scientists have reported.

Drs. George M. Chun, Myrvin H. Ellestad and William H. Allen of the Memorial Hospital Center said the synthetic drug, called isoproterena, can show the heart's probable reaction to the stress of open heart surgery.

"We use this drug in the intensive care nit when someone has a slow heart rate or is in shock and the doctor wants to make the heart beat faster and harder," Dr. Chun said.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Must Prove Right To Sue

There is a lot of talk these days about crowded courts and trial delay. So much, that you'd tend to believe that "anyone can sue anybody for anything at any time." Many people do believe this — though it's not quite true. Those who sue must show that they're entitled to sue. And that they have a personal stake in the results.

Consider the Forest Club, dedicated to preserving natural resources. Some developers cast covetous eyes on a national park. When they started to move into the valuable land, the Club sued. "We have a general interest in maintaining the aesthetics and ecology of the area," their counsel said.

The developers' counsel retorted, "Who doesn't? But the club hasn't proved it would suffer some specific economic or other loss as a result of our actions."

And the court had to agree with the developers. A "general interest" as a group of citizens isn't enough. This doesn't give "standing to use." The suit should have been brought by those who directly use the area. The club's case was thrown out of court.

Then there were some consumers who didn't like certain milk marketing orders put out by the Secretary of Agriculture. The court said the law stopped legal attacks on the marketing orders. The courts had no authority to "second guess" the Secretary. Only if he failed to follow the procedure prescribed by law, could there be a challenge to his orders. The law protected the farmer by keeping milk at reasonably profitable price levels. This was designed to stop price competition, and consumers were not allowed to complain in court, even though they had to pay allegedly higher prices for milk.

What about "taxpayers" suits? May a taxpayer challenge government action? Yes, if he can show an improper or unconstitutional use of government money. He must first prove he has a direct and significant interest and not just a remote interest. Perhaps the case doesn't involve money. Perhaps it's about a change in the use of government property. For example, a rezoning not involving tax monies. Sorry, no suit.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Soviet Businessmen Finding A Welcome

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

More and more, it is becoming commonplace to see Soviet salesmen and traders making the rounds of Latin America.

They're stopping not only in countries with socialist-oriented governments like Cuba and Chile, but in military-dominated right-leaning nations such as Argentina and Brazil.

On a recent Swissair flight leaving Santiago, there were at least seven Russians aboard, all of whom had been in Chile and all of whom were riding first class.

Three in the group got off in Buenos Aires to peddle manufactured goods while the other four planned to deplane in Sao Paulo to determine what sort of market would be available in Brazil for Soviet-made aircraft equipment.

The trade so far is on a limited scale, other than Cuba's some $200 million this year, double that of last year, but the groundwork is being laid for bigger business in the future.

To date, the Soviets have had their biggest success in Chile, Peru and Bolivia. In each case, with the exception of Bolivia's most recent government, those in power in these nations moved against U.S. business to fill the gap.

There are other reasons for the Soviet effort. Latin Americans generally are intrigued by the possibility of broadening markets for their raw materials and manufactured items, just as they would like to be able to have more sources from which to choose much needed imports of machinery.

Both the Soviet Union and Latin America have been cautiously eyeing each other for years. But there is no trade tradition between the two. Moreover, Soviet products have an unfamiliar ring here. It is taking time to familiarize Latin America with such items as generators, tractors, and the like.

With the U.S. diminishing its aid program to Latin America, however, and with a number of U.S. firms either withdrawing some of their investments or not adding new investment in many countries, Latin American leaders have been looking for a substitute.

This is where the Soviet Union fits in.

Latin America now is receiving a growing number of credits from the Soviet Union to purchase Soviet-made goods. Other than Cuba, outstanding credits now total close to $900 million and should top $1 billion by the end of the year. A projected credit total of $2 billion is expected before the end of 1973.

For the most part, Soviet businessmen deal directly with governments rather than private firms, although there are exceptions. Many of the sales are bulk shipments of tractors to assist on state-run farms, generators for use in dams and electrical plants being set up by governments, and complete factories which when set up will be run by the government.

Among the most recent transactions have been a $60 million fishing port to be built in Peru, $31 million worth of generators to Brazil, and a $20 million tin smelter to Bolivia.

In return, the Soviets are getting Brazilian shoes, coffee, sugar, Peruvian fishmeal and minerals and Colombian coffee.

Chile, which soon will be the recipient of more than $300 million worth of Soviet credits, Soviet tractors, machine parts and other items, is paying with minerals, particularly copper, some quality food products and similar items.

This Soviet-Chilean trade probably will eventually grow to a size that will make it the Soviet Union's largest activity in Latin America.

The Soviet Union would like to build a yearly trade in Latin America of more than $500 million. They are well on the way.

Cylinder Recovered From Sea Bottom

PORT HUENEME, Calif. (UPI)—The Navy says successful operation and recovery of a 100,000 pound cement cylinder from the bottom of the Pacific has "significantly advanced" the prospect of permanent manned underwater structures.

After resting under 600 feet of water for almost a year, the huge instrument-laden cylinder was brought to the surface, and examination indicated its material and design could withstand the strain and corrosion, the Navy said Monday.

Tiburon Council Fights Over Raise For Balmer

A Tiburon city councilman and planning commissioner lashed out at City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer last night for what they labeled an unwarranted request for a 3 per cent cost of living salary hike. (Another Tiburon Council story, page 1.)

After the council unanimously granted 3 per cent raises to all other nonsafety employees, effective July 1, 1972, Planning Commissioner Robert H. Wayne stood up and objected to a similar raise for Balmer.

Before a hushed audience of about 30 people, Wayne said that such a raise would indicate the council's approval of Balmer's performance and there was due cause to question his performance. "I think his performance bears review," said Wayne, "and I recommend that the matter be evaluated in a hearing."

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning, a long-time critic of Balmer, said he agreed with Wayne. "I think a reward at this time is unwarranted. To say that everyone is delighted with his performance is not exactly accurate at this time," said Fanning.

Councilman Allan N. Littman stepped into the debate and asked the council to end its public discussion of the sensitive matter.

"I think the question of a cost-of-living increase is not the appropriate issue to test a charge which amounts to a vote of confidence on the city manager," he said. "If the city manager is not doing his job, that matter ought to be faced head-on," said Littman. Littman stressed that he was not commenting on the adequacy of Balmer's job performance by asking that debate on the subject be shut off.

Councilman Albert Aramburu agreed with Littman that last night's open meeting was not the proper forum to review Balmer's performance.

Mayor Albert H. Sennett and Councilman M. Carlisle Becker served as peacemakers throughout the brief fireworks.

Pointing out the conflicting community pressures that face Balmer, Sennett sympathized saying, "All city managers live in glass houses and are relatively easy to throw stones at."

Becker said to his colleagues on the council, "before we criticize, I ask that each of you test yourselves."

Fanning was unimpressed with the argument that cost-of-living increases should automatically be granted without consideration to the employee's job performance. "If tax payers are not getting their dollar value out of an employee, his salary can be adjusted up or down," said Fanning. "I don't think a raise at this time, regardless of the reason, is warranted, justified or earned in any way."

No specific charge was leveled against the city manager and Balmer made no reply to his critics.

After the debate cooled, the Council approved the 3 per cent cost of living increase for Balmer, with Fanning casting the only negative vote.

Balmer's new salary will be $1,720 per month or $20,640 per year.

Park Plan Is Approved In Tiburon

Pushing ahead its plans to develop a linear shoreline park along Richardson Bay, the Tiburon City Council last night approved a contract with a Sausalito planning firm to prepare a master plan of the area.

The council agreed to hire Sasaki, Walker Associates of Sausalito, to prepare a two-part study in about three months for $6,000 plus expenses.

According to Parks and Recreation Commissioner Gary Gray, who will serve as an informal liason between the planning firm and the city, phase one of the study will consist of an evaluation of all possible uses of the land along the bay. Phase two, he said, will attempt to blend the community's desires for the linear park with the uses that are physically possible.

The firm will study the land along the bay extending from Blackie's Pasture, along the bicycle path, to the Cove Nursery. Some parcles of open space within Belvedere, between San Rafael Avenue and Cove Road, will also be included in the study.

After the first phase of the study, said Gray, the planning consultants will attempt to establish a citizens advisory committee of Tiburon and Belvedere residents to contribute their ideas for the park.

It is expected that the final report will include plans for pedestrian and equestrian paths, a community recreation building, ball fields, tennis courts and multi-purpose areas.

The Tiburon City Council also:

ROUNDHILL ROAD — Approved a request from Leo Bodian to rezone his property at 88 Roundhill Road from RO-2 to RO-2 cluster in preparation for his application for a clustered subdivision of seven or eight homes.

FLOOR SPACE — Passed an ordinance which amends the city's land and structure regulations by reducing the maximum floor space permitted for any building in a multi-family residential zone to 75 per cent of the total area of the parcel.

LOWER RACCOON LANE — Closed Lower Raccoon Lane to all but emergency vehicles by changing the words of a resolution passed in March, 1971, which permitted the city manager to allow vehicles to use the narrow lane for unusual or occasional purposes as he deemed necessary or appropriate.

HORSES — Adopted an amendment to the recently adopted horse regulation ordinance which allows about three Belvedere residents to pasture their horses in Tiburon if they obtain licenses and use permits.

SALARIES — Continued to Sept. 12 consideration of a proposal to move the council's annual review of salary levels to January to allow the revised figures to be included in the coming year's budget. City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer recommended the council make the salary reviews in July.

OPEN SPACE ELEMENT — Agreed to send a vague, generalized statement of the city's plan to preserve open space to Sacramento in order to satisfy the state's requirement that all cities submit an interim open space plan by Aug. 31. Littman opposed sending a detailed open space plan which might bind the hands of the in n the future. The interim report will be accompanied by a letter outlining the city's intention to file its final report within a few months.

AUCTION — Passed first reading of an ordiance which would allow the city of Tiburon, like many other California cities, to auction off lost property valued at less than $250 that has been turned into the police department.

POLICE TRAINING — Passed first reading of an ordinance accepting the requirements of the state penal code relating to the training of policemen. In return, the state will assume 100 per cent of the salaries, lodging and meals for policemen while they are in state training courses.

MEETING — Adjourned to its regular meeting Sept. 12.

3 Million Will Owe In New Tax System

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Payroll withholding won't cover the full state income tax bill year for about 40 per cent of California's taxpayers, the state's chief tax collector says.

That's an estimated three million individuals and families at all income brackets about $3,150 a year.

But Martin Huff, executive officer of the state Franchise Tax Board, said yesterday the current estimate of the effect of payroll withholding of state personal income taxes is that up to $250 million will be over-withheld from five million California taxpayers.

One-third or more of the persons entitled to refunds will be taxpayers who were not on state income tax rolls before, Huff added in an interview.

He said he expects to receive eight million state income tax returns for 1972, a 33 per cent increase over the six million filed this year, and that most of the extra returns will be from persons who did not earn enough in past years to require their filing returns.

That level is $3,150 for single taxpayers and $6,300 for married couples filing joint returns.

With imposition of payroll withholding of state taxes this year, those individuals will be required to file returns to get a refund on the taxes withheld from their paychecks.

Huff said his agency is gearing up to issue millions of refund checks next year for over-withheld taxes. But predicting how any group of taxpayers will fare is "a guessing game," Huff said.

"It's a mixed bag. You have to take every case individually," Huff said. "It isn't what we do, it's what the individual taxpayers do."

He said the average family may find itself either overwithheld — which means a refund is due — or underwithheld by substantial amounts at the end of the year, depending on "hundreds and hundreds of variables" in individual circumstances.

Withholding rates "will produce the correct amount from the person who works all year and uses the standard deduction. But every variable is going to change that. You can't generalize," Huff said.

Moonlighting jobs, working wives, capital gains and other outside income tend to create underwithholding — which means extra taxes will be dur to the state next April 15 — while job layoffs and special deductions tend to create overwithholding.

A pay increase during the year or overtime earnings can throw off the tables, too, either up or down, Huff said.

For example, he said, a family of four with $10,000 income this year would owe $63 in state income taxes. If that income goes to one indivual in the family, $60 would be withheld during the year.

But if the husband earns $7,000 of that and the wife $3,000 in a parttime job, withholding could be as low as $5 during the year, while the family would still owe the same $64 state income tax.

At the $20,000 income level, Huff gave this example:

A family of four taking standard deductions would owe $1514 in state income taxes. Withholding from a single worker earning $20,000 in equal amounts over the year would total $494, leaving $20 due next April. But if the wife earned $6,000 of that family's income and claimed just one exemption, total taxes withheld would be only $250, leaving another $264 due next April.

Housing Aid Plan Vetoed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed a sweeping low-interest housing program designed to help Californians in the $7,500-$12,000 salary bracket purchase their own home.

The measure by Senate leader George Moscone, D-San Francisco, would have created a nine-member state commission to issue revenue bonds and provide low-interest, long-term construction money for developers.

With the state backing, developers could have written long-term loans at interest rates of 2 per cent below market conditions for purchasers of moderate and low-cost housing.

In his veto message Monday, Reagan said the revenue bonds and notes "could adversely affect not only the state's credit rating but could affect the sale of bonds already authorized for other purposes."

Pilot Programs To Curb Abuses

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — Pilot projects to combat alcohol abuse and cigarette smoking will be initiated by the National Parent-Teacher Association at the beginning of the school term this fall. Local P-TAs, councils and districts are continuing programs in smoking and health, and many will institute prevention programs on alcohol abuse, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Mallorey, national P-TA president.

"With the help of government funds we are undertaking an experiment in which young people will be encouraged to develop their own preventive and control programs in smoking and alcohol abuse," said Mrs. Mallory.

From their own efforts and initiative we hope to gain clearer insights into causes of personal choice behaviors and how they may be dealt with more effectively in the family, the school and the community," she added.

THE NATIONAL Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, a unit of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has provided funds to work toward solutions for the growing problems related to alcoholism in young people. It has joined the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, also a unit of HEW to launch an education-information program.

This cooperative venture marks a milestone in relations between the P-TA and the two government agencies.

"Such a program will enable parents and youth to work together to combat cigarette smoking and alcohol abuse," Mrs. Mallory pointed out.

The new program comes at a time when the problem of alcohol abuse among young people is increasingly being recognized as serious. Seventy-five per cent of high school students now drink alcoholic beverages, a Gallup poll reveals. Fifty-seven per cent more admit that they have more than once drunk too much. Seventh and eighth-graders are drinking cheap wine by the pint, and grade schools are increasingly requesting experts to come and talk to their students about alcoholism.

Dr. Morris B. Chafetz, director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, doubts that teenage drinking is a new form of youth rebellion.

"Most drinking problems rise as young people attempt to copy the drinking behavior of older peers and adults," he told the American Medical Association at its recent convention in San Francisco.

"THE USE of alcohol in America is here to stay," Dr. Chafetz asserted. "We adults must help young people learn to treat drinking in a socially responsible manner, if they choose to drink. And we must teach them to take a responsible attitude toward their peers who choose not to drink."

1972-73 is the first year of funding for the National P-TA program in alcohol education. Mrs. Carolyn Hendrick, who has served as the national P-TA's coordinator of smoking and health since 1966, will also direct the new program.

CELEBRATION DELAYED

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Satmary of Larkspur were married May 30, 1922. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday at a recpetion hosted by their daughters, Mrs. Joan Hadley of Fairfax, Mrs. Muriel DeLasaux of Honolulu and Lynette Satmary of San Rafael, at their home. The celebration was postponed because Mrs. Satmary has been ill. The couple, who have lived in Marin most of their married life, have eight grandchildren.

AN IMPORTANT WORD

'Reach To Recovery' Story

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Reach is the most important word, because a woman must not only reach physically in exercising but she must reach out to family and friends."

So says Terese Lasser, whose "Reach to Recovery" program helped thousands of women who have undergone surgery for breast cancer.

Wearing a well-fitting pink dress with a colorful scarf and using sweeping gestures to emphasize her points, Mrs. Lasser talks with ease and frankness about the aftermath of her own mastectomy in 1952.

"I started asking questions and unfortunately there weren't any answers," she recalled. No answers to practical questions, such as what kind of physical therapy to start, where to get a breast form and when, how and if she could return to an active life.

AND NO answers to even more pressing emotional questions, such as her relationship with her husband and how to regain her confidence as a woman.

"I sat down at the typewriter and poured out what I felt inside of me, my personal experience," she recalled. "You know you're still living, but what kind of a life? I thought if I'm going through all this there must be other women who are doing the same thing.

"Then I started finding out what exercises would help me the most, how to cope with the problems of dress and wardrobe adjustment and where to shop for an artificial breast form — I didn't even know they were called prostheses."

The knowledge thus gained was incorporated into her "Reach for Recovery Manual," a guide given free to mastectomy patients. The first printing was financed by her husband, the late J. K. Lasser, author of "Your Income Tax" and other books.

Now Mrs. Lasser has written a book, "Reach to Recovery," in collaboration with William Kendall Clarke. It tells the story of her one-woman campaign to aid other mastectomees. The Reach to Recovery Program was integrated three years ago into the American Cancer Society.

A REACH to Recovery Volunteer, who has herself undergone a mastectomy and had extensive training, visits a patient at her attending surgeon's invitation. The visitor will be perfectly groomed, will be wearing a clinging dress and will find an excuse to pull down a window shade or reach for something to show that her movement is unhampered.

She brings along a kit that includes a coated rope and rubber ball for exercises, a temporary breast form, a reference list of sources for prostheses, the manual and other brochures. She shows the patient how to do exercises — and talks.

"They hang on to every word you say —they don't want you to go," declared Mrs. Lasser.

"Our volunteers are marvelous. Their brush with cancer has made them realize life is so wonderful and they want to repay their good fortune."

Mrs. Lasser, who is known as "Ted," admits to a deep faith of her own. "I don't need a church or anything over my head. But I feel the Lord chose me as an instrument —otherwise how could I have the energy to do what I'm doing?" asked the woman who traveled 150,000 miles last year telling her story, speaking to professional groups, helping to train volunteers and reassuring mastectomees that they can resume their former way of life.

"Anything a woman did before, with rare exceptions, she is able to do as well if not better," she said. "And that includes being a wife and mother and friend, as well as indulging in all activities.

"AS SOON AS she's fitted properly, nobody will know she has had the operation," Mrs. Lasser added. "But I personally have found that if you speak of it easily and casually everyone will accept it.

"Men don't marry centerfold women," she said. "They marry women for other reasons. But the man needs to reassure a woman and pamper her with love."

Mrs. Lasser has received numerous honors and awards, but she considers her greatest reward is "to see a woman's face when I leave her, especially the woman who didn't want to see me in the first place and then can't bear to have me leave."

Mrs. B. Ihlenfeldt Is New DAR Regent

Mrs. Bruce Oran Ihlenfeldt of Corte Madera has been elected regent of the El Marinero Chapter, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

She has been a member of the local chapter for seven years, and has served as second vice regent.

Some of the organization's purposes cited by Mrs. Ihlenfeldt are "To perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence. To cherish, maintain, and extend the institutions of American freedom, to foster true patriotism, and love of country, and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty."

This year El Marinero chapter plans programs reflecting the work and objectives of the organization, with special emphasis on Marin County history.

To join the society an applicant must be 18 years of age or older, and a lineal descendant through a valid marriage of an ancestor who aided in achieving American independence, according to the new regent.

Service projects include maintenance of several schools; aid to American Indians, including scholarships; citizenship training; maintenance of the DAR Museum in Washington D.C., and a conservation program. They also preserve and mark historic sites, including a location in Sonoma which honors a Revolutionary soldier.

Mrs. Ihlenfeldt's husband is retired Army lieutenant colonel.

They moved to Marin County eight years ago from Williamsburg, VA. They have two daughters, Mrs. Donald R. Tiedtke of Newport Beach, and Mrs. Allen R. Carney of Princeton, W Va., and four grandchildren.

BAVARIAN TRADITION

Fashion Time At Olympic City

By JOYCE HOFFMANN

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Summer in this 1972 Olympics City is a time when women of all ages don their dirndl dresses — the durable Bavarian national costume that has survived changing fashion trends for nearly 600 years.

Three principal dirndl styles have emerged from the dozens of village costumes originally worn by the Bavarian peasants. They all combine a jumperlike outfit with a snug-fitting bodice and a gathered skirt. The outfit is usually worn with a low-cut blouse and is always topped with an apron.

Today the dress — usually minilength — is seen more often in Bavarian cities, in offices, beer gardens and market stalls, than in the farming villages where its traditions originated. its popularity has made the dirndl a symbol of Germany throughout the world.

Versatility is the key to the dirndl's survival, and one of the more recent adaptations in the formal evening costume in velvet and brocade. Floor-length and midistyles are appropriate attires for cocktail parties, concerts and gallery openings.

THE DIRNDL wedding dress, too, is still a popular choice of Bavarian brides, but pastel shades are usually preferred to the conventional whites.

Olympic hostesses wear the dress as their official uniform; to the dismay of many, their outfits have high-collared blouses, rather than the more revealing style.

In addition, the dirndl has long been the uniform worn by waitresses in many Bavarian restaurants — a source of confusion for some tourists. One bewildered young American recently asked, "Do all the girls I see in those dresses work as waitresses?"

Their popularity is hardly confined to the young or to native Bavarians. Although the dirndl — so bound in Bavarian history and tradition — is a strange sight on the American fashion scene, U.S. tourists abound in the many Munich shops that sell the outfits.

"They are just beautiful," an American woman commented as she selected a dirndl is a Munich clothing store. But she confessed she was looking for a "modified" dirndl; her husband had warned her that she would "look like a milk maid" in the real thing.

ANOTHER AMERICAN shopper said, "I think they are gorgeous," and wondered, "Will I look like a German" in the outfit she was about to buy.

Mrs. Marta Drebenstedt, head buyer in the dirndl department at Loden Frey — the world's largest store for Bavarian wear — has been helping American women choose dirndls for many years, she said. "But they used to buy more expensive styles, today they seem to be more price-conscious."

A saleswoman in another store said she often has difficulty fitting American customers. Explaining that the dirndls are cut for well-endowed German women, she said, "Some Americans are just too flat to fill-out our styles."

Putting Falsities To Rest

By AP Newsfeatures

True or false.: The child with perfect eyesight is the best student.

A child usually is born with "normal" eyes.

Dim lights damage the eyes.

All are false, according to Dr. Robert Pfeifer, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., ophthamologist and consultant to the Society for Visual Care, who nevertheless agrees that the above are common "old wives' tales" in the field of vision.

According to Pfeifer, the nearsighted child has greater reading ability then the child with perfect eyesight. Also, according to the ophthalmologist, most babies, instead of being born with "normal" eyes are farsighted, and — much to most people's surprise — contact lenses were sketched by Leonardo da Vinci in 1508 A.D.

Pfeifer also points out that reading does not cause myopia near-sightedness, and says they eye is able to adapt to the intensity of dim lights.

Other misconceptions Pfeifer puts to rest are:

The eye is removed from the socket in many operations on the eyeball. "It can never be removed," he says, "as the mobility is limited by the free play in the large optic nerve which is attached to the posterior pole of the eyeball, as well as multiple attachements of muscles and nerves."

An acutely infected eye should be patched. "Not so — the patch increases the temperature of the eye, creating a better media for bacterial growth," says Pfeifer. "The patch also decreases the flow of the tears which act as a mechanical washing of the eye and decreases the anti-bacteriostatic effect of certain products which are present in the tears themselves.

Eye cups are a safe and sound way to irrigate the eye. Watch out, says Pfeifer. "The danger of eye cups, due to their not being sterile, far outweighs their usefullness in the ordinary treatment and comfort of the eyeball.

Yours eyes are fine if you have 20-20 vision. Not so, according to this expert. "Twenty twenty vision only means you can see at 20 feet what you ought to see.

Female Carpenter Says 'I Kind Of Like The Pay'

DALLAS (AP) — Darlene Wisdom, 23, of Ferriday, La., has been sworn into Carpenters Local 198 as the only dues-paying woman carpenter in the city.

"I kind of like the pay," she said of her $4.28 an hour job. "It's a good trade, too. Some day, when I get good enough, I want to build my own wooden house somewhere up in the mountains."

So far she has suffered no injury, not even a blister.

"But I'm just waiting to get my finger smashed," she said.

Darlene said the men on the job have gotten used to having her around.

"Sometimes delivery men stop and gawk at me, as if I belonged somewhere else, but I don't pay them any mind," she said. "I really don't have time to stop and talk. My job keeps me pretty busy."

Mrs. Quinn Is New Head Of Nurses

Mrs. Charles B. Quinn of San Anselmo is the new president of the Marin Nurses Association. She has been a member for 20 years.

Membership is open to all registered nurses licensed to practice in California. Continuing education in the field of nursing is a must, according to Juliette Quinn, as is keeping up with new techniques.

The wife of Capt. Charles B. Quinn, a retired master mariner, Mrs. Quinn is a native of South Dakota. The Quinns have five grown children and have lived in Marin County for 20 years.

Mrs. Quinn is also a member of the Marin County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Folds For Storage

New children's furniture folds flat for storage. Made of aluminum and heavy gauge vinyl the furniture includes desks, tables, chairs. There also is a desk-and-chair combo with slate top desk.

Designing With The Insides Out

Industrial designer Pamela Waters is designing an office building in New York City which will put "the insides out," according to Women's Wear Daily.

She is using all the functional elements of the building to decorate the lobby and elevators. Decor in the lobby uses natural waffle ceilings with air conditioner ducts exposed overhead. Elevators are adorned with cushioned sides and a convex, mirrored ceiling. The control panel, covered in clear plastic, reveals the inner mechanism. Glass portholes in the elevator show graphics painted on the inside of the elevator shaft to give people the feeling of ascension and descension.

For Sponge Bath

For a sponge bath, fill a sink or basin with warm water. Use a washcloth to soap and scrub all over, starting with face and working down.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Examples Of New Slang Usage; Crunchy, Burn, Dig Up And Bad

RAP:

Reading your column on outdated slang compelled me to write. You asked for new samples, since the fadeout of the drug and hippie goodies.

Those things were done to death, so we made some adaptions to "cosmic" words, like Groovy is now "gravy-baby"; far out is "farm out"; outasite: "out-a-state," off the wall," "inside out," "out in the distance"; knock it off; "narc it arf"; right on: "left arm."

Anyone can do it. Instead of saying "Make like a nut and bolt," or "Make like a tree and leave," I will now make like a banana and split. — M.M.G.

HELEN AND SUE:

Crunchy: great
Burn: to improvise
Dig up: listen
Tuff tootie: too bad
Bad: really sharp

But I don't think "cool" will ever go out of style. — JEANNIE

DEAR RAP:

When we'd rather say a word that would get us in trouble with big-eared parents, we say things like "Oh, peanut butter!" "Fudgecycle!" "Sone of a Pickle!" "Oh, She-e-e-rman!" etc.

Fun, and better than getting your mouth washed out with soap. — BARB

RAP:

Samples of new slang? Some of us have taken to using the third person, referring to oneself as "she" or "he," and to each other, instead of "you," as "he," "she," "they," "them." Believe us, it's a trip!

Many of our statements end with "or what." Referring to myself, I'd say, "She's tired, or what." (Not "I'm tired.")

"Oof," "Doof," "Skidoop," are kind of sighs, or what.

Then there are always the old faithfuls, like "funky," "for real" (he agrees), "baddest" (the best), "Much, man, much" (what of it?), etc.

We're really trying to retire "you know," but it's, you know, hard.

Welp, (got that from you, Sue), there are more, but I've gotta roll. — C.P.

GANG:

Around here a new thing is "spelling it out," and always wrong. As in: "Be quick—q-w-i-k—quick." Or "I almost puked—p-w-k-t—puked." Or "That's cool—k-u-l—cool." Or "You're dumb—d-u-m—dumb."—SUE

NOTE FROM HELLEN: — As if "speling techrs" didn't already have enough trouble!

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

You champion slang. For shame! The purpose of language is to communicate. Slang distorts. Under the guise of "progressive individualism" we build a Tower of Babel. The old and young are split by a language barrier. Sometimes students invent new words for a "cover," so they can close parents and teachers out. Actually, slang originated for this purpose — it was used by the underworld to describe crimes — a gig, a trick, a "hit," etc.

I am dismayed and frightened by the ignorance of the average college student. He spends time inventing "pseudo intellectual" slang, and throwing around four-letter obscenities, but the beautiful English language is foreign to him. I find that I must define common words in order to communicate.

Instead of telling them slang is a "vital part of the language," inspire them to learn the good, solid words in the dictionary, Helen and Sue! — MRS. H.S.

DEAR MRS. S.:

Sorry, we STILL think slang is the spice in the stew . . . and we DON'T consider the "average college student" ignorant! — HELEN AND SUE

Girls Sneak Around For Their Sneakers

With teen-age girls the "in" thing is — buying their sneaks (as sneakers are known) in the boys' department . . . the sneaks for boys are sturdier than those for girls and also a lower-size in the boys' line is equivalent to larger sizes in the girls' line.

A salesman for a major maker of sneaks says this lower size marking has nothing whatsoever to do with the girls crossing over into the boys' department.

Roasting Almonds

If you want to roast almonds after blanching, place the nuts one deep in a shallow baking pan. Heat the nuts in a 375-degree oven until lightly brown — this may take as long as 20 minutes. Stir the nuts a couple of times during the roasting to prevent scorching.

Pants Popular

Pants will continue to be popular for both evening and daytime wear. Women like their casual comfort and flattering style, especially when teamed with layered tops and fitted jackets.

Shoes favored to wear with the season's pants are platform wedges and varying height, or a medium-high heel. They offer front interest with a tie detail or a buckle trim, and they are of textured leather or suede.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Think of Entry Hall As Precious Space

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Entry halls are almost an anachronism when you consider today's lifestyles. Presumably the entry hall once provided a homeowner with a buffer zone between the living or "receiving" rooms and the front door. It was where the calling card was deposited upon a silver tray.

The telephone has changed all that, yet the entry hall still can perform a privacy function even when it is designed as a contiguous part of the main living area. The important thing is to think of the entry hall as a precious space, one you're paying for. Don't let it go to waste with empty, meaningless furnishings imitating the calling-card era.

Have a storage problem? Maybe there's a way some extra shelving can be organized in the entry. Looking for a home work desk? Again the entry is little used, so why not install a simple desk and chair and large bulletin board for clippings, notes and small artworks?

ONE EXECUTIVE used her high-rise apartment entry hall for needed linen, blanket and china storage. She had rented a bachelor apartment in one of the newer buildings, and had accumulated quite a nice array of fine linen and sterling silver from her family. And she likes using these heirlooms, even in the one-room apartment.

She bought six or seven tall metal shelf units, the used variety that office furniture companies often have for sale at a discount. They are ugly, but have open sides and about five shelves each. She placed these along two walls of her entry, then created tall fabric-covered screens put together with piano hinges. Whenever she needs to reach for her sterling or fine china, she just folds the screen out of the way. For a better looking storage solution, she often saves large boxes and covers them with colorful wallpaper or fabric. Then smaller items, such as napkins, hand towels and bath supplies can be filed within a decorative box. It also saves laundry bills and dust-gathering.

ALL DAY WORKSHOP

Volunteers For St. Vincent's

Take Tears Out of Volunteers was the theme for the all day workshop held Friday at St. Vincent's School for Boys in San Rafael.

Staff and volunteers from 45 agencies attended the workshop sponsored by the Volunteer Action Center of the Volunteer Bureau of Marin County, the Marin Community Mental Health Services and the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Represented were drug abuse agencies, hospital auxiliaries, poverty agencies, libraries, arts groups, schools and other agencies that use volunteers.

Speakers included Jerry Lucey, a humanities teacher from the Tamalpais High School District. Lucey spoke on the importance of identifying needs of the volunteer.

He told the men and women that a main factor in getting people to act responsibly is to demonstrate trust.

"The volunteer must be an integral part of the organization," he said. "Staff must be willing to give the volunteer a piece of the institution. He must be aware of the total program. In order for the volunteer to work effectively he must understand the goals and inner workings of the system.

"Unfortunately institutions tend to be covert, because they fear they will get a bad name if they discuss internal affairs which may reveal failures. The volunteer must understand that everyone makes mistakes or he will feel isolated and inconsequential. His worth as a human being must be clearly recognized and affirmed.

According to Lucey, staff volunteer relationships are complicated by our reluctance to deal directly with people.

Following Lucey's talk a demonstration of the value of music in working with the handicapped was presented by Lenny Hart and Liz Tops.

The afternoon was devoted to small workshops covering the topics: Interview, Growth and Development, Needs of Volunteers and Needs of Agencies.

Bed Linens Come In Wild Designs

Bed linens are fashion-designed, permanent press and brilliantly hued. What more could a homemaker ask? Soil release finishes. Newest entries on the linen market have that feature.

The manufacturer says it's almost impossible to stain such sheets permanently. Everything comes out in the wash.

Royal Silver Wedding Plans Near Completion

LONDON (UPI) — Plans for the silver wedding celebrations of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip on Nov. 20 are nearing completion.

It is expected the royal couple will drive through the central London streets in an open state carriage to acknowledge the congratulations of the people and also attend a service of thanksgiving either at St. Paul's Cathedral or Westminster Abbey, where they were married 25 years ago.

At Buckingham Palace there will be a big family party with music and dancing.

At the London Museum in Kensington Palace there already is a special Royal Wedding exhibit for which the queen is lending her beautiful white satin gown with its fairy-like embroideries comprising hundreds of pearls and other precious stones.

Bridal gowns worn by Princess Margaret, Princess Alexandra and earlier royals such as Queen Victoria and Princess Charlotte also will be on view.

Civic authorities in London and throughout Britain will be making the Queen commemorative gifts.

Look, Feel Of Wool

A new lightweight fabric has the look and feel of wool and the manufacturer says it is especially suitable for outerwear and sports clothes. The machine washable woven acrylic comes in a variety of jacquard patterns and colors.

DANCE TEAM — Scott Fetterly and Karen Keller of Novato demonstrate the grace and precision that have won them a chance to compete next month in Australia for a world championship in ballroom dancing. They devote at least eight hours a week to perfecting their artistry in a form of dance not recently popular with the young, but which Fetterly and Miss Keller say is due for a comeback.

Stock Exchange Has New Chief

NEW YORK (UPI)—James J. Needham rang the bell that traditionally signals the start of trading on the New York Stock Exchange. That was his first act Monday as full time, salaried chairman and chief executive officer of the exchange.

The exchange's board of directors picked Needham, 46, this month to fill the new position.

PAIR SEEK WORLD CROWN

New Life In Novato For An Old Dance

By FRANK FARRARA

Two youthful Novatans who have been gliding across dance floors together for five years can see the day when ballroom dancing will be part of the Olympic Games.

"I think in 1980 it will make it," said Scott Fetterly, 19.

"I've been told it takes seven years to get it up there," said his partner, 18-year-old Karen Keller.

Fetterly and Miss Keller, who will represent the U.S. in worldwide championships in Sydney, Australia, in October, may seem out of step in a time of rock music and dances that resemble spasms, but they don't mind.

"Ballroom dancing is coming back," Miss Keller said.

Although ballroom dancing has faded in recent times and few ballrooms remain, the Novato pair enthusiastically work at mastering the intricate steps that flourished before their time.

They practice the waltz, the fox-trot, tango — dances that filled ballrooms in past years.

They drifted into ballroom competition, Fetterly said. "We started in cotillion together."

Miss Keller, who started in ballet, and Fetterly, who started in tap dancing, began dancing in the fifth-grade cotillion.

After watching their teachers, Roy Hinton and Rhonda Pick of San Francisco, perform, they decided about five years ago to compete in ballroom dancing, Fetterly said.

"We have two lessons, one hour each, Tuesdays and Fridays, and practice about six hours a week," he said. "It's a pretty important part of life."

Other social activities go by the boards under their schedule, but "I don't feel I'm missing too much," Fetterly added.

They have competed on the West Coast, in Canada and in Chicago, mainly against older couples. This year they were selected by the U.S. Amateur Ballroom Dancers Association to be representatives from the west in the worldwide championships, selected on the basis of points accumulated in competition.

In Australia, competing against representatives of 25 countries, they will dance in the latin competition, which includes rhumba, samba and cha-cha.

The problem is that in order to get to Australia, the dancers need $1,000 each in travel expenses and time is dwindling because they are scheduled to arrive there Sept. 22.

A special fund has been set up, the Overseas Travel Fund, 1130 Ferris Drive, to received tax deductible donations, and Wide Wide World Travel Agency in Novato recently started off the fund with a $50 donation.

Novato Dance Club will hold a ballroom dance at 9 p.m. Sept. 9 at IDESI Hall in Novato to help raise travel money for the dancers.

Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fetterly of 1455 Cambridge Street, is studying accounting at Empire College of Commerce in Santa Rosa.

Miss Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Keller of 1130 Ferris Drive, will enter Empire College this fall and study to be a legal secretary. She has been working this summer as a clerk typist with the Novato Department of Public Works.

"Some day we may want to dance professionally," Fetterly said. "But it's hard to be a professional in America."

Ballroom dancing is "really big in England and in foreign countries," he said "it's just not big here."

Reagan Vetoes Bills For School Programs

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan, saying it is "imperative" that all California children master English, has vetoed two bills creating bilingual, bicultural programs.

The programs were designed to help school children from families where the primary language was a foreign dialect — particularly Spanish or Chinese.

"I believe it is imperative that California's children obtain proficiency in the use of the English language —the primary communication tool of our society," Reagan said Monday in both veto messages.

"A person's failure to become proficient in English is a serious handicap to both educational and financial achievement."

Senate leader George Moscone, D-San Francisco, authored one of the bills appropriating $5 million for the bilingual programs. A rival measure by Sen. Walter W. Stiern, D-Bakersfield, would have alloted $1.8 million for the programs.

Moscone said Reagan's veto was "an inadequate answer to the urgent need to assist children whose principal training has been in another language.

"The governor has seen fit to perpetuate a system where, for instance, the brightest Spanish speaking students are sometimes judged mentally retarded and treated as such," Moscone said.

"The governor seems to say, 'English is the only language that will be spoken here," Moscone added.

Reagan Veto Stops Bill On Council

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed a bill replacing the 30-man California Council on Criminal Justice with a five-man, fulltime record.

The action came as a surprise to the bill's author, Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, who figured the governor had no real choice but to sign the measure.

Carefully worded budget language adopted by the legislature and signed by Reagan said if Crown's bill did not become law the council would be scrapped.

In the unlikely event that the bill was defeated by the legislature or vetoed, Democrats said, the state would lose millions of dollars worth of federal crime control funds funneled through the agency each year.

But it apparently isn't going to work that way.

Democrats want to abolish the council because it is "an abject failure" and unwieldy. Republicans defend the council's record and have blocked attempts to scrap it.

The chink in the Democratic plan appeared to be that the budget language said the current council would continue if the proposed board was not found in compliance with U.S. Department of Justice regulations.

Charles Lauer, a Justice Department official, wrote the council June 21, advising that the proposed Crown would not be acceptable.

With that assurance, Reagan vetoed the bill.

G.M. Offers Option —New Rotary Engine

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp., after months of speculation, announced Monday that buyers of 1975 Chevrolet Vegas are expected to have the Wankel rotary engine as an option.

GM Chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg said work on the much-heralded rotary engine "has proceeded to the point where a commitment will be made to limited manufacturing facilities and tools."

The Wankel has been the subject of much fanfare in recent years because of its unusual design, and its potential for being loaded with pollution control devices without taking up any more room than conventional piston engines.

Unlike the conventional up-and-down action of a piston engine, the rotary engine is free of the jerky movements which often make piston engines run roughly. The engine also has fewer parts which its proponents say will make it easier to clean up emissions.

GM has agreed to pay $50 million over a five-year period to Wankel licensing companies, including the U.S. firm of Curtis-Wright.

Until Monday's announcement, research and development of the engine as a possible replacement for the present internal combustion engine was handled by the special product development group at the GM technical center.

The development responsibility has now been shifted to Chevrolet motor division.

"Engine development and manufacturing processing work will continue and, if this progresses as anticipated, public introduction of the engine as an option in the Vega line may be in about two years," Gerstenberg said.

Ford Motor Co. signed a licensing agreement with the patent holders. Chrysler has steered clear of the engine.

12th Mozart Festival In Mill Valley

Stolte Grove near Mill Valley will be the scene Sunday of the 12th annual Mozart Festival presented by Bach-to-Mozart a group under the direction of Raymond Duste.

The program, beginning at 1 p.m., will feature soprano Marie Gibson in an aria from The Magic Flute and bass Robert Bernard in "O, Wie Will Ich Triumphieren" from Abduction from the Seraglio. Both will be heard in the Duet "La Ci Darem La Mano" from Don Giovanni.

Instrumental works listed for the concert include Concerto in D for trumpet, oboes, and strings by Johann Friedrich Fasch, Beethoven's Septet in E-Flat for strings, winds, and horn; and Mozart's Divertimento in C-Minor, K. 388, for winds and horns.

Proceeds from voluntary donations support the Candlelight Concert Series in its new home at the Del Mar School auditorium in Tiburon.

Chinese Computers 'Shock' Americans

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)— Prof. Thomas E. Cheatham Jr., director of the Center for Research in Computing Technology at Harvard, was part of a group of computer experts who toured China this summer. They found that Chinese computers are far more advanced than American experts had thought.

"This really shocked us," he said. "It puts them ahead of the Russians in this technology."

Supplies Stolen

Czechs Don't Talk About 1968 Invasion Any More

By ERIC BOURNE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

It was just one of a nonstop stream of news sheets and picture protests which poured off an underground press in the first tense days of occupation.

On one was overprinted a single Czech word with a question mark: "Proc?" (Why?) On the other, the same word in Russian for the benefit of often-bewildered tank crews into whose hands copies of the card were thrust.

These days, four forlorn years after, Czechs rarely discuss 1968. "There's not much point, is there?" one "Liberal" friend from Prague asked recently. "There was little we could do then and less still today."

Few Czechs talk politics at all. "Almost everyone I know," my friend said, "switches on TV only for the straight newscasts or when an old, popular film is showing."

If some do recall the months under Alexander Dubcek in 1968, talk usually comes back to that simple question: "Why?"

It may be clear to outside, uninvolved observers of all that happened in 1968. But Czechs still find it hard to comprehend why the Russians smashed a Communist-led reform movement, backed by a predominantly Communist, Marxist-minded intelligentsia, as well as by the vast majority of the workers, whose program was designed not to topple a Communist regime but to humanize it.

So today one may again ask, why? Why these recent trials of party functionaries, historians, lecturers, journalists, and others from the "progressive" stream of 1968? Almost all were party members or close sympathizers.

Some were victims of its Stalinist period and yet stayed loyal to an idea. None wanted to remove the system, only to improve it.

Popular attitudes, the trials — both reflect the clash of a new idea with an old system.

Visitors to Prague — the city this month is thronged with West Germans, French, Americans and almost everyone else in what looks like a record tourist season — are astonished by its air of normality.

Living standards have risen substantially over the past year.

"The market has been remarkably well supplied this summer," a Czech friend writes.

Shops brim with good. People have more spending money. There has been some spurt in new housing. More cars are reaching the ordinary consumer than ever before.

The government claims steady growth in industrial output, a rise in exports, and a generally favorable foreign-trade balance. Its program has been "consolidation."

Some consolidation there has been on the economic front after the chaos of 1968 and 1969. But not as much as official reports suggest.

Production rises, but so all too often do production costs. Many managers still are concerned with quantity before quality. It makes plan fulfillment easier. In many plants there is poor labor discipline, waste of time and materials, and a grave indifference to any but personal interests.

"People are doing quite well," my friend explains. "They just feel no incentive to do more, or work harder as the regime needs them to if the country really is to get moving, say, like East Germany."

It is an old, old Czech way of countering troubles. One saw it post-Munich, post-1948 (the year of Communist takeover) through the Stalinist 1950s, and now again, post-1968. Despair, resignation, political apathy, acquiescence — but frustrating authority by appearing to comply while really doing only enough to get by, caring only about one's personal and one's family survival.

For a brief period under Dubcek, the Czechs began to forget Schweik, their traditional "little man" defense against authority. Now, willy-nilly, they are back with him again.

Though the present trials might give an impression to the outside world of widespread resistance — an impression that the regime is sitting on a powder keg — that is not so.

But only the party leadership knows precisely why the trials were mounted just now. Last year's party congress had suggested a move toward conciliation, as in Hungary a few years agter the 1956 uprising.

The party, Husak offered, would take back purged members who wished now to cooperate. Little has been heard on this theme lately.

Instead, in mid-July began the proceedings which since have involved nearly 50 persons, many of them well-known personalities who consistently opposed the legalization of the 1968 Soviet intervention and all that "legalization" has since imposed on the country.

Has Husak's reputed moderation finally been overcome by the hard-liners who have always demanded penal sanctions against the reformers from Dubcek down? In other words, has he failed in the pledge which was his article of faith from the start — that there would be no political trials and that no one would be charged for political opinions or for activities in 1968-69?

The substance of the indictments is flimsy enough. The "subversion" alleged in many cases involved no more than leaflets reminding Czechoslovaks of their constitutiocal right not to vote prior to last November's elections.

But, given the ideological-state priorities embodied in Communist law and in a Communist judiciary, the trials are formally speaking, legal enough for Husak still to claim that only those guilty of illegal acts in the "normalization" (1970-71) period are, in fact, being tried.

The motivation, according to informed observers in Prague, is implicit in allegations that some of the accused had links with Czech exiles in the West.

The arrests began last November, and it is significant that investigations in these cases seem only to have been completed following the detention of an Italian Communist journalist in Prague in January.

Allegedly, he was a courier between Czech dissidents like Milan Huebl (rector of the party college under Dubcek) — now sentenced to 6½ years in prison — and prominent Czech emigres in Rome.

This link has been particularly galling to Prague because the Rome emigres are supported by the Italian Communist Party. The latter has never abated its original opposition to the August invasion and now has aptly said that if the present proceedings against the reformers are not political, they still amount to "judicial persecution."

The trials, therefore, are intended to eliminate an active opposition, which apparently leaked embarrassing information to such Communist critics, and so also to deter continuing obstruction of the regime's bid for "respectability" and acceptance. They are hoped to be a warning demonstration that opposition doesn't pay.

Given the whole context, the sentences — except in several instances — are relatively mild. Many are suspended against future good behavior.

Rude Pravo disclosed Aug. 16 that Czech President Ludvik Svoboda had intervened with a "clemency" move to halt further proceedings against 10 young defendants still awaiting trial in the Brno "subversion" case — a first sign that adverse foreign comment might be causing second thoughts in Prague despite the regime's earlier angry reactions.

No outsider can know whether the Russians had any special part in prompting the trials. According to one well-placed Communist East European journalist:

"The Russians want no more trouble in Czechoslovakia. They support Husak still but have to be careful how far they slap down the hardliners because, after all, these are model, staunch pro-Soviets — and they could always outvote Husak in the party apparatus if it cameto a crunch."

Ordinary Czechs showed no more concern over the trials or the defendants' fate than in any other political event. Most "just turn their eyes," one contact told this writer, "s with everything that is not connected with their own immediate problems or welfare.

"People just don't care anymore. Some, if they mention the opposition at all, do so only to blame it for making trouble for everyone," the contact said.

The record of the past two years indeed makes sad reading. Not only was the party purged of its liberals and its liberalized course halted. So, too, were the labor unions, the professions, the arts, education, the media, parliament and judiciary.

The prescription for the current trials was spelled out by the president of the supreme court early last month when he said it had laid down guidelines for judges in order to eliminate any "uncommitted attitudes" and to "weedout liberal trends" in their judgments and sentences.

New writers' and other artistic unions have been set up. But almost without exception, the talents of the 1960s in literature and movies and the theater have stayed aloof and silent.

The regime still seems more bemused in stamping out lingering traces in every field whatsoever of what it calls the Dubcek "myth" than in trying reforms or relaxations which at least some of its leading men must appreciate are essential.

It is giving people some taste of a relative affluence. But with the frozen doctrine of 1972 it cannot hope to reestablish the communication between government and people which played so big a part in 1968.

Headman In Turkish Village Unopposed And Disappointed

ISTANBUL (AP) — Only one person cast his vote in recent municipal elections for the post of headman at Catili, a village in northern Turkey.

The sole vote was the incumbent headman. He said he was "very disappointed" at the turnout.

Remove Judge, Says Judicial Commission

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Commission on Judicial Qualifications recommended today that Los Angeles Municipal Judge Leland W. Geiler be removed from the bench.

The commission made its recommendation after 21 days of confidential hearings. It concluded that Geiler was guilty of action prejudicial to the administration of justice and of wilful misconduct.

The body made nine findings, most of them specifying the use of vulgar behavior and obscene language in and around the courtroom by the judge.

It also found that in eight criminal cases the judge had relieved deputy public defenders as defense counsel because they refused to enter immediate guilty pleas for their clients.

The commission filed its recommendation with the California Supreme Court. Judge Geiler has 30 days in which to petition the Supreme Court to reject the recommendation but he is disqualified from acting as a judge until the court rules.

The California Constitution authorizes the Supreme Court to remove a judge from office for "wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform his duties, habitual intemperance, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute."

The commission is made up of five judges, two lawyers and two representatives of the public. California pioneered in this method of passing on the fitness and conduct of judges, and the method has been adopted in about 25 states.

This is only the second time in the 11-year history of the commission that a recommendation has reached the Supreme Court. However, after some investigations judges have voluntarily and quietly retired.

The only other recommendation for removal was made by the commission 10 years ago in the case of Charles Stevens, Oceanside Municipal judge. Stevens fought the charges and cleared himself, and the Supreme Court rejected the commission recommendation. Stevens is still on the bench.

Warrant Issued When Defendant Fails To Appear

A bench warrant ordering Vernon James Robinson, 23, of San Francisco arrested and held without bail was issued yesterday in Marin Superior Court after he failed to appear for sentencing on a burglary charge.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered the warrant for Robinson who pleaded guilty on June 23, the day his trial was to begin. Codefendant Walter James Brock, 32, also of San Francisco was given a suspended state prison sentence and a year in jail for his part in the aborted burglary of a Sausalito home.

The two were arrested April 4 by Sausalito police in the home of Helme W. Schweikrt of 5 Cloudview Trail.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Big Nixon Welcome Is Planned

HONOLULU (UPI) —Hawaiian Republicans have coordinated an extensive telephone canvass to get supporters of President Nixon to greet him on his arrival Wednesday for a summit conference with Japanese Prime Minister Kakauei Tanaka.

Gov. John A. Burns will welcome the President at Hickam Air Force Base along with the traditional flower leis, swaying hula girls and strumming ukuleles.

Tanaka arrives later Wednesday and will be met by Nixon and members of the island's large Japanese community.

The three subjects on the agenda are the U.S.-Japan Mutual Defense Treaty, Japan's trade surplus and emergency U.S. purchases of nuclear ores.

A White House spokesman said no effort will be made to keep protesters away from the public welcoming ceremony, but said base guards will determine who gains admittance.

Mrs. Nixon will fly to Hawaii Thursday and will be welcomed by Mayor Shunichi Kimura at Hilo Airport. A tour is planned, with a visit to a physically-handicapped children's home, a beautiful area called Rainbow Falls, and an orchid garden.

The President will confer with Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, Thursday morning. He will meet with Tanaka Thursday afternoon and again that night.

Near Total Control Achieved In Southern Cal's Huge Fire

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Firefighters who shinnied down ropes into a steep-walled canyon to block off the last uncontrolled spearhead of flames expected to declare victory today over the worst brush fire to strike Southern California this year.

The fire has burned 17,100 acres of Los Padres National Forest; endangered—but did not harm—the last 60 of the California condors, world's biggest bird of prey; killed six firefighters in a helicopter crash that injured six others, and cost more than $1.7 million in damage and expenses.

Elsewhere in California, lightning touched off up to 75 small brush fires, but none burned more than five acres. None of the smaller fires was expected to mushroom into a major blaze like the Los Padres fire.

The U.S. Forest Service said only a few hundred yards remained to cover before firefighters completed a ring of firelines around the 28-mile perimeter of the blaze.

Complete containment was expected to be achieved today, but the smoldering hot spots within the fire line will take at least a day or two to extinguish, the Forest Service said.

The last uncontrolled thrust of the fire burned down Echo Falls Canyon. A team of firefighters lowered themselves by hands and feet along ropes, over a 200 foot drop, to reach the canyon floor and head off the flames.

In expectation of victory over the fire, the Forest Service began dismantling the force of 2,400 men that battled the blaze at its height. Some 1,200 men had been sent home, and another 600 were scheduled to leave today.

"It's pretty well wound down now," said Forest Service spokesman Dave Spiro. "A few light showers fell on the fire area, and the weather has been cool and damp. That's definitely a big help. If the weather holds like this, we'll have it licked today."

The blaze was believed started by campers playing with fireworks in a remote canyon. The Ventura County Sheriff's Department said those who began the fire could be held criminally responsible for the deaths of the six firefighters killed in a helicopter crash Saturday.

Damage to the Sespe Condor Sanctuary, home of the remnants of the giant vultures with 9-foot wingspans that once roamed by the thousands from Canada to Mexico, was limited to 350 acres. Most of the condors reportedly left anyway, flying toward higher mountains to the east to escape the hullabaloo of men, trucks, helicopters and planes battling the flames.

Fatal Crash Of U.S. Transport

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Two American pilots and their seven Laotian and Thai passengers were killed when a U.S. transport C123 crashed into a mountainside during bad weather last Sunday, U.S. spokesmen announced today.

The spokesmen said the transport was on a routine resupply mission when it slammed into the mountainside 75 miles north of Vientiane, killing all nine on board.

The American dead were identified as pilot William Reeves and copilot Joel Gudahl. The spokesmen had no additional information on the Americans.

Prince's Fatal Crash Is Explained

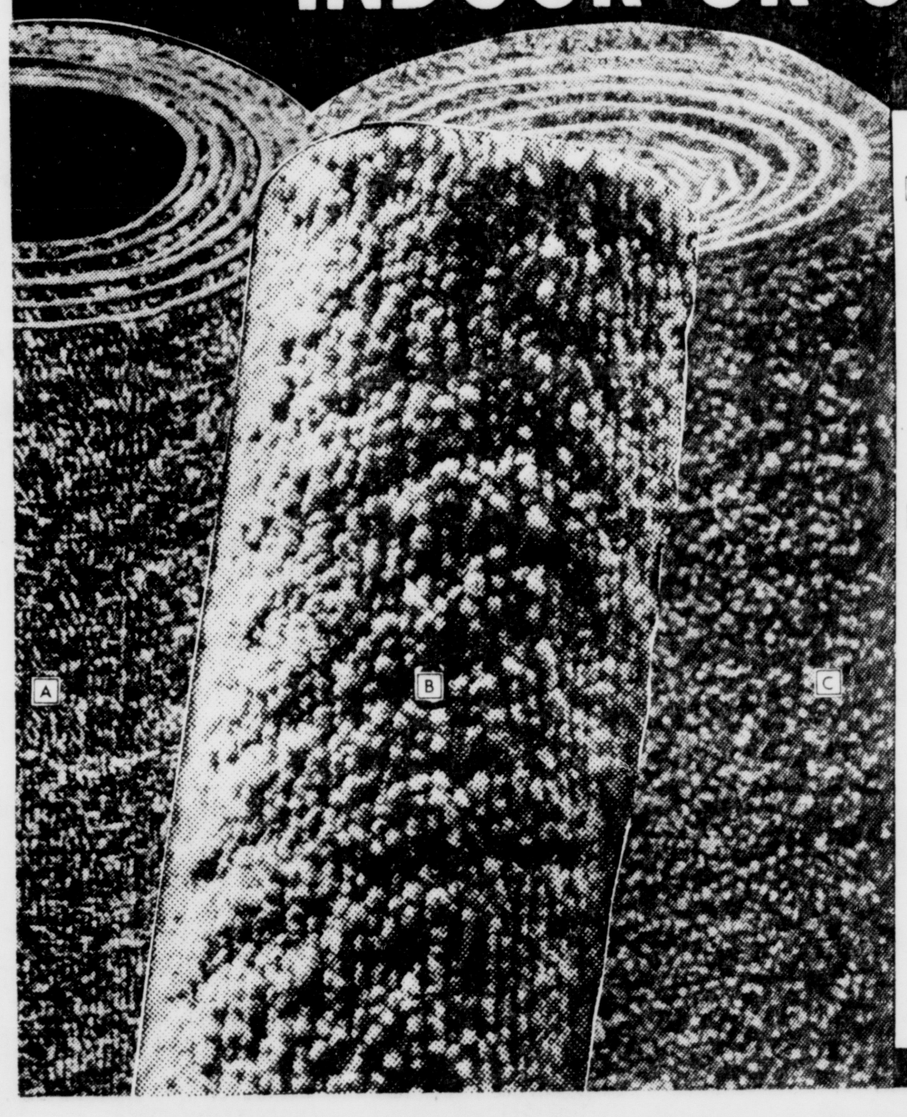

WOLVERHAMPTON, ENGLAND (UPI)—Michael Hennessy, one of the organizers of the air race in which Prince William of Gloucester crashed to his death Monday, said today the prince died because of over-enthusiasm.

Hennessy, who witnessed the crash at the Halfpenny Green airfield, said, "I put the crash down to over-enthusiasm. The pilots who turn on to the course the quickest are the ones who win the races."

Prince William's Piper Cherokee never rose above 40 feet after take-off. A tree tore off the port wing as the aircraft banked steeply. The rest of the plane fell to the ground.

Pay Boost For Hawkins Is Blocked

An attempt by two Tamalpais High School District trustees to give Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins a raise to $33,000 a year was firmly blocked by two other trustees last night.

If granted, the pay increase would have represented a 10 per cent pay raise within one year for the 42-year-old administrator.

In April, Hawkin's salary was increased by 5 per cent to $31,500 from the previous $30,000. At that time the board made the raise retroactive to July 1971 — an action later vetoed by the federal pay board.

He was hired in April 1970 at $30,000.

Trustee David D. Ring proposed that Hawkins's salary be increased to $33,000, for 1972-73 with a corresponding boost for Asst. Supt. Robert D. Torrey. Ring was supported by Frank L. Miller.

Board chairman Robert W. Corlett countered by citing the Internal Revenue Service ruling on the April increase — "and the increase you are proposing far exceeds 5 per cent."

Ring said the board's delay on granting this year's pay increases to Hawkins and Torrey had involved them in the IRS ruling, "and we aren't going to stall around on this issue."

He proposed that Hawkins's salary be rewritten for 1972-73 in the amount of $33,000, subject to IRS ruling, a motion seconded by Miller.

When Corlett and Trustee Bette Wallace indicated they would vote against his proposal, Ring withdrew the motion, saying he would wait until the next meeting when the fifth trustee, Jerrold M. Ladar, would be present. "This is a ridiculous action, I hope he's more reasonable," Ring said.

Torrey's salary was increased from $26,000 a year to $27,300 in April this year.

Date Approved For Russ Parley

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department has indicated approval of a Nov. 22 starting date for an initial meeting of the Soviet-backed Conference on Security and Cooperation in Helsinki, Finland.

State Department officials said Monday that Finland had suggested the opening date to the United States and other governments.

The Russians originally proposed the conference several years ago. But no firm agreement was reached until President Nixon and Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said in a communique which concluded their summit meeting in Moscow that the European conference should be carefully prepared and convened "without undue delay."

Board Rebuked On School Site Inaction

Tamalpais High School District trustees hemmed and hawed about their Marin City high school site last night and made no decision, a lack of action that brought sharp reprimand from a Marin City representative.

Thelma McKinney, secretary of the Marin Urban Development Association, told the trustees they were stalling. "The people in the immediate area haven't been given clear views. You've never given us any concrete ideas — it's your land, I would like to hear something concrete."

The board considered at great length a report from the Marin City task force, headed by Trustee Bette Wallace, which suggested possible uses for the 32-acre site in Marin City in the light of newly planned community development which would include recreational use and an educational center.

Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins said current enrollment projections for the district showed no need for a new high school, especially since elementary schools throughout the district had empty classrooms.

Trustee David R. Ring commented that in the district's last two bond issues the opinion had always been voiced that Marin City didn't want a high school — "so whose views are you going to listen to?

Trustee Frank L. Miller said: "The first decision rests with ourselves — do we intend to use it as an educational facility. I am of the opinion we are in the business of education."

The board instructed Hawkins to obtain counsel opinion on a clause in the purchase agreement which appeared to mean that if a high school wasn't built on the site by 1982 it would be forfeit. Frank A. Cassou, business director, said the district would have the right to sell the land.

District staff also was instructed to make a study on all district lands, which include high school sites in Tiburon and San Geronimo.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

CONFERENCES — Instructed Hawkins to draft policy on eimbursement for educational conferences and to obtain a copy of the county's similar policy which Bette Wallace cited as "working well."

TRANSPORTATION — Reviewed the contracts for home-school transportation services for Marin City and Bolinas-Stinson Beach School district to be presented at the Sept. 19 meeting; the Marin City Transportation Co.'s rate is the same as 1971-72, that of the Golden Gate Bridge District for transit buses up $900 for the year.

UPHOLSTERY — Reviewed a proposed lease agreement with Mill Valley School District for a portable classroom at Edna McGuire School for the adult education upholstery class for 1972-73.

SUMMER SCHOOL —Instructed Hawkins to prepare a breakdown on what summer school classes had to be dropped for lack of enrollment after hearing that total enrollment this summer was down about 200 students from last year's figure.

COMPUTER — Authorized a call for bids to lease a mini-computer system for instructional use at Redwood High School.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Bruna Kastelic, a teacher at Redwood High School, after 35 years at the district's three schools.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired four temporary teachers to replace teachers on leaves of absence: Jean Glascock, Sir Francis Drake, social studies; Dean Lazzarini, Drake, physical education; John Sullivan, Tamalpais, mentally retarded; Dildar Treadway, Drake, social studies.

ADMINISTRATORS — Approved 1972-73 salaries for Edward Neumeier, administrative assistant, at $21,582, and Lanny Berry, special assistant, at $17,267. The salaries reflected no cost-of-living increase but were approved without comment. They had been deferred from the Aug. 7 meeting because this was against board policy.

MEETING — Scheduled the next meeting for Sept. 19 instead of Sept. 18, which is Yom Kippur.

Woman Denies 3 Bad Check Charges

A Lagunitas woman has denied three counts of possessing checks with intent to defraud and a preliminary hearing is scheduled for next Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Cathleen Vedder, 29, was arrested Wednesday in Fairfax on suspicion of cashing $1w2 in forged checks at the Cala store at 2040 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

NEW STAMP — This is the Tom Sawyer commemorative stamp. The design was taken from a Norman Rockwell painting of the celebrated fence whitewashing of the Mark Twain book. The U.S. Postal Service said yesterday the stamp will be issued Oct. 13 in Hannibal, Mo.

Roosevelt's Son Will Vote Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—"I am still a Democrat," said former Rep. James Roosevelt, son of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Nonetheless, he said Monday, he was supporting President Nixon for re-election.

The Democratic candidate, Sen. George McGovern, "has proven by his record that he doesn't have the qualities of leadership, the qualities of consistency, that he unfortunately comes out with an emotional program which later is proven to be unsound or unwise and then he has to backt ack,' Roosevelt said.

Guilty Plea Brings Jail, Probation

A 19-year-old Petaluman who admitted having a stolen pickup truck engine was ordered yesterday, in Marin Superior Court, to serve 30 days in jail.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner also placed Craig Dewitt Smith on supervised probation for one year and unsupervised probation for four after suspending imposition of a sentence.

Smith admitted the stolen property allegation last month on condition he receive no more than a month in jail. A second Asecond count of stealing a motrocycle was dismissed at the time.

He was arrested May 31 by the California Highway Patrol and San Rafael Police who received a tip he had the engine stolen May 3 from a vehicle belonging to Jesse Green of San Rafael.

He was charged with stealing a motorcycle after one stolen April 19 from Bruce Roe of San Rafael was recovered at Smith's mother's home in Novato, according to police.

Jazz Concert In Woodacre Saturday

The program will last from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. and will feature local musicians.

Street Plan Given Approval By Council

Plans to widen and improve Washington Street in the downtown district were approved last night by the Petaluma City Council.

Plans include widening the street to four lanes and installing traffic signals at Keller, Liberty and Howard streets. City Engineer David A. Young estimated the total cost at $132,000 and said the project could be financed by gasoline tax revenue.

He said Washington Street would be widened 10 feet by reducing sidewalks on both sides of the street by five feet and by banning all parking. Young said the council could decide later if the traffic pattern should be made one-way on Kentucky Street to blend with the new system.

Construction bids will be sought in April with work scheduled to be completed by August or September next year.

The Petaluma City Council also:

OPEN SPACE — Approved an interim open space element that recommends hillsides, flood plains and agricultural areas be kept as open space. A more detailed plan will be prepared next year for inclusion in the city general plan.

PLAN LINES — Heard City Atty. Edouard E. Robert recommend that new hearings be held on setting plan lines to widen East Washington Street between Lakeville Highway and Highway 101 since the last hearing was held in 1969.

BONDS — Heard City Treasurer Cecil G. Gealta report that 1970 general oblication bonds that were sold at 7 per cent interest rate cannot be renegotiated because of federal laws although bonds are now selling at 5 per cent interest. The council authorized a letter be written asking that regulations be changed.

DEVELOPERS — Extended the Sept. 1 deadline to Sept. 15 to allow developers more time to prepare building plans for the 1973-74 building year. Plans will be reviewed by the development control board and city council before building permits are issued under the 500-home limit.

MEETING — Adjourned and noted the next meeting will be held next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. rather than Monday due to the Labor Day holiday.

Insane Plea Offered In Sword Case

A crew-cut woman who was ruled sane enough Friday to stand trial on a charge of attacking a fellow employee in a Sausalito shop with a Samurai sword pleaded innocent by reason of insanity yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge David R. Baty set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday for Frances Gail Simpson, 29, on the assault with a deadly weapon count.

Superior court judge Samuel W. Gardiner found her sane after reviewing reports by two psychiatrists who called her psychotic, but able to understand the charges against her and cooperate with her attorney.

She is charged in connection with the Aug. 4 stabbing of Norman Williams, 20, a shop steward at Heath Ceramics. She was a glazer for the company.

JUVENILE CRIME

Police Have Wide Punishment Range

By JEFF GREER
(Second of two articles)

Years ago, the policeman on the beat knew every neighborhood youngster. When a child got into mischief, the officer like as not marched the offender home for a stern parental lecture, and that was the end of it.

Youngsters, particularly in their teens, are much more mobile today, and much less likely to be known to the police they encounter.

But, still, "the great majority of kids in trouble are handled at the police level," explained James B. Soetaert, chief deputy probation officer for Marin County.

The officer "has wide discretion" in handling juvenile crime, according to Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson, who sits as juvenile judge.

The officer may simply reprimand the juvenile, confer with the juvenile's parents, or cite the youngster and parents to appear before juvenile probation authorities. In serious or repeated offenses, he may book the youngster into Juvenile Hall because it appears the home situation is out of control.

But, "If we can handle it here, it's helping the parents, kids and the community," declared John Harris, Ross police chief.

He noted that his small town has "very few" juvenile cases, compared to Marin's larger cities. Most of the problems occur during school season, with out-of-town youngsters passing through, Harris added.

"Each case is individual. My officers are intelligent enough to evaluate what's needed for the child they're confronting," Harris declared. If the child is a repeated offender, he is more likely to be turned over to probation deputies for more help, Harris said.

The probation deputy's latitude in handling cases also is wide, Soetaert explained. "We can discuss the case with parents, perhaps recommend mental health or family services interviews with other county agencies, or the case might be dismissed."

"If we feel the case needs to go to juvenile court, we file a petition" to make the child a ward of the court, Soetaert continued. The petition might be compared to a complaint in adult criminal courts, except that the custody and not the crime is emphasized. If the youngster admits to the offense, the court then sets a dispositional hearing and orders probation deputies to evaluate the case and recommend action.

Only if the youngster denied the offense could the district attorney be invited in to present evidence on behalf of the custody petition — which can result in a "finding of fact" by the judge or referee, followed by the disposition hearing.

Throughout the process, the police, probation officers and court must be mindful that the child can be taken out of parental custody only if he is "a danger to himself or the community, or has violated a previous court order, or is likely to run away," Soetaert stressed.

Under court disposition orders, the juvenile may be released to his family on probation, sent to a foster home, placed in a private institution such as Sunny Hills for treatment of emotional or other problems, or turned over to the California Youth Authority's institutions as a last resort.

No youngster can be sentenced to the Juvenile Hall. It is used only to hold a youngster for hearings, or after the disposition order, as short-term quarters for a youngster awaiting an opening in foster home or institution.

Definite time limits seldom are set on probation, Soetaert added, but the court's jurisdiction usually ends at age 18.

Many youngsters whom police book into juvenile hall are quickly released after investigation by probation deputies, Judge Wilson added. "After six hours detention, we have to furnish a written statement to parents as to why the child is being held," he explained.

Any child placed in Juvenile Hall must be given a hearing each 15 days on whether detention may continue under the state criteria.

Probation deputies are cautious about releasing booked youngsters, but must heed the state law, Soetaert claimed. "I don't think anybody'd want to be such a damn fool" as to release a juvenile without making sure parental control is adequate, he said.

Ross Police Chief Harris — and other police officials less willing to be named for the record —questioned whether the probation department does enough rehabilitation work with many youngsters released to their families.

"I think there are too many dismissals," of cases the police considered serious enough to require booking or referral, Harris added.

All Marin police departments are cooperating with Judge Wilson's orders not to make public the names of juvenile offenders arrested.

"There are many versions of the publicity problem, "Chief Harris commented. "The parents, the schools and the police all have different points of view.

"When a child commits a felony, I don't say chastise the child, but I also say don't shield him from the people who are the victims," the chief urged.

Brewer said he met with other states' probation officials at conventions. "I had always thought we were pretty advanced in California, but they looked at us as if we were barbarians" until the state courts recently curbed release of juvenile arrest information, Brewer said.

Wilson said he was not making law with his order to police agencies on juvenile cases, merely following the law and higher court rulings.

Disposition of juvenile court cases traditionally has been secret, even when police could reveal names of arrested offenders. This meant that a youngster cleared by the court might never have his exoneration publicized, Wilson said.

How well do the complexities of juvenile law function?

About one third of Marin County's juvenile offenders become adult offenders, Brewer estimated. But he said he had no actual figures to prove the point, nor could he say how many crimes are cleared by juvenile court dispositions.

The point, Brewer stressed, is that a child may be charged with many offenses, but the judge has to find only that it is necessary to make the juvenile a court ward.

"People don't understand the power the court has — you can't be just half pregnant," or half in custody, Brewer explained.

He, his aide, Soetaert, and Judge Wilson noted that the probation department also has no figures on how many youngsters get into trouble two or more times. The county agencies lack funds or manpower to compile the statistics, Soetaert said.

Asked whether he thought the community merely wanted young wrongdoers punished — or was more interested in "straightening out" the juvenile, Brewer somberly said that the later "has not been my experience."

San Rafael Man Files For Board

A third candidate has filed papers for the November election for two vacant seats on the Marin Community College District Board, the county elections department said today.

He is James Kimo Campbell, of 2 Oak Avenue, San Rafael. Student body president at College of Marin in 1969.

Campbell, 25, ran unsuccessfully for the board last April, polling 5,812 votes, seventh among count of 12 candidates.

He is a prelaw student at the University of California in Berkeley. He has attended school in Honolulu, Hawaii, and at College of Marin.

Campbell's filing was the third for the election caused by the resignations of two incumbent trustees — Charles W. Gray who is leaving the college district, and Charles Read Best, who was elected a Marin Superior Court Judge in the June election.

Deadline for filing is Saturday at 5 p.m. So far five other residents have taken out papers for the election, but not yet filed.

Equipment Taken

Construction equipment valued at $2,170 was taken between Friday and Monday from a shed near the Safeway store at First and B streets, San Rafael, by a thief who removed a chain and padlock, police reported today.

Endorsement Denied In Train Plan

The Mill Valley Planning Commission last night declined to endorse a plan for weekend train service over old Northwestern Pacific track from Sausalito to Baltimore Park in Larkspur.

Evelyn B. McCrary, planning department secretary, said the commission indicated it could not favor the proposal, by Douglas Morgan of Morgan Railcar Company, Greenbrae, until Mill Valley's general plan is completed. The planners thought the city should know how the proposed rail service would fit into that general plan before endorsing it, she said.

In other business, the commission granted a conditional use permit to allow the Community Church of Mill Palley to operate a pre-school program for 45 youngsters at the church, 8 Olive Street.

The commission also approved a use permit to allow Robert Cogswell to operate an automobile repair service at 765 Redwood Highway.

Water Problems Due Discussion

Water distribution problems and solutions regarding Christmas Tree Hill in Corte Madera will be discussed by Marin Municipal Water Distriv directors at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district office in Corte Madera.

At an earlier meeting several area residents complained distribution is inadequate and may be insufficient for firefighting purposes.

The board also will consider a request for a pipeline extension to serve a new 400-unit mobile home park on Smith Ranch Road in San Rafael.

DISILLUSIONED YOUTH

GOP 'Doesn't Live Up To Program'

By NELS JOHNSON

An 18-year-old Greenbrae youth who attended the Republican National Convention in Miami last week arrived back in Marin disillusioned with the Grand Old Party but no less enthused about its standard bearer, President Richard M. Nixon.

Walter C. Kopp of 190 Via Lerida was one of about 3,000 "Young Voters for the President" who went to Miami for the Republican Gala. And though he's still a Nixon booster, he says that the convention's youth program fell short of his expectations as well as those of dozens of other young people.

"A lot of the Young Voters for the President were fed up with the program," Kopp said the other day amid a clutter of campaign paraphernalia and convention souvenirs. Young Nixon supporters who arrived in Miami with visions of a "meaningful political experience" were disappointed, he said.

Kopp said young voters were promised jobs answering phones in convention headquarters and work as pages on the convention floor. Instead, Kopp said, young Nixon boosters were assigned poster-making duties on the floor of a local high school auditorium. "By the time we got there, all the glamor jobs had been given out ... and most of the young voters wound up making signs gr organizing rallies," Kopp said.

WALTER C. KOPP
"The party promised us a meaningful political experience. Then it put us in a dump in the red light district."
(Independent-Journal photo)

Kopp said the convention quickly lost its sparkle when many in the 300-member California delegation of young voters were housed in a "rat and roach infested" hotel.

"It was a dump, right in the middle of Miami's red light district, with broken pipes and falling plaster," Kopp said. Kopp and fellow young voters were finally shuffled to better accomodations after the group put up a "prolonged fuss."

Kopp said he quickly tired of poster duty and asked delegate William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, for a better job. "I was lucky because I was able to get a job working as a courier for Reagan's staff in the Americana Hotel," said Kopp, who has campaigned for Bagley.

The clean-shaven, wavy-haired Kopp said he was issued a car and given packets of messages to deliver to Republican officials throughout Miami. "On my first trip, a dozens demonstrators jumped on the car hood and blocked traffic," the youth recalled. "At first I got out of the car, but then I rolled up the windows and locked myself in." The National Guard eventually cleared the group from the street, Kopp said.

Kopp, who attended the three night sessions and one of two day sessions of the convention, said that the young voters' enthusiasm seen on TV was spontaneous. "We were like a high school cheering section at a football game, but with no cheerleaders ... No one put words in our mouths and no one told us when to clap."

The Greenbrae youth said that his biggest thrill at the convention was shaking hands with President Richard M. Nixon.

"I was standing on a trash can at the airport and shook hands with him," he reported, beaming. He found Nixon "very calm" and appeared relaxed.

"After his acceptance speech, I shook his hand again and he was sweating and very nervous," Kopp said.

Kopp said that he also enjoyed meeting the Nixon daughters, Tricia and Julie. "I was surprised to learn that they're normal people - just like you or me," he said.

The youth refused to reveal his opinion of Vice President Spiro Agnew, whom he didn't meet.

Kopp, a recent graduate of Redwood High School who will enter the College of Marin this fall, said he plans to work actively for the reelection of President Nixon in the coming months.

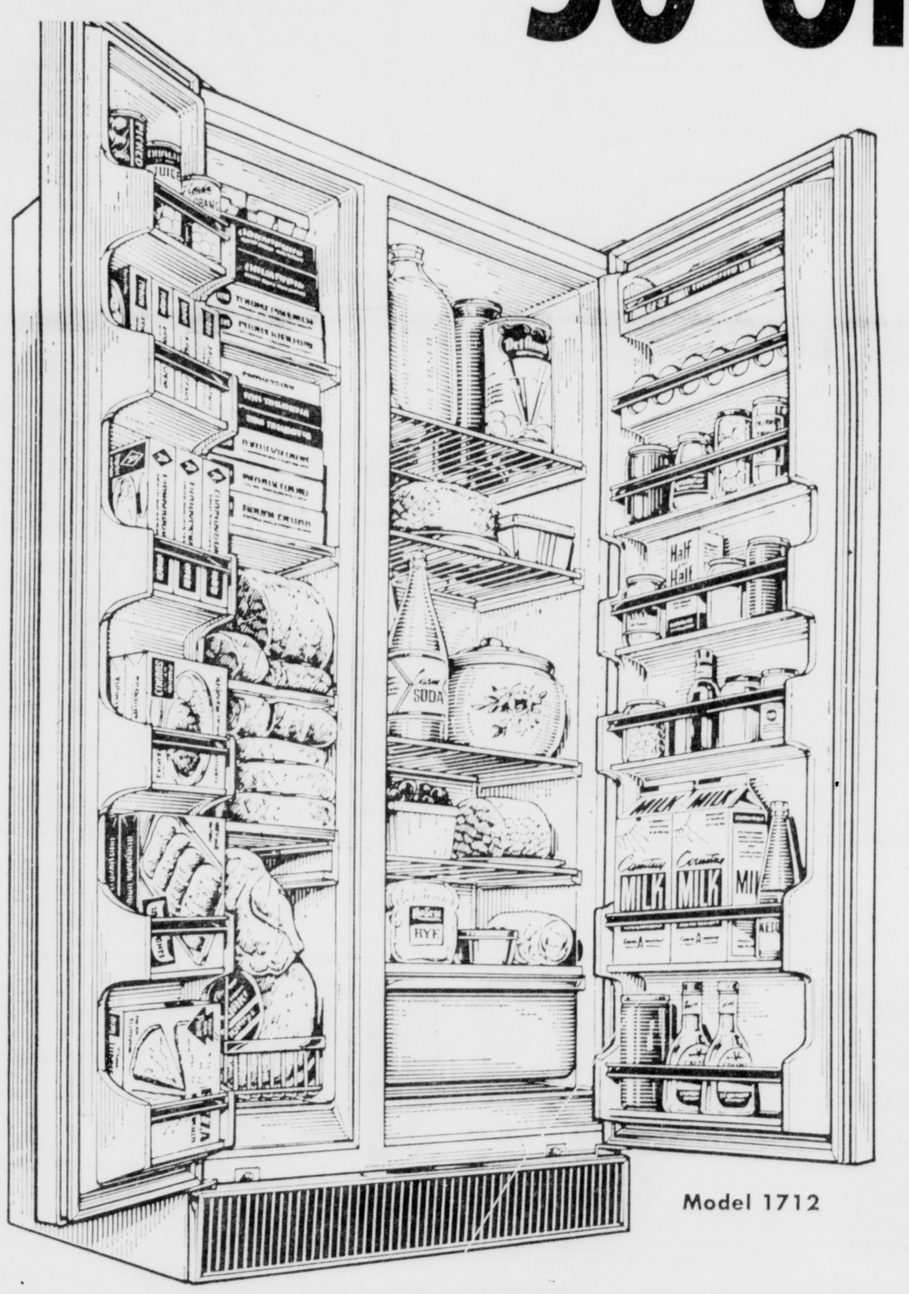

"We've got to register more Republican voters in Marin," he said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Discussion Of Probability Doesn't Have To Be Painful

When the subject of bridge probability comes up, the average bridge player looks around for the nearest exit; and if he can't find a door or window, he closes his eyes helplessly and prepares to suffer. This is a foolish attitude since listening to a talk about bridge probability is only a little worse than having a nerve removed from a tooth. Besides, sometimes the discussion turns out to be mercifully simple — as in today's hand.

UNHELPFUL HEART

When today's hand was played a few weeks ago in the national mixed pair championship, practically all of the South players got to four hearts and received an unhelpful heart or diamond opening lead. In each case declarer won and drew trumps, but then he had to find a way to develop a second spade trick in order to make the contract.

Any way of playing the spades would work if each opponent had three spades. South would give up two spade tricks, but then his last spade would be good.

NORMAL METHOD

The normal method of playing such a suit when you cannot get to dummy for a finesse is to lead the ace and then continue with a low card in the hope that one of the opponents started with K-x (the king and only one other card in the suit).

In this case, however, the presence of the nine and eight gives declarer an alternate line of play. He can lead the ace and then the queen of spades. If the ten or jack happens to fall, South loses one trick to the king and another trick to the honor that is still out; but then his eight is good for a spade trick.

EQUAL CHANCE

Which method is more likely to work? The chance that an opponent was dealt K-7, K-3 or K-2 of spades is exactly equal to the chance that somebody was dealt J-7, J-3 or J-2; and either of these is exactly equal to the chance that somebody was dealt 10-7, 10-3 or 10-2. Leading the ace and then the queen works in two of these three cases; leading the ace and then a low spade works in only one. You don't have to be Albert Einstein to calculate that two-thirds are bigger than one-third.

That didn't really hurt very much, did it?

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two hearts (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K J 7 2
♥ - 5 4 3 2
♦ - 10 4
♣ - A Q 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three hearts.

You expect to bid a slam, but there is no need to bid more at this moment.

TURBAN TRIUMPHANT — Paul Cook of Oakland wears a turban that led to a brief altercation yesterday at Marin County Hall of Justice. Today, he learned a judge had overruled a bailiff who held that the turban Cook maintains is a religious headdress is really a hat and cannot be worn in court. (Independent-Journal photo)

Judge Resolves The Turban Case

That question was resolved by a Marin County judge yesterday following a tense hallway confrontation between a bailiff and an ex-convict.

The ex-convict, Paul Cook, 31, of 2450 Seminary Avenue, Oakland, was ultimately the winner in the battle of the turban. He will be allowed to appear in his turban before Judge David R. Baty this afternoon to pay a traffic fine.

When Cook sought to enter the courtroom yesterday his way was barred by bailiff Arthur Wiggins who told him first to remove the turban.

Cook said he was a minister of the Chrsilam sect and the turban a religious headdress.

But Wiggins insisted that all men's headdresses, including skullcaps worn by Orthodox rabbis, are merely hats and must be removed. Take it off, or take off, was the choice given Cook.

He pointed out that he had worn his turban before Baty and other Marin judges and as a spectator at the trials of Angela Davis, the Soledad Brothers and Black Panther Huey Newton.

Judge Baty then informed of the controversy approved the turban.

Cook said Wiggins' action was "politically oriented harrassment" because Cook is president of the Oakland branch of the Prisoners Union which fights for prisoners' rights and director of Oakland's Alternative House, a halfway house for ex-convicts. Cook also was a San Quentin cellmate of Ruchel Magee, currently on trial in San Francisco for the 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center; and George Jackson, one of the Soledad Brothers and brother of Jonathon Jackson who was killed during the shootout.

Guilty Plea Entered On Grand Theft

A Stinson Beach garbageman linked to a series of burglaries in communities where he picked up refuse pleaded guilty yesterday to felony counts of grand theft and burglary.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court then dismissed additional charges of burglary and concealing stolen property as part of a plea negotiation, with Richard Warren Lacaze, 20.

Lacaze admitted the crimes on condition he spend no more than eight months in jail. Sentencing was set for Oct. 2.

Lacaze, whose mother operates a garbage service for Tamalpais Valley, Muir Beach, Stinson Beach and Bolinas, was arrested in March with coworker Dennis Michael Murphy, 22, also of Stinson Beach after an investigation by sheriff's deputies of burglaries in Tamalpais Valley and Stinson Beach.

An inspector said the two apparently saw articles they wanted while making their rounds for Henry's Service.

Pleads Guilty To Check Charge

Thomas Wade Ayers, 20, of Lagunitas yesterday admitted writing a bad check to buy a color television set and sentencing was set for Oct. 2 in Marin Superior Court.

Ayers — charged with writing a $346 check at the Music Shoppe in San Rafael, May 20 without sufficient funds in his bank account — pleaded guilty under a complex plea negotiation with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

The sentence is to include credit for a day in jail for each day he spends on a methadone program.

New Service Route Is Big Success

The Golden Gate Bridge District's new commuter bus service between Lucas Valley and San Francisco is a booming success after only two days.

The four buses on the run during peak commuter hours probably will be filled to their capacity of 180 passengers by Friday, predicted Jerome Kuykendall, the district's transportation developer.

The opener of the service yesterday morning attracted 106 riders in the valley, and 133 this morning. In addition, about 80 riders boarded other buses at the Marinwood freeway stop.

The new route 40 leaves Mount McKinley and Idylberry roads weekday mornings at 6:30, 6:45, 7:05 and 7:25 o'clock. It departs from First and Fremont streets in San Francisco in the afternoon at 4:45, 5:00, 5:15 and 5:30 o'clock, and follows the financial district route.

Heart Association Has New Center

DALLAS (UPI)—The American Heart Association is moving its headquarters from New York to Dallas and expects to complete the move sometime in 1974.

The nation's largest voluntary health association chose Dallas after a committee headed by Boston attorney Jesse R. Fillman investigated several cities.

Novato Woman Dies In Apartment Fire

A 66-year-old Novato woman died in a fire at her apartment that was undetected until her body was discovered yesterday by Novato police.

The victim, Florence Grace Hollenbeck, of 839 Reichert Avenue, Apt. 2, died between 10 p.m. Monday and 2 a.m. yesterday, according to Asst. Coroner Eugene R. Fontaine.

Her death was discovered at 2:20 p.m. yesterday after a Marin County social worker notified Novato police she had been unable to get a response at the apartment.

Officer S.S. Sibbald after noticing a strong odor of smoke broke in the apartment door and discovered Mrs. Hollenbeck lying on the kitchen floor with second and third degree burns on 60 per cent of her body, police reported.

The mattress in her bed had ignited, possibly from a cigarette, and burned in a smoldering fire while she was asleep, police said.

Mrs. Hollenbeck apparently awoke, staggered into the kitchen, made an attempt to fill two containers with water to extinguish the bedroom fire and was overcome by smoke, burns and possibly shock, police said.

Fontaine reported that all windows were closed and smoke from the fire had filled the apartment.

Fire Chief Jack Kidder said there was no fire when firemen were called at 2:35 p.m. He estimated the damage at $1,850, mostly smoke damage.

Mrs. Hollenbeck, a retired accountant, was the widow of Herman Hollenbeck, a cabinet maker. She was a native of San Francisco and had been a resident of Venetia Oaks in Santa Venetia before moving to Novato about 18 months ago.

Demo Says Demos Better Business

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Business fares better under Democratic than Republican administrations, according to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

"If the Republican party is the party of big business," Proxmire said, "then I say it hasn't even taken care of its own constituency."

Proxmire, the chairman of the Senate-House Joint Economic Committee, said corporate profits rose 3 per cent in the Eisenhower administration, and 9.5 per cent in the Kennedy-Johnson years.

Profits have fallen under President Nixon to the point that "in 1971 the economy's feeble performance wasn't enough to return profits to their 1968 levels," Proxmire said Monday in a statement.

Freshman College Load To Be Down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Applications for admission to the freshman classes of the nation's state universities and land-grant colleges for fall, 1972, are up only 1.37 per cent above last spring's level—for one of the smallest increases in the past 10 years.

Financial difficulties for the student and an increase in the number of students choosing to begin their post high-school education at community colleges or vocational-technical schools are primary reasons for the slowdown, reports the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges (NASULGC).

Novato Youth Is Arrested, Held

A 19-year-old Novato youth was arrested in San Rafael at 2 p.m. yesterday on suspicion of burglary and concealing stolen property after a routine police check turned up a rifle reported stolen an hour earlier from a vehicle on Las Gallinas Avenue.

Booked into Marin County Jail and held on $500 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court was Douglas James Schuler of 545 Olive Avenue.

Open Space Group Sets Parcel Tours

The San Anselmo Citizens Advisory Committee on Open Space last night set up a schedule of walking tours aimed at developing an inventory of open space parcels in the city.

On Sept. 9 the committee will take a look at the Hawthorne Hill area, according to Lyn Fischbein, committee chairman. She said the committee set Sept. 16 for an inventory of the Indian Rock and Sorich Park areas, and Sept. 23 to walk down San Anselmo Creek.

The citizens advisory committee is charged with recommending to the planning commission revisions of the general plan regarding open space, she said.

Two Drown In Separate Accidents

Two baby Mill Valley girls drowned yesterday in separate accidents, one in Shelter Bay community swimming pool and another in a pool at a privte home.

Debra J. Joseph, 2, of 200 Summit Avenue, and Adrienne Hahm, 3, of 2221 Shelter Bay, were both dead on arrival at Marin General Hospiatl.

Debra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Joseph, died when she wandered away and fell in a pool at 300 Summit while her parents were visiting friends at the house.

The child, who would have been 3 tomorrow, was found in the pool about 12:43 p.m. by her mother, who dived in and pulled her out. Resuscitation efforts failed the coroner's office reported.

Adrienne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conway Hahm, drowned about 3:45 p.m. at the Shelter Bay pool. She was found at the bottom of the pool by a 15-year-old babysitter who had been caring for her and a sister while their parents were at work.

Mill Valley police said the babysitter and two girls had been swimming and the sitter and one girl left the pool, thinking Adrienne had gone on ahead. She was found minutes later, according to officers, who said efforts to revive her by the Mill Valley Fire Department were unsuccessful.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Oldsters More Vulnerable To Disease And Accidents

The number of people in the United States over 65 continues to increase faster than the total population. This group increased from 16.6 to 20 million (20 per cent), while the total population went from 179.3 to 203.2 million (13 per cent). Almost 10 per cent of our population is over 65.

Much has been written about the relationship between cholesterol and the aging process. Cholesterol levels are important, but less so among people over 65. Many other factors deserve "equal time." For example, half the men over 65 are overweight and chances are their cholesterol level is above normal. Losing weight often reduces the level. Diabetes also is more likely to develop in the obese.

CUTTING DOWN CALORIES via less fat and more protein will reduce the chances of gaining weight and increasing the level of cholesterol in the blood. Drink skim milk, trim visible fat on meats, consume fewer eggs, substitute margarine for butter, and avoid rich pastries and desserts. Keep the weight down and the cholesterol may take care of itself. Drugs and hormones will lower a high level, but this is seldom necessary after 65. Cholesterol is a more serious problem in persons between the ages of 45 and 65.

Oldsters should have their blood pressure checked from time to time. Hypertension also is a high risk factor, but so easily treated, that it is sheer folly to neglect it.

THE ROLE of accidents in hastening death receives too little attention. The elderly are involved in nearly three times as many accidents in the home as any other group over age 15. According to the National Safety Council, every year fatal home accidents claim more than 28,000 victims over 65. And this figure does not include those who die from pneumonia, strokes, and heart attacks after breaking a hip or compulsory bed rest following an accident.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent Journal.)

FIREBUG AT 6

Mrs. W. B. writes: On two occasions, our 6-year-old son has started a serious fire in our home. He rebelled because we didn't give him his own way. We discussed his behavior with him and tried to point out the danger. Should he have been punished by spanking or some other way?

REPLY

You handled the immediate situation properly, although the boy heard exactly what he wanted to hear — that fires might harm the whole family. He was out to punish you and almost succeeded. Consult a child psychiatrist before his behavior problem gets worse. He may need more love and understanding.

SPIDERS AND SCORPIONS

A reader writes: Last summer you offered a leaflet on spiders. I sent for one but it has been misplaced. Do you still have it available?

REPLY

Yes. It can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

ACID AND ULCER

C. B. writes: Could a person who lacks hydrochloric acid in the stomach develop ulcer?

REPLY

Yes, but more studies should be done as this ulcer could be malignant.

COBALT THERAPY

REPLY

FALLEN ARCH FATIGUE

B. writes: Could flat feet make the feet feel tired all the time?

REPLY

Yes, and so could ordinary fatigue. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on flat feet.

NEOPLASMS

O. L. writes: What is a neoplasm?

REPLY

WELFARE AREA

Mixed Notices On New Program

OXNARD, Calif. (UPI) — The Reagan administration's new experimental welfare program of work-or-lose-your-relief check has drawn mixed notices after its first two months of operation in Ventura County.

One state administrator says it has been "moderately successful." A poverty lawyer calls it 'slave labor."

A county welfare official says it feeds the public bias that welfare recipients do not want to work. Another says it's just too early to judge.

In theory, on the surface the Community Work Experience Program (CWEP) seems solid. Regan has hailed it as an approach for national application.

The concept is that when all other avenues have been explored — private job placement, training, on-the-job apprenticeship and incentive programs — the able bodied and "employable" welfare recipient should be willing to work at tasks assigned by the government if he wishes to receive a monthly check.

In mid-June, a pilot program was begun in Ventura County which has a population of approximately 275,000 and an unemployment rate of 6.5 per cent.

The program has now been started also in Madera and Butte counties and is scheduled to be functioning in Santa Barbara and Orange counties by Sept. 15 and in 30 more of the state's 58 counties by July, 1973. Application in such densely populated areas as Los Angeles in indefinite.

The first figures from Ventura County after two months operation were recently made available through CWEP liaison director Gene Dick of the state's office of Social Welfare and Human Resources Development.

In its first stage, the program has been applied only to male heads of household who are able-bodied but unemployed and on welfare. The average check for such a recipient with a wife and two children is $265 a month with some food staples provided by the State Department of Agriculture.

The statistics show that letters instructing such man to appear for CWEP interviews totalled 395. It is interesting to note that the total of unmarried mothers, divorcees, widows or those deserted on welfare is more than 5,000 in Ventura County.

Of the 395 processed, 54 have been assigned to CWEP 'user agencies' for various jobs including janitorial, park and beach maintenance, street maintenance.

The agencies include the cities of Oxnard, Ojai and Santa Paula, the county of Ventura and an unidentified water district.

CWEP workers must not replace regular employes and must be assigned only to nonprofit organizations. They receive no compensation for work up to 80 hours a month but their welfare payments continue only so long as they work. Out of the total of 395, "sanction procedures" were brought against 131 men. That meant they were warned they could lose welfare payments because they never showed up at all, refused to accept CWEP jobs, worked for a few days and quit for various reasons.

Of the 131, 83 were found to have "good cause" for not reporting and their cases are being reexamined. Such cause could include illness, crisis in the family, lack of transportation.

Fifty were found to have no reason for failing to cooperate and have been notified they will be penalized for three months. Payments to at least 10 have been terminated.

At this time, the entire relief check is not denied but only that portion going to the head of the household so that a family with two children will get $230 monthly instead of $265.

The point has been raised that the father still can remain with the family and share the reduced welfare payment. Orders have been issued from Sacramento which could result in termination of payments to the entire family.

Among those neither put in CWEP jobs or under sanctions, there were persons who have found their own jobs, been referred to other programs, actively engaged in finding work, undergoing training, discontinued from welfare rolls for various reasons such as moving away and a total of 107 whose cases are still being evaluated.

Director Dick says he considers the program "moderately successful" although there have been bugs since CWEP was put into practice. One is that he has a staff of only 10 to handle the mountainous tasks of trying to find jobs, check and recheck on compliance and various excuses.

Both Dick and CWEP supervisor Tony Capritto agree that a vital task is to get understanding and cooperation of "front line" foremen and supervisors to whom the CWEP men are assigned.

They say that the program is basically sound. Capritto says that the 50 who have refused to cooperate have "negative" attitudes and "ignore all sorts of reasonable requests."

Although nothing official is being said, the holdouts include chronic alcoholics, heroin addicts and hippies drawing welfare collectively in communes.

David Schwarts, a poverty attorney appointed to the Ventura County Legal Services Center, says he considers the program "slave labor."

"It is not as if they had a job," he says, "There is no training program. They are not developing marketable skills. The purpose is to punish people who aren't able to find work. It is nothing for the poorest of the poor for it fails to build incentive."

Schwartz is representing one man who has refused a CWEP job. He will take his case to the "Fair Hearings" provided by the statute.

"This man can't afford to take a CWEP job," Schwartz says. "He is an unemployed father who has no car, no money for public transportation, no food for lunches, insufficient clothing.

"The man was injured some time ago in an oil field accident and is not sure he is physically able to work. He has been offered no medical examination."

Wayne Robertson is a liaison man between the county welfare department and HRD and he has reservations about the program.

"The public wants to think that welfare recipients do not want to work and CWEP plays into their hand," Robertson says.

"Most welfare people basically do want to work. But they don't want to feel they are not accomplishing anything. There is no employer-employe feeling. They do not feel they are getting credit for what they are doing."

His views support those of others that CWEP workers would be better off if they received a paycheck for what they did rather than operating under a threat.

Dick emphasizes, however, that the essence of the program is employment — putting men into useful private jobs. He points out that the total heads of household on relief in Ventura County has dropped from 850 a year ago to the present 395.

"CWEP is designed as an employer of last resort," Dick says.

Book Sale Earns Over $1,000

More than $1,000 was raised in the three-day book sale by Friends of the Marin County Free Library at College of Marin last week.

Mildred Bissinger said the group sold more books than in each of the two previous sales, but total receipts were down perhaps $100.

The largest sum paid was $100 for a set of art books, said Mrs. Bisuinger, and the most popular items were foreign language books.

The group's board of directors will meet Sept. 11 at 8 p.m. at the Corte Madera library when decisions on how to spend the $1,000 will be made.

Clerk Calls Police To Thwart Holdup

A would-be robber who borrowed a note pad and pencil from a San Rafael supermarket clerk Saturday to write a hold-up note fled in panic after the clerk said he was calling the police.

According to police, a man in a tan jacket and bluejeans entered the Short Stop market at 124 Bellam Boulevard in San Rafael at 12:40 a.m. and asked clerk Michael D. Boaz for a pencil and paper.

The robber fled after Boaz picked up the phone and said he was calling the police.

Cambodian Paper Closed For Good

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—A Cambodian language daily, Dam Noeung Pelprik, (Morning News), was ordered permanently closed yesterday.

The order, signed by Interior Minister Maj. Gen. Thappana Ngin, charged the newspaper and its director, Ly Eng, with publishing articles "injurious to the domestic and external security of the state."

Morning news has often been outspokenly critical of the regime of President Lon Nol and has been temporarily suspended by government authorities three times.

Californian Upsets Shane In Olympic Swimming

MUNICH(UPI)—Sandra Neilson of El Monte, Calif., upset teammate Shirley Babashoff and a favored Shane Gould of Australia to win the women's 100 meter freestyle of the Olympic Games Tuesday night.

Meanwhile Buddy Melges of Zenda, Wis., crossed the finish line first Tuesday in the first race of the Soling class as the Olympic yachting competition got under way at Kiel with more uncertainty among the experts and leaders than ever before. He had qualified at the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere — hosted trials on the San Francisco Bay.

The 16-year-old school girl, who had placed only third in the U.S. qualifying trials, moved to the front in the first 50 meters and maintained her front running position for a 58.6 second clocking to break the former Olympic record of 59.5 set in 1964 by Australian Dawn Fraser.

Miss Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., the world record holder in the 200 meter freestyle, took the silver medal in 59 seconds flat and Miss Gould was just a tick back in 59.1. Shane, who had set her goal on five individual gold medals here, was the winner of the 200 meter individual medley Monday night.

The three medalists happily embraced each other in the pool at the conclusion of the race and Miss Nielson was even more jubilant minutes later when she received the treasured gold medal from outgoing IOC President Avery Brundage.

First John Hencken of Santa Clara, Calif., reduced the mark to 1:05.7 in the first semi-final heat and then unheralded Nobutaka Taguchi of Japan brought the mark down to 1:05.1 in the second heat.

Nikolai Pankin of Russia, who had held the 100 meter breaststroke record for three years, swam in the same heat as Taguchi and tied for third at 1:06.1. Mark Chatfield of Glendale, Calif., also had a time of 1:06.1 to qualify for Wednesday night's final.

Tom Bruce of UCLA, the third U. S. entrant, was another qualifier in 1:06.0. Also moving along to the finals were Joe Fiolo of Brazil, David Wilkie of Great Britain and Walter Kusch of West Germany.

Spitz, who set a world record in winning the 200-meter butterfly and shared in another world record on the winning U. S. 400-meter freestyle relay team Monday, raced in the seventh and final heat of the freestyle event this morning. He was clocked in one minute, 55.2 seconds, just one tenth of a second shy of the Olympic record set by Australia's Mike Wenden four years ago.

Steve Genter of Lakewood, Calif., who has been bothered by a lung ailment, registered the second fastest time of the heat—1:54.4 —and the third U.S. entry, Fred Tyler of Winter Park, Fla., also qualified for tonight's final with a time of 1:56.0.

Agnes Kissne-Kaczander of Hungary set an Olympic record in the preliminaries of the women's 200-meter breaststroke with a time of 2:43.1. The old mark of 2:44.4 was set four years ago by Sharon Wichman of the United States.

Eva Kiss, also of Hungary and swimming in the same heat as her compatriot, bettered the former record, too, as she finished second in 2:43.7.

Mark Chatfield of the University of Southern California lowered the Olympi record in the men's 100-meter breaststroke by winning the first heat of the trials in 1:05.9. He was only one tenth of a second off the world record of 1:05.8 set by Nikoli Pakin of Russia in 1969.

The former Olympic mark of 1:07.7 was set in 1968 by Donald McKenzie of the U.S. Pankin swam in the second heat and won easily in 1:07.3.

Monday was a very special day for Micki King, and the "old lady" of diving wasn't about to let protocol interfere with what she called a "four year anniversary of Mexico."

In another olympic event, Russia's Valerij Tregubov, the European champion, handed the United States Olympic boxing team its first loss after four victories Tuesday when he scored an unpopular and controversial decision over Reggie Jones of Newark, N.J.

Despite having the Russian in trouble from the second round on in the light middleweight bout, Jones was unable to get the nod as a crowd of more than 4,000 hooted the officials for more than 10 minutes. Shouts of "fixed" filled the arena and when that had no effect, the fans hurled garbage into the ring in a wild demonstration.

Fishing In Rockies Is Hard To Beat

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It's back to the familiar surroundings of the I-J sports office after three weeks of —as the English say — going on holiday.

For the fourth straight year I was fortunate enough to get away for a few days in the Rocky Mountain area for some prize fishing in blue ribbon Idaho streams. I left my family home during that 10-day trip but returned in time to take wife and kids to Disneyland where I found it difficult to distinguish the real from the make-believe.

If you're a fly fisherman it would be hard to beat some of the fishing I encountered while catching rainbow trout in the clear waters of Silver Creek near Sun Valley and Henry's Fork of the Snake River at Island Park or 14 and 15-inch cutthroat trout in the Yellowstone River as it wound its way through the great park.

THE OTHER THREE members of our quartet are Sacramento area school teachers and coaches — Dick Cristofani, Charles Lee and Bruce Summers. Lee provided the camper pickup rig for the trip and this really makes it a great way to hit more than one or two fishing spots as you drive your way through the state.

Silver Creek is a short distance from Sun Valley and Ketchum where Ernest Hemingway did much of his trout fishing. The slow moving water is crystal clear and means you walk quietly and don't do any splashing. The leader tippet you're forced to use is 5X, somewhat thinner than the thread the wife uses to darn the sox. The rainbows of Silver Creek are very choosey and the fly must be presented very gently in front of their noses. But once you tempt one into taking that artificial insect, what a fight!

HENRY'S FORK of the Snake boasts the same type water, shallow enough to wade across in the portion we fished at Railroad Ranch. But most of the larger fish were in hiding since reports from all sport and fishing shops in the area were consistent in saying no large fish being caught. A hefty 15-incher caught by Lee was the largest taken from the Snake River by our group, although Cristofani is still murmuring about the fish that ran out all his fly line and backing before throwing the hook.

The stream runs through a wildlife preserve andbecause it takes about a mile walk from the highway it isn't overpopulated with fishermen. But the number is growing each year.

I FOUND MY OWN stretch of water and as I stared intently, trying to follow that tiny No. 16 Adams dry fly on the end of my line floating softly in the current, a beautiful swan flew down river, braked and landed like a sea plane just 40 yards from where I was wading. It was beauty with a capital B.

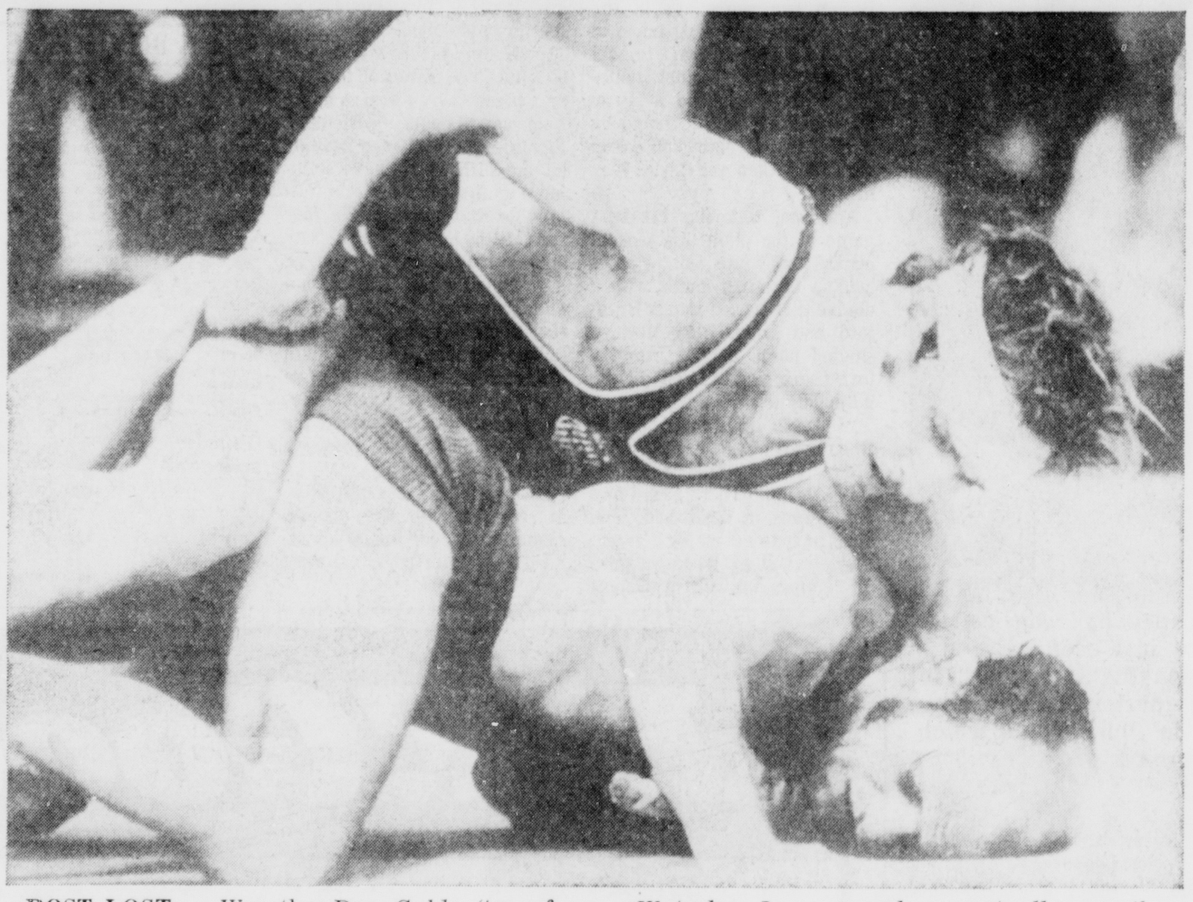

Next stop was the Yellowstone River during a drive through Yellowstone National Park. The limit in the park is three fish per person and anglers can't keep any under 14 inches. All fish were cutthroats and few of the fish we released were under the size limit. After losing a couple of nice fish I brought in my fly for examination and found the tip of the hook, with barb, was broken off. I kept that fly on and caught and "lost" two more. We all kept our limit and if you have never tried smoked cutthroat trout you are missing a real delicacy.

THE LARGEST FISH of the trip went to Summers, a modest cutthroat of 15½ inches. It was close since the rest of us had 15-inchers to put in our creels.

It rained lightly the first two days we were in Idaho and gave everything a freshly washed look. The air is so clear and the smell so refreshing to the nostrils. The natives of the area seem to take that smog-free living for granted. I didn't. Instead, I enjoyed every moment of that clean, fresh air of Idaho, although it took a little while to get accustomed to that strange smell of freshness.

IT WENT FROM one extreme to the other when I drove my family to Anaheim and was reintroduced to some of that Southern California smog. I guess some of those mountains surrounding Los Angeles are pretty. . .if you could just see them.

We put in a 14-hour day at Disneyland so I don't think we could have missed much there. But when I found myself trying to buy a ticket to the Disneyland cinema house from a lady made of plastic I decided that was time to leave.

A's Platoon Is Paying Off

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics are chasing Chicago in the American League West baseball race with a newly installed platoon system. And it is paying dividends.

"I like to play. But most of all, I want that World Series money," said the outfielder who delivered a three-run pinch hit home run that beat the Cleveland Indians 5-4 Monday night.

Matty Alou, the veteran outfielder acquired from St. Louis of the National League Sunday, got his first American League hit to start the A's five-run uprising in the seventh inning. He batted .314 with the Cardinals this season.

"I think now, with Matty in there, we've got the toughest lineup in the league," said Mangual.

"Angel has been playing well, especially lately," said the manager, making it clear the .249 hitter is being platooned and not benched because of the arrival of Alou.

Indians starter Steve Dunning, 3-2, had a one-hitter and 2-0 lead until Alou singled to open the A's seventh. A sacrifice fly by Ted Kubiak and a run-scoring single by Gene Tenace tied the score.

Mangual swatted on a 0-2 pitch from Kilkenny far over the left field fence to make it 5-2. Knowles, who relieved starter Vida Blue after six innings, got the victory to make his record 4-1.

Blue allowed only four hits, but one was a two-run homer by Roy Foster in the sixth. Graig Nettles hit another two-run shot in the ninth, off reliever Dave Hamilton.

"A right-hander? Our lineup will be exactly the same," said Williams.

ST. LOUIS PITCHER SHARP

Giants Plate Two Without Hit; Cardinals Take Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Giants scored twice without a hit, but the occasion was the biggest in baseball for slim St. Louis Cardinals rookie Don Durham.

Durham, 23 and two years out of college, yielded only three singles in pitching the Cards to a 4-2 victory Monday night.

Authoring his first complete game, the former Western Kentucky star fanned eight to tie his high in seven starts and walked three in boosting his record to 2-6.

"I'd say this had to be more satisfying than the first one," said Durham, who stopped the Giants 3-1 in San Francisco with relief help Aug. 18.

"I was able to spot the ball better, and I was stronger. In the first inning I was nervous. I finally found my rhythm and was able to hit on the outside. The key to the victory was just mixing it up."

While still nervous, Durham walked Bobby Bonds leading off the game and fell quickly behind as Bonds went to second on a wild pitch and came around on two ground balls.

The 6-foot blond was touched for singles by Dave Rader and Dave Kingman leading off the second inning but worked out of the jam and afterward yielded only a single to Rader in the fourth.

Lou Brock, meanwhile, quickly earned a tie for St. Louis' with his third homer leading off the first inning against Giants vet Juan Marichal, 5-15.

Carbo's double to left-center and Ted Simmons' single made it 4-1 in the third, a margin that looked final until Rader led off the ninth with a sinking line drive to right field.

Carbo charged the drive but overran it and looked up as the ball sailed past his glove and rolled to the wall. Rader circled the bases on what was ruled a four-base error.

"I'd have to admit I'm surprised to be up here but pleased," said Durham, who was called up from Tulsa July 13 following loss of starter Scipio Spinks.

"I came out of Class A ball last year," he added. "That's quite a jump to Triple A, and I was really getting adjusted. But I think I do have the ability to compete."

Raiders Resume Practice

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders returned to the practice field grind here today for the first time since Friday, facing some injury problems as an aftermath of their 31-13 National Football League exhibition victory Saturday over Buffalo.

Davidson injured an Achilles heel tendon on the last play of the game when he returned a fumble recovery 23 yards, then fell. The 32-year-old veteran of 12 seasons could be out of action for the Raiders' first three regular season games.

"It was a stupid thing to do," Big Ben said yesterday, adding wryly: "You know us rookies — we have to be heroes."

Otto, in his 13th pro campaign as center, suffered a knee injury that may sideline him four weeks.

Brown also received a knee injury, but less serious than Otto's. Even before the Buffalo game, the Raiders had a sizable injured list that included rookie fullback Ray Jamieson, halfback Clarence Davis and Hewritt Dixon, a running back last year and now a tight end.

Jamieson's spinal cord was damaged in an earlier preseason game in Los Angeles where he is hospitalized. Yesterday team physician R. Graham Reedy said, "Ray can move both his right arm and hand now."

49er Camp Pressure On Nolan

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — The films of Sunday's defensive lapses against Denver, an enlarged injury list and impending squad cuts have put the pressure on San Francisco 49ers Coach Dick Nolan to make every minute count in drills begun today to prepare for the Oakland Raiders.

The Raiders, 4-0 in National Football League exhibition games thus far, have won their last four preseason meetings with the 49ers, whose 27-24 loss to Denver left them 1-3.

"Too many players were trying to compensate for others instead of doig their own jobs," Nolan said. Injuries kept eight players out of the Denver game, and a ninth, tackle Len Rohde, was in for only one play.

Four San Francisco starters were injured against Denver, but split end Gene Washington and defensive tackle Earl Edwards were not hurt as seriously as first feared. X-rays taken Monday showed Washington had a shoulder sprain and Edwards a sprained knee, and both should be ready for the regular season opener Sept. 17 against the San Diego Chargers at Candlestick Park.

Center Forrest Blue, who had a shoulder strain, and receiver Dick Witcher, whose leg was bruised, probably will be recovered sufficiently for some action against the Raiders.

Cable Car Cage Tourney Moves To Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Cable Car Classic is crossing the bridge to Oakland.

Sponsors of the Sixth annual Cable car Classic basketball tournament said today that it would be switched to the Oakland Coliseum Arena from the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

University of San Francisco, Santa Clara, Duke and La Salle of Philadelphia will battle it out at the new site Dec. 8-9.

Chargers Suspend, Fine Runner Thomas

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —The San Diego Chargers suspended absentee running back Duane Thomas Tuesday and imposed a running fine of $150 a day.

"Duane Thomas was told to report to training camp by 6 o'clock Monday, coach Harland Svare said. "He failed to report. He is suspended without compensation. He will be fined $150 each day he is absent."

Thomas, acquired by the Chargers from Dallas in a trade for wide receiver Billy Parks and running back Mike Montgomery July 31, was seen visiting the Charger pre-season training camp at Irvine, Calif. on occasion but had not practiced or played.

"The Chargers have been patient with Duane and have given him ample time to clear up any personal matters," Svare said. "We don't know if he wants to play or not, but his period of grace is over.

"I said at the time of the trade for Duane that it was a gamble, and it was a roll of the dice. Whatever the outcome, I'm not going to look back. We have a good football team to get ready for the season. Time moves on."

Andrews Gains Some Revenge

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Mike Andrews was disappointed when Boston traded him to Chicago a couple of years ago but it was the Red Sox who probably had the regrets Monday night.

The former Boston infielder drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a double as the White Sox topped Boston 6-4. The victory kept Chicago a half-game in front of Oakland in the American League's Western divison.

Andrews, who reluctantly left Boston two years ago in the deal that sent Luis Aparicio to the Red Sox, came back to gain revenge on his former teammates as he snapped a scoreless tie in the fourth inning by hitting his seventh home run with Dick Allen and Carlos May aboard.

Andrews, enjoying his best game at the plate this season, helped the White Sox to a 5-1 lead in the sixth inning with a double that scored Buddy Bradford and Allen. Rich Morales singled home another run before the inning was out in the nationally-televised contest.

"I was a little down-hearted when they traded me," Andrews said. "Who wants to leave Boston? There aren't any better fans in the world. You don't have to get up for a game, they get you up. When we were 8 1-2 games out we still thought we were better than anybody else," Andrews added. "Now we're in front. We have the momentum and we just believe we're as good as anybody."

In other AL games, Baltimore blanked Minnesota 2-0, and Oakland edged Cleveland 5-4. In the National League, Pittsburgh defeated San Diego 5-3, St. Louis downed San Francisco 4-2 and Cincinnati whipped New York 5-2 in the only games scheduled.

Jim Palmer scattered five hits for his 18th victory as Baltimore blanked the Twins. The triumph moved the Orioles to within one game of the idle first place Detroit Tigers in the American League East. Don Baylor's ninth homer leading off the fifth inning gave Baltimore its first run.

Willie Stargell drove in four runs with his 29th and 30th homers to power Pittsburgh past the Padres. Bob Moose allowed only five hits over the first eight innings but was tagged for back-to-back ninth inning homers by Leron Lee and Nate Colbert. Ramon Hernandez came in to record the final two outs and preserve Moose's 10th victory.

Bobby Tolan's seventh homer, coming with two aboard, climaxed a four-run sixth inning that carried Cincinnati over New York.

Allen's Quest: White Sox Flag

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran slugger Dick Allen is bidding to become the first player in Chicago White Sox history to win the triple crown, but it's strictly a secondary objective for him.

"Triple crown, hell — the only thing I'm interested in is the club winning 95 games, which should be enough to win our division," Allen said Monday night before the White Sox beat the Red Sox 6-4 in a nationally televised baseball game.

The last player to win the Triple Crown was the Red Sox' Carl Yastrzemski in 1967, one year after Frank Robinson did it with Baltimore. Mickey Mantle performed the feat with the New York Yankees in 1956. Their teams won the AL pennant in those years.

"If I win the Triple Crown and we don't win, the Triple Crown will mean nothing," he added.

Allen played for Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles in the National League before being acquired by the White Sox after the 1971 season. He is leading the American League in batting .317, homers 32 and runs batted in 92.

He appears a shoo-in to win the homer and RBI titles, but is locked in a dogfight for the batting championship.

"There are a lot of things more important than average," he said while foregoing batting practice in his customary fashion. "If I go 0-for-4 in a game, but I move two men up and they score and we win 2-0, I feel that's as important as getting hits.

"Too many ballplayers think only of themselves and their averages. A batting average is fine only if it produces runs. That's what the game is — getting more runs than the other guy."

Pressure On Carter In Bengals Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The pressure was on and so was Virgil Carter.

The Cincinnati Bengals' search for a starting quarterback between Ken Anderson and Carter added another page Monday night as Carter threw a touchdown pass and directed the Bengals to a 34-20 come-from-behind victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in a National Football League pre-season game.

Running back Paul Robinson scored on third quarter touchdown plunges of six and two yards within a span of 3:09, bringing the Bengals from a 17-10 halftime deficit to a 24-17 lead.

Carter nailed down the victory in the fourth quarter when he passed three yards for a touchdown to rookie receiver Steve Kingman and then led the Bengals on a drive which consumed the final eight minutes and ended with a 13-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann.

The win was a plus in Carter's favor in the battle for the starting quarterback position since Anderson directed Cincinnati to a pair of TDs after Miami had wrapped up a convincing victory last week.

Elsewhere in pro football, the Los Angeles Rams announced that Ken Geddes, a second-year linebacker from Nebraska, will be lost for at least eight weeks with a broken right arm.

The Pittsburgh Steelers cut their pre-season roster to 55 players when sophomore quarterback Bob Leahy and four rookies were placed on waivers, setting up a backup quarterback battle between veteran Terry Hanratty and rookie Joe Gilliam.

TAKE THAT — Every boxer dreams of taking out his frustrations on the referee, but Vladimir Kolev (left) of Bulgaria and Abdelhamid Fouad Gad of Egypt actually looked like they were doing it in an Olympic Games bout yesterday in Munich. Actually, it was an optical illusion — Kolev spent most of his time hitting Gad and won the welterweight battle.

ter Bill Bowerman, head coach of the United States track and field team, revealed Tuesday that the U.S. has joined New Zealand and Ethiopia in an official protest over the construction of the Olympic marathon course.

"The course itself is beautiful," Bowerman explained, "but the surface is a quarter-inch rock which is quite fine, but can kickup and get into the runners' shoes."

Poland clocked 2:11:47.48 for second place, while the Netherlands, seeking a hat-trick of wins following victories at Tokyo and Mexico City, were third in 2:12:27.08.

Belgium, the reigning world champion, was fourth in 2:12:36.69.

The Sovet quartet included Boris Chouhov, Valeri Iardy, Gennady Kimnatov and Valeri Likhachev.

Runaway Inflation

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Tulsa University record keepers came up with an unusual sign of the times when a new synthetic turf was installed at Tulsa's Skeely Stadum. The new turf cost about $300,000 a figure which turned out to be $30,000 more than the stadium itself cost when built in 1930.

Biggest Audience Views Olympics On Television

By ALLAN BUNCE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Televisions biggest audience ever for a single "event," some 300 million different viewers around the world, will probably tune in to the Summer Olympics in Munich, being televised by ABC, among others, through Sept. 10.

That's more than saw the 1968 games in Mexico City, more than watched NFL football on ABC during its 14-game 1971 season. The 1969 moon landing, of course, was a much shorter occurrence, so its own tally — also nearly 300 million viewers — is in one way more impressive.

But as you get into the details of the Olympic audience, the figures begin reaching the sky. People will tune in during the 17-day period about a billion times, for instance, while the number of people who see it in the flesh will amount to "several" million.

Europeans cheering on their national swimmers or Brazilians exhorting their soccer team can thank four objects 22,000 miles in space for the images on screen. They are the communications satellites launched this summer — two over the Atlantic Ocean, one over the Pacific and another over the Indian Ocean — that relay channels for over 80 languages. More than 100 nations are drawing on the TV and radio coverage provided by the German Television Authority (DOZ). And many countries, of course, are using their own studies to record and edit the competition for their home audiences, including the United States, Japan, England, Canada.

Even the TV staff achieves army-like proportions. They are 2,500 strong — announcers, officials, technicians — one for every five athletes. That's because the coverage is not only vast but also complex, considering the time lag, national interests, and other factors that help determine who sees what, and when.

More than 100 color TV cameras are being used, and what they record will last three times as long as the Olympics itself, since the 35 events are held concurrently in 33 different sties. Most Americans still haven't latched onto soccer the way many other countries have, so a soccer match would be the day's big happening in many places but not the United States. Multiply this example by the number of countries and you get an idea of the programming job involved.

Then figure time belts. One major basketball game, for instance, is set for 2 p.m. in Munich. That's 5 a.m. in San Francisco. How is it all worked out?

By videotape recorders, 91 of which are in operation, most of them Ampex. Actually, almost all of the "live" TV coverage will be on videotape, whose ease of editing and playback facilites make the job possible. Add up the total value of TV equipment committed to the games and you get more than $30 million, according to DOZ.

Canadian Yacht Cup Choice Is Mirage

TORONTO (AP) — After a month of selection trials, Mirage has been chosen over Merry thought to defend the Canadia's Cup for the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. The two sloops sailed the final trial races Saturday.

Mirage, skippered by Gordon Fisher, will meet the Detroit challenger, Bayview Yacht Club's Dynamite, in a best-of-5 series starting Sept. 10.

Reading The Mind Of Bunting Batter

A bunt that advances a base runner is a sacrifice when the bunter is put out at first base. The bunter, in sacrificing, is not charged with a time at bat. That was the basic baseball rule until 1967 when it was changed.

A sacrifice bunt now depends on the batter's mental attitude and the official scorer's interpretation of what the batter had in mind. The 1967 restatement of what used to be a simple rule says:

"The official scorer should not credit the batter with a sacrifice bunt when, in the scorer's judgment, the batter was not bunting solely for the purpose of advancing a runner or runners."

This has led to considerable confusion from time to time since official scorers, being ordinary mortals, are not very good mind readers.

So when Chris Speier pushed a right side roller to Houston Astro first baseman recently at Candlestick when the Giants were leading 3-1, the official scorer momentarily decided that Speier was trying for a hit, not solely trying to advance Garry Maddox from second to third base.

"I'LL CHECK with Speier after the game," said the scorer, "I think he was trying for a hit."

The scorer thought wrong. Speier told him he solely was trying to move Maddox to third by punching the ball to the right side. The scorer didn't hesitate in changing his tentative ruling. He credited Speier with a sacrifice which, of course, meant that Speier wasn't charged with a time at bat.

It was an equitable and just reversal of an initial ruling because Speier twice obviously tried to push the ball to the right side before succeeding on his third try.

The fact that Speier didn't bunt the ball but punched it in a pushing shot to the right side caused the scorer's momentary indecision. It was the first time in Candlestick that a right side roller was ruled a sacrifice. It set a precedent, one that should be followed in all ball parks.

SHORTLY AFTER the 1967 restatement of the bunt sacrifice became baseball law, a situation arose in Candlestick when the Giants were leading the Phillies 9-3. Bobby Schroder dragged a bunt down the first base line. The official scorer decided that Schroder was bunting for a hit, not solely for the purpose of advancing Ollie Brown and Tom Haller who were on second and first at the time with none out.

"With nobody out, runners on second and first, it has to be a sacrifice," said Lewis and the scorer bowed to his superior knowledge. Schroder was credited with a sacrifice.

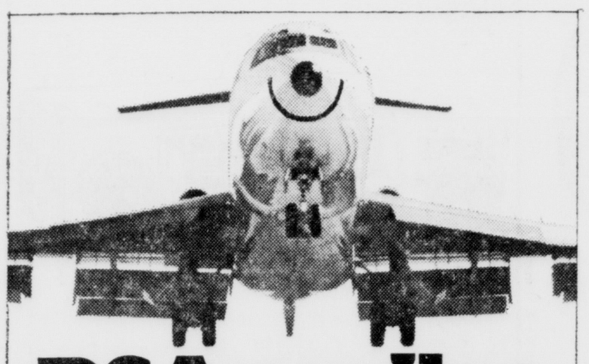

But after the game Schroder was asked if he actually tried for a bunt hit and he said: "I was bunting for a hit."

FISH AND GAME

Hot Stripe Bass Fishing Situation

By AL GIDDINGS

Striped bass fishing has been on the hot side this past week, even over the weekend. Most of the fish have been taken by those fishermen using live shiners.

Last Wednesday, I observed the fishing at the Sisters Islands off the McNear's Beach area. There were four party boats and eight small boats working the area. The small boats, with usually up to three persons aboard, caught about 40 stripers. The fish were from 17 inches to four pounds in size. The party boats with from 15 to 25 anglers aboard each took over 25 fish, or perhaps two fish to the rod.

The area fished is 100 yards east of the Sisters, on the incoming tide. This tide causes a rip over the reef. The technique is to drift with the tide from about 200 yards south of the reef to the reef itself. Use a regular shiner hookup outfit with either six or eight ounces of weight to keep your bait just off the bottom.

The sinker must occasionally bump the bottom. If you have a problem, check with Bill Bayle of the Loch Lomond Live Bait barge; he sells shiners, shiner buckets and the sinkers and leader setups needed. Live perch seem to work better than dead ones. While I was there I tried trolling with bugeyes but couldn't get a fish. On Thursday, I tried it using the shiner technique, and listening to the advice of those present, managed to bring home a limit.

ON SATURDAY, using the same methods, good numbers of stripers were taken at the Sisters, the Brothers, and between the Richmond Bridge and the white buoy marker south of the bridge. Sunday, I checked the Sausalito area. About 90 stripers were logged in at the Sausalito Clipper Yacht Harbor by 2 p.m. These fish weighed from eight to an occasional 20 pounder. All of the anglers I checked fished the incoming tide, again using the shiner drifting method. The area fished was in Raccoon Straits. With less snags there, and the fish whoppers, it is really worth a go. Eight ounces again was enough weight to get the baits to the bottom which is most necessary.

The first half of the 1972-73 morning dove season opens next Friday at 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. The second half opens Nov. 25 through Dec. 10. Both seasons are statewide. The bag limit is 10 per day, 20 in possession of all species, except that not more than one daily bag limit may be possessed on opening day.

The Sierra and Ruffed grouse season opens Sept. 2 through Sept. 24 in many of the counties of the state. (Consult the Hunting Regulations for the open counties). The bag and possession limit is two per day, two in possession.

The Sage Grouse season will be open Sept. 2-4 in Inyo, Lassen, Modoc and Mono counties. The bag and possession limit is two birds per day, two birds per season. Along with these seasons, the rabbit season including cottontails and brush rabbits is already open through Jan. 28, with a five per day, five in possession bag limit. So there you have it! With Sept. 4 a holiday, you scattergunners can get in a real holiday.

THE MARIN COUNTY buck hunters are still having a rough time. Fog along the coastal ranches keeps the morning visibility to a minimum, and makes for tough hunting. Then the sun comes out about 9 a.m. and it's too hot to hunt. I haven't been able to find a buck to date; they are tough!

If you haven't been out yet with either your rifle or shotgun, now is a good time to sight them in. With your rifle — measure off 25 yards, make a mark about bullet size on a cardboard box, then shoot from a prone position with a good comfortable rest. Squeeze the trigger, and if you're on the mark, most modern deer rifles will also be on at 250 yards. You'll be about two to four inches high at mid-range (125 yards), and about five inches low at 300 yards. This method covers all ranges to 300 yards.

IT'S IMPORTANT to also sight in your shotgun by sighting and shooting at 35 to 40 yards. Use a four foot square paper target just to check your patterns.

They should be centered and evenly spaced. Use the same type shells and shot. If they are off, head for the nearest gunsmith. You need help!

Additionally, the Department of Fish and Game trout stocking crews will plant catchable-size rainbows in Marin County reservoirs: Bon Tempe, Lagunitas and Phoenix.

Nicklaus Surpasses Money Mark

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Jack Nicklaus established a new record for earnings in a single season by winning the United States Professional Match Play championship, it was announced Monday by the Professional Golfers Association Tournament Players Division.

Nicklaus captured the $40,000 first prize at Pinehurst, N.C., for his sixth win on the tour this year to boost his season's total winnings to $280,482 and surpass the previous record of $244,490 he set last year.

The only changes in the top ten involved the seventh and eighth positions. Tommy Aaron, who tied for 39th in the L&M Open, moved into the seventh spot ahead of Tom Weiskopf, who did not compete.

Basketball

DETROIT — Ray Scott, has been named assistant coach and chief scout for the Detroit Pistons, joining coach Earl Lloyd to make the Pistons the only club in the National Basketball Association with an all-black coaching staff.

"What it boils down to is having a person the coach can work with," said Piston General Manager Ed Coil in announcing the decision Monday. "There are plenty of teams with all white coaching staffs."

Scott was the Pistons' No. 1 draft choice in 1961. He averaged 17.9 pointsduring the 1965-66 season, his best, before he was traded to the Baltimore Bullets for the 1966-67 season. Scott still ranks as the Pistons' eighth highest scorer, fourth in rebounds and fifth in assists.

Bowling

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Jim Godman, Lorain, Ohio, Monday breezed to his seventh professional bowlers association victory in the $40,000 Grand Rapids Open at Westgate Lanes with 10,023 pins in 42 games, 312 pins more than runnerup Jim Stefanich.

Hockey

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Eddie Westfall, a star forward for the Boston Bruins for many years, has signed a three-year contract with the New York Islanders, a National Hockey League expansion club.

Westfall had one season to go on his old contract with the Bruins. Acquired by the Islanders in the expansion draft last June, he negotiated a new agreement. Terms were not disclosed.

Baseball

SAN FRANCISCO — Outfielder Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs today was named National League Player of the Week for his performance in games Aug. 21-27.

League Prsident Charles S. Feeney announced Williams' selection and noted that during the week he batted .462 with 12 hits in 26 at bats. Included were four homeruns and 11 runs driven in. It was the second time this year Williams has won the award.

American Legion Baseball Title To Lewis-Clark

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Lewis-Clark, Idaho, edged Watco Electric of Portland, Ore., 6-5 on a bases loaded, two-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning to win the Northwest Region American Legion Baseball crown Monday.

The host Twins advance to the American Legion world series in Memphis, Tenn., Thursday.

Lewis-Clark loaded the bases in the final inning on two errors and a bunt single with no outs. Watco reliever Gail Meier got the next two batters on an infield grounder and a strikeout but pinchhitter Jim Dompier tapped a single to left to drive in the winning run and hand Meier his first loss of the year.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Only Gradual Climb From New Products

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. What effect do you think G.D. Searle's (NYSE) new Cu-7 device for birth control will have on earnings? — L.W.

A. A new drug application will be filed on this copper intrauterine contraceptive device along with applications for Norpace and Depepsin, drugs for treatment of cardiac arrhythmias and peptic ulcer. If FDA approval is granted earnings will not be materially boosted before 1974. More important to future earnings increments, however, is a pending Food Additive Petition to the FDA for an artificial sweetener. This product, which leaves no bitter aftertaste, is significant because of the greater breadth of its potential market particularly in view of the negative findings on cyclamates and saccharin.

In recent years, Searle has allocated an increasing percentage of its sales dollar — 12% last year —to research and development efforts. With one of the largest ratios of R&D expenditures in the industry, Searle has established a leading position in oral contraceptives and hypertension drugs. First half sales scored an impressive 20 per cent gain, while earnings moved ahead 15 per cent to $1.38 a share. Full year profits of $3.00 a share are possible for an earnings multiple of 36x, about average for the industry.

Q. Please give me your opinion of the Oppenheimer Fund. — B.L.

A. This open-end load fund has as its primary objective maximum capital growth, which it has achieved with fairly consistent success. In the decade through June, 1972, Oppenheimer had scored an average annual growth rate of 10 per cent. By comparison, an average of 130 load stock funds managed less than half that rate in the same period. On the other hand, income return s below average at 1.6 per cent versus 2.4 per cent for all funds.

The fund invests primarily in common stocks, although bonds, cash and fixed income securities may be held if conditions warrant. At the 1971 year end, 89 percent of assets were invested in a list of more than 100 common stocks. This fund is suited for investors seeking capital appreciation.

Market On Low Side At Opening

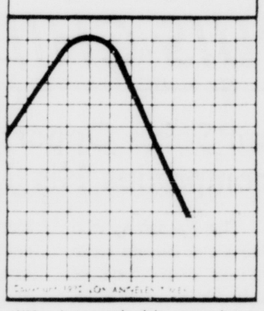

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market turned sharply lower during the first two hours today as investors showed concern over Price Commission decisions. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was moderate.

A major dampening effect, according to most analysts, was the Price Commission's decision to deny 1973 price increase requests by General Motors and Ford, two industrial giants.

Prices were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Syntex was the most active issue, off 3 3-4 at 79 3-4 on 80,600 shares.

On the Big Board, GM lost 14 and Ford 1 3-8.

A QUIET PLUS

Plymouth's Sebring Plus two-door hardtop offers a fresh, sophisticated styling theme for 1973 and the quietest ride ever for this intermediate-sized car. Electronic ignition system and disc brakes are standard. Options include halo-type vinyl roof and factory installed sliding roof. Corte Madera Chrysler-Plymouth is the Marin dealer.

MERCURY MONTEGO

The Mercury Montego MX Brougham enhances its "Car of the Year" styling with a modified front appearance including a new grille and bumper. All 1973 Lincoln-Mercury cars have a new bumper system designed to reduce damage on impact. Newly designed low-back front seats are standard on all models. As in 1972, there are nine Montego models offered in 1973. New option offerings include long-wearing radial-ply, steel belted tires; a rear window electric defroster for station wagons; and a leather-wrapped steering wheel. Marin dealers are Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury in San Rafael and Larry Brink Motors in Mill Valley.

1973 DODGE CHALLENGER

With it or without the optional Rallye package, the 1973 Dodge Challenger presents sporty up-to-date style in a two-door hardtop model that commands second looks. Among new '73 features are barrier impact protection system and emissions control refinements, electronic ignition. Base engine is the 318 CID V8; the 340 V8 is Rallye engine.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

A Truly Dedicated Public Servant

Marin has lost one of its finest leaders with the death of John F. McInnis.

For months, John McInnis knew that his days were numbered. A series of operations failed to eliminate intestinal cancer which was killing him. But he held on to the end with the dogged determination that characterized his life.

FROM THE TIME that he surfaced as a leader of Bret Harte residents in a campaign for better city services, John was never long out of the public eye. That activity led him to successfully seek election to the San Rafael City Council in 1952. From then until his death, he always held public office except for a lapse of two years.

After four years on the city council, he successfully challenged incumbent Edward Culver for the mayoralty. He was reelected repeatedly, until he came to be regarded as unbeatable.

His one period out of office came after he gave up the mayor's position to run unsuccessfully against Byron W. Leydecker for a short term on the county board of supervisors. After that two-year hiatus, he won a supervisorial post; which he continued to hold.

THERE WERE AMPLE reasons why John McInnis was so nearly unbeatable for Marin public office.

The prime reason was that people learned they could trust him. They found in John McInnis an officer holder who took the role of public servant seriously. He was devoted to the public good as he saw it. And he usually saw it with clear vision.

John McInnis was not a "boat rocker." He tried to avoid "making waves." But he would stick doggedly to what he believed. And he never gave up.

As mayor, he pressed constantly for public improvements, for greater city services. Widening his horizon beyond San Rafael, he was one of the organizers of the Association of Bay Area Governments, which has come to play an important role in public affairs of the San Francisco Bay Area. It was formed with a concept dear to John: that city governments need not abdicate their powers to work together for area-wide improvements.

Increasingly, he won recognition as a calm, sure counselor in adapting traditional state-county-city relationships to the new problems created by "megalopolis" and ever-increasing area-wide inter-relationships.

On the board of supervisors, he became the "balance wheel." His counsel was sorely missed during this year's county budget sessions, which illness prevented him from attending.

THERE ARE A FEW visible monuments to John McInnis here and there: the San Rafael City Hall, probably his dearest project, toward which he worked from almost the beginning of his city council years; the city library addition; new firehouses added during his administration.

But his greatest monument is in the hearts of Marinites who learned to respect him as a truly dedicated public servant.

His passing leaves a void that will not be quickly filled.

Antioch Bridge Proposal Among Stampeded Bills

By EARL G. WATERS

In their rush to recess after seven months of indolent effort, the Legislature hastily passed bills which were deserving of more considered study. An example of the stampeding which preceded the recess was the passage in one day of 100 bills. The total measures passing both houses during the entire session was fewer than 900.

One measure rammed through without full exploration of all its ramifications provides for a new bridge at Antioch. In gaining passage Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, may have done a distinct disservice to a major portion of his and adjoing districts.

For an earlier law by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, would require the bridge to be constructed to accommodate the proposed rapid transit corridor between San Francisco and Sacramento. This could have an adverse effect on Richmond as well as Berkeley and Vallejo. For the corridor would most likely bypass those communities and change long-established traffic patterns.

WORSE, THE BILL contains provisions which could make those traveling the present route pay for the strangulation of their own communities. For, as a means of financing, Nejedly's bill would permit the extension and increase of tolls on the Carquinez and Benecia bridges.

The idea that motorists should pay bridge tolls to finance rapid transit is even more inequitable than imposing the gas sales tax on motorists to subsidize mass transit. Either rapid transit should stand on its own or subsidization assessments should be equal and general.

Even more to the point, the entire bill was predicated upon a need that has not been fully established. Present traffic on the bridge certainly doesn't warrant the expenditure, variously estimated as between 25 and 45 millions.

THE ADVOCATES of a new bridge advance the idea that the bridge is near falling down. Such is not the case. It has been damaged several times by ships colliding with it. Each time repairs have restored it.

The confusion as to its safety stems from the fact the federal government is funding, in part, the rebuilding of bridges found to be unsafe. The state has submitted a proposal under these provisions for a new Antioch bridge. The proposal has not been approved by the federal agency. But the reason it might qualify is that the lanes are not wide enough to meet today's highway standards. This is the only safety factor and has nothing to do with the structural safety.

All is not lost, however. Alquist's law applies only if the bridge is constructed before a specified time in 1973. Unless the time is extended by some future action of the Legislature the bridge could be built without any provisions for rapid transit.

Also, Nejedly's bill gives the department latitude. It declares the bridge shall be constructed "as soon as economically feasible". It could be years before such a finding if ever.

EVEN SO, the sin of rushing bills through without due consideration is demonstrated in the language of Nejedly's bill. For it requires the department to immediately design the bridge while permitting the delay of construction until the economics have been resolved.

How can the expenditure for design be justified for a bridge when the economic feasability is yet to be determined? And when, because of the Alquist provisions, the designer cannot possibly be certain of what type of bridge should be designed?

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

There are some instances of the abridgement of the freedom of the people by gradual and silent encroachments of those in power than by violent and sudden usurpation. — James Madison.

There is nothing in the nature of money to produce happiness. The more a man has, the more he wants. Instead of filling a vacuum, it makes one. — Benjamin Franklin.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

None Can Duplicate Maybelle Speckmann

It has come to my attention that Maybelle Speckmann is leaving the Independent-Journal. I feel it would be remiss on my part not to express my gratitude for her years of devotion to music in Marin. It seems to me, as I look back over her years with the paper, that there has never been an instance in which she failed to do all in her power to promote a healthy, active musical life in the county.

No one can really duplicate, in the future, the kind of service she did for the arts — she entered the scene at a time of great growth, and she did her best to stimulate it. In all this she was most successful, and we shall all miss her very much indeed.

Water District Slow To Stop Wastage

I recall reading some fancy rhetoric in the Independent-Journal a few months ago relative to a very serious potential water shortage. As a concerned group of consumers, we were admonished by Manager Seeger of the Municipal Water District to conserve water to avoid rationing and water shortage.

Tuesday evening, Aug. 22, there was a serious break in the water line on Esmeyer Drive in Terra Linda, with water spewing down the street into the drainage basin. I reported the problem to Mr. Seeger's department and was told they would take care of the problem. A follow-up call two hours later (the water was still pouring down the street) resulted in the response — "the matter was looked into, the water leak is serious and we will have the contractor do something tomorrow morning." At 8:30 a.m. the next day, the water was still being wasted.

Complacent talk but no action doesn't help conserve water that is wasted running down the street. Perhaps the water district likes to see water wasted so they can prove (to unsuspecting users) that they were right in predicting a water shortage!

No Place To Park For Downtown Worker

After your article last week on parking in the municipal lot, I thought you might like to hear the other side of the coin.

I work downtown and have to park in the lot, and every two hours remember to go over and put in my dime. This to start with is a problem as if I happen to be on the phone or talking to a customer, then very possibly I will get a ticket. But with this, the problem wasn't too bad, a ticket now and then I could stand.

Since your article, which was good from the standpoint of the shopper, I have now received $9 worth of tickets, plus running over with the dimes and the mental strain of having to be more on the alert as to the time. This also reflects on my work, as I'm sure you can realize.

Now, what about the people that work downtown. Where are they supposed to park? Have you tried to find a place or is one provided for you by the I-J? And, your comment about parking all day for 40 cents. I noticed that the city has a lot way down on Third, toward the freeway, which states "park all day for 35 cents". In checking on this, I also find that over the fact it would be blocks for me to walk as I work on C Street between Fourth & Fifth, but it is usually full of cars of commuters who drive there, put in their 35 cents and then catch a bus to the city . . .

Kaiser Hospital Fills Emergency Role

I would like to publicly thank the emergency room staff at the Kaiser Hospital in Terra Linda for the quick, fine service afforded my daughter on Saturday, Aug. 19.

She rather severly cut a finger when she dropped and broke a fish bowl. Although we are not members of the Kaiser Plan, we were quickly handled at the receptionist's desk, and Suzie was sutured and out of the hospital within 25 minutes.

Fortunately, this turned out to be not nearly so serious as the blood and size of the wound would have initially indicated. Nevertheless, it does give one confidence to know that the hospital is nearby.

Dastardly Deed On Fourth Street

Well, we had a real crisis in San Rafael city government this past week. All caused by those attractive, colorful banners on Fourth Street advertising a wonderful event, our own Marin County Fair. Seems as though the mayor, the city council, the planning department and the city manager's office all got into the act. Evidently, the fair officials had not talked to the right people when they received permission to do this dastardly deed.

Bel-Marin Keys Against Joint Use

In the Aug. 21 Independent-Journal story, "Air Base Joint Use Study Ready," the Marin County Planning Department stated that limited joint military-civilian use of Hamilton Air Force Base would not increase the level of noise. How could they possibly have come to such a conclusion?

We own a home in Bel-Marin Keys, adjacent to the air force base, and we would like to go on record as being very much opposed to the civilian-military use of the base.

How can anyone state with so-called "authority" that additional noise from commercial aviation would not affect Novato residents too much since they are already used to military jets? Only someone totally deaf could get used to the screaming, sonic boom of Air Force jets. Everytime one of those ear-splitting, nerve-shattering jets roars over our home, it makes me feel like climbing up the wall. To say nothing of what it does to our poor dog's ears.

To add 40 more civilian jet plane arrivals and departures from Hamilton A.F.B. would certainly be a detriment to the Bel-Marin Keys community, as well as all of Novato, the Black Point-Green Point area, and Bahia. How could such jet noise impact be minimized under any circumstances? And what about the air pollution they would create? What about the increase of automobile traffic, with it's attendant air pollution, to and from the joint base airport?

People in Bel-Marin Keys don't want their boulevard used for this increased auto traffic. Marin County is relatively free now from the smog that hangs over San Francisco, Los Angeles, and other jet airports. We'd like to keep it that way. . .

GOP Looks Over-Confident While Democrats Disorganized

MIAMI BEACH — Are the Republicans overdoing it? They organized their convention almost totally on the theme of confidnce, strength, and self-congratulation. Part of this, of course, was politics as usual. That's the way parties talk.

But usually a convention is tempered and rendered interesting and suspenseful by some kind of contest. Here the nominees were decided, the platform was substantially pre-determined, the rules by which the delegates will be chosen four years from now under White House control, and the program constructed upon an unrelieved note of praise of President Nixon.

It is not easy to avoid this sort of thing when you are renominating a President. The conventions which renominated Franklin D. Roosevelt three times were dominated by him and his record. But always there was some kind of serious divergence within the party, which surfaced and made the proceedings credible. Twice, Franklin Roosevelt switched his vice presidents. There was conflict and there was suspense.

TODAY THE REPUBLICAN Party walks on the verge of overconfidence, if not of overkill. All the signs, of course, point to the disorganization of the McGovern campaign. But if ever a campaign was launched in an atmosphere of supreme confidence, it is this one. The business of the convention was minus-clue. The social program was massive. The yachts, "Nixon's navy," were the favorite spots for parties.

The Republican Party, which has been an underdog most of the time for the last four decades, is enjoying its time of triumph. And President Nixon, who has also had the time of defeats, must be savoring these hours.

It is a remarkable achievement, with the Vietnam war still going on and the weight of bombs dropped on the adversary every day mounting still higher over the totals ever dropped on people before. The Vietnam veterans, and others, strove to drive the war issue home, but they seemed to make little impression on the delegates, and through them on the American people. There seemed to be little to mar the moments of triumph.

Protruding through the social facade was very heavy police and military security. It was depressing to see the phalanxes of khaki-clad forces filing through the front doors of luxury hotels, and to walk miles around the steel-linked fences in order to find the gates of the convention hall that one could enter the day before the sessions.

The Secret Service was everywhere. These signs of the times remind us that America's days of violence and madness may not be full behind us. One yearns for a better time.

THE DEMOCRATIC convention had its euphoria. So did the Republican. But they area totally different kinds of glory. With the Democrats, a lively and reformist group had seized the party machinery. They were triumphant an dedicated. They sat in their seats all night long, while fights between the old and new guards were waged and won by the rebels.

The triumph here for the Republicans was quite different. The party machinery was tightly controlled, unchallenged. Their President was firmly in charge, sitting on an impressive lead, campaigning from strength.

The McGovernites had won an important skirmish, but they soon fell into disarray. They faced hostility from their orthodox party machinery. But they felt as they left Miami Beach that they were riding a wave of national demand for change: against an unpopular war, for tax reform, for populism.

Nixonites have a largely united party. They have support from some orthodox Democrats, notably in the South. They feel that the nation, far from being ready for major change, is essentially conservative, essentially satisfied.

There is some strength, surely, in both points of view. The American nation is sometimes subject to powerful moods. The Republican Party, as evidenced here, has confident national leadership but a continuing weakness in Congress and in local offices. Nixon strength grows in the South while southern Democrats cling to their seats in Congress and thus deter a Republican majority there.

Yes, I think the Republicans are overdoing their paeans of self-priase. But who knows? Maybe this is the way you storm the citadels of public opinion. We shall see.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Can Nixon Seize Opportunity That Accompanies His Triumph?

MIAMI BEACH — The President who has been renominated for a second term and seems, judging by every test of public opinion, certain to be re-elected, has the greatest opportunity of almost any man ever to hold the office.

His critics believe he is incapable of seizing the opportunity to broaden the base of his party and lead the nation out of the swamp of division and doubt growing out of an unpopular war and the inflationary pressures it has generated. They point to the way in which here at Miami Beach, through his unquestioned control of the convention, he stamped the narrow pattern of the past on every single gesture. His decision to keep Vice President Spiro Agnew was in that same pattern.

But in his first four years he has shown the capacity to take bold and innovative decisions. That he was the architect of the approach to Peking and the reunion with Moscow there could be no doubt — an architect who employed a skilled contractor in Henry A. Kissinger. These were decisions deeply offensive to the hard-liners who dominated this convention.

TO MOVE OUT from the protective shelter of these same hard-liners will be far more difficult on Vietnam and the stern measures that must be taken if the economy at home and abroad is to be brought into some kind of balance. That will mean bringing in new men, new life, beyond the scope of the Agnews and the Gerald Fords. An administration including figures challenging to the party and to the past like Gov. Nelson Rockefeller can signify the beginning of a new approach.

Rockefeller has been saying here that, contrary to a commonly held belief, he does not expect to go to Washington after January to be secretary of state of defense. He will stay in Albany to wrestle out the overwhelming problems of his own state. His close associates say he does not expect to be asked to go Washington.

STRETCHING THE imagination a bit, consider inaugural week next January in the wake of a Nixon landslide. Thanks in large part to the fearful disarray of the Democrats, he has brought in with him a Republican Senate and a House of Representatives narrowly controlled by his own party. This will be the pinnacle of power for one who a decade ago was put down on the dust heap of failure.

Then, if this is not merely fantasy in a time of fearsome accidents and volatile change, will be the measure of the man and the measure of his opportunity. He cannot afford reprisals for past injuries. He cannot afford to prosecute the war in Vietnam which President Nguyen Van Thieu has said must go on for years into the future.

He cannot afford to stay within the closed world of a few close friends and associates. The broader view is that of a President who has won complete independence in large part by his own grit and political skill.

The word that comes to mind is magnanimity. It is the magnanimity, say, of Abraham Lincoln's second inaugural address at the close of a terrible Civil War.

The bitter-end critics will say there is nothing in the Nixon record to support tha hope for such a magnanimity. But triumph as well as failure can bring a change of spirit. It's beyond the cloying incense of-idolatry, professional idolatry, offered up so appropriately in the vulgarity of this colossal wedding cake of a resort, that one must look for hope for the renewed vision of the America that was once, in Lincoln's words, the last best hope of earth.

Rohnert Park Stadium Fund Has School Supporters Worried

Rohnert Park has long been known as the hotbed of sports enthusiasm in Sonoma County, but the ambitious plan to build a $200,000 football stadium makes the title official.

Rohnert Park residents take their sports very seriously and are about as loyal as any fans in the world. Rancho Cotate High School football games pack the stands and even lesser teams such as junior high and Pop Warner leagues draw big crowds. Even team practices draw more fans than many schools get when a conference title is at stake.

THE ORIGINAL GOAL is $140,000 was boosted to $200,000 when it hit $144,000 this week, but apparently not all residents are happy about how the money was raised.

Most of the funds came from developers who pledged to donate $100 for each acre developed in Rohnert Park. Some feel this could put the city at a marked disadvantage. They predict the day will come when a developer will present a terrible plan to the city council and will point out that the stadium fund drive will lose a substantial amount of money if it is denied.

Those closely associated with the financially troubled Cotati School District are heartsick at seeing funds raised for sports activities when children may be put on double sessions at crowded schools. They say the per-acre donation plan will encourage even faster growth and put schools in a worse position.

IN PETALUMA, a major feud seems to be brewing between Mayor Helen Putnam and County Supervisor Philp L. Joeger. As a city councilman prior to election to the county post, Joerger often disagreed with Mrs. Putnam, and it seems that serving on two different boards has intensified the differences.

Some say Joerger's criticism of Petaluma's environmental design plan is aimed at the mayor more than at the document itself. When Mrs. Putnam appeared before the supervisors to seek county approval of it, Joerger was basically quiet except to say he had "some reservations" about it.

When Mrs. Putnam followed up the meeting with a letter to Joerger asking for his specific concerns, Joerger responded only in very general terms, saying he thought the plan ignores private property rights and smacks of "socialist" influences.

The use of the word "socialist" brought only titters and chuckles from others who read the letter, but deep down the city officials are worried that the plan to limit growth will be ruined without county cooperation in curbing development around the city.

NEW STATE AGENCY

A Place To Express Auto Repair Gripes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — If you are angry about the way your car was repaired, telephone 800-952-5210 toll-free and gripe.

Chances are good the listener at the other end of the line in Sacramento will take action to satisfy your grievance.

A state agent may even investigate and the dealer could find himself facing fraud charges in court.

An estimated 1,000 calls a week pour into the 6-month-old state Bureau of Automotive Repair from car owners who figure they have been gyped by mechanics.

The bureau was created by the 1971 Legislature to license dealers and protect consumers against unscrupulous repairmen. Although still gearing up, the agency is preparing a fleet of "bugged" cars and hiring specially-trained mechanics who double as detectives.

Tucked away on a Sacramento side street, the bureau's phones ring almost nonstop eight hours a day. A battery of "consumer representatives," all women who have been trained in automobile nomenclature, field the angry calls and make detailed reports on each.

In most cases, says bureau chief Robert Alexander, the dispute is "mediated" by the consumer representative who calls the repair dealer and notifies him of the complaint.

The repair dealer, who must be licensed by the agency, often insists he knows nothing of the consumer complaint and agrees to take the car back and fix it correctly after getting a call from the agency, Alexander says.

In cases where fraud is suspected, the complaint is turned over to bureau superiors who authorize an investigation, especially when a pattern develops around one dealer. The bureau has no jurisdiction over incompetent work or car warranties.

When a dealer is suspected of gyping the consumer, bureau investigators may rig up a "bugged" car, one with a controlled defect, and drive it to the repairman. If he claims to have fixed the car but hasn't, performs unnecessary work or charges for work unperformed, he is a likely candidate for legal action by the district attorney.

Even if a court fails to punish the dealer, the bureau is empowered to discipline him by suspending or revoking his license. Four cases have been referred to county prosecutors since July 1 when enforcement provisions of the new law took effect.

Of California's approximately 38,000 repair dealers, ranging from one-man moonlighters to vast automotive garages — 33,000 have been registered and licensed.

"Right now the industry has a terrible reputation," says Alexander, a former mechanic and investigator for several state agencies. "How many people do you know who leave a repair shop not feeling they've been had?"

But he says that generally the automotive repair industry supports the new state agency because legitimate dealers want "us to get rid of the crooks."

The toll-free telephone number was created as a convenience for consumers and already Alexander is wondering about adding three more caller lines to the bureau's existing five.

He says populous Los Angeles and San Francisco have the greatest incidence of consumer complaints, and that is where the bureau will initially concentrate its fraud detection activities. In some cases, an undercover "little old lady" will drive a "bugged" car to a dealer who is suspected of defrauding the public.

He said favorite "marks" of such dealers are women or the elderly while "the tourist is always a good target, especially out in the desert."

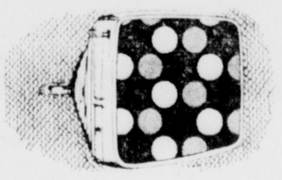

Alexander says one repair dealer on a lonely stretch of highway in the Southern California desert has been under surveillance and agents are about ready to move in and "hit him with just about everything in the penal code."

The agency soon will require dealers to post an official state sign declaring that he is registered and advising the customer that he is entitled to a written estimate for repair work, an invoice of work performed and parts supplied and the return of replaced parts.

It will also advise the motorist that any questions should first be directed to the repair manager and that "unresolved questions" can be submitted to the bureau, toll-free, by calling 800-952-5210.

'One Man's Party' Pilot Show Somehow Lacking In Suspense

WASHINGTON — It is not generally known, but last week's Republican National Convention was a pilot for a weekly TV series titled "One Man's Party," scheduled to premiere this fall.

Network officials decided to try out the show this summer to see how it would be received. A meeting was held in New York yesterday between the network executives and the packagers of the program, who were hoping the option would be picked up for another 29 weeks.

A TV network vice president said, "It was an interesting pilot. It didn't get the ratings we thought it would . . ."

"BUT WHAT ABOUT the show itself? It was beautiful, huh?" another Republican packager pressed.

"It had color," another TV network man said. "God knows it had color. But I'm not sure it would make a weekly series."

"Why not?" a third Republican packager asked. "It had music, excitement, soars and the American flag. What more do you want?"

"It had all that," a TV executive said, "but it just didn't seem to have the suspense we were hoping it would."

"What do you mean it didn't have the suspense?" a Republican packager demanded. "How about after Nixon was nominated, when the rope got caught and we didn't know if the balloons would drop from the ceiling of the convention hall or not?"

ANOTHER REPUBLICAN packager said angrily, "Don't tell us we didn't have suspense. What about the roll call vote for President Nixon, when New Mexico cast one ballot in favor of Pete McCloskey?"

"And how about when they were voting for the vice president and David Brinkley got a vote to prevent Agnew from winning unanimously? That was a cliffhanger."

"That's true," a TV executive said, "but it didn't have enough things like that. Frankly, gentlemen, we don't see the Republican National Convention as a weekly series."

"What are you sore at?" a Republican packager asked. "Is it because our spontaneous demonstrations ran three minutes overtime? We'll tighten it up next week. We'll make damn sure Gerry Ford sticks to the schedule."

"WE HAVE NO objections to the show technically," a TV executive said. "It was the slickest TV program ever put on the air. No one flubbed a line. Everyone stuck to the script. It was perfect."

"Too perfect," another TV vice president said. "There wasn't one dissenting voice, one bit of conflict, one slice of drama. And worst of all, you didn't even have any laughs."

"Now, wait a minute," a Republican man said. "We don't put on those kinds of shows. We're a family production company. Anyone could have watched the Republican National Convention show without fear of being offended."

"But nobody watched it!" a TV man screamed. " 'Learning Spanish at Home' got a higher rating than your show."

"YOU DON'T EVEN know what we've got planned for the series," the Republican said. "In the next instalment John Wayne loses his credentials, and the usher bars him from entering. It's only when he runs into Ronald Reagan at the door that he manages to get inside the hall.

"In the third instalment Henry Kissinger finds himself in the presidential box with a movie starlet whose name he doesn't know. And in the fourth episode . . ."

"We're sorry, gentlemen," the TV vice president said. "We're not picking up the option."

"I might have known it," a Republican packager said angrily, picking up his briefcase. "Any time someone brings a new idea to television, you guys throw it out the window. No wonder television is a vast wasteland."

Special Meeting On Open Space

The Marin City Community Services District will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center to consider approving an application for $52,000 in federal funds for an open space project.

The community services district is applying for the money from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to build a park on a recently acquired piece of land behind the sheriff's new substation, at the intersection of Drake Avenue and Park Circle.

According to services district secretary Lillian Lee, the total park project will cost $104,000.

Greenbrae Man Sued- $250,000

I-J Special Report

MARTINEZ — A 52-year-old chronic alcoholic has filed a $250,000 suit against William Mailliard Jr. of Greenbrae for injuries in a traffic accident last January.

Mailliard, of 11 Via La Cumbre, is the son of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

The suit was filed Friday in Contra Costa County Superior Court on behalf of Joe Vigil of San Pablo by his court-appointed guardian, his sister, Eliza V. Dominguez. The suit described Vigil as a chronic alcoholic.

The suit filed by his attorney, Paul Robbins of Oakland, also asks for medical costs, which Robbins said "run into the thoundsands."

The suit said a vehicle driven by Mailliard struck Vigil at about 4 a.m. last Jan. 2 on Highway 17 near the east end of the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. Vigil suffered two broken legs.

Mailliard, who was not cited by the California Highway Patrol, said Vigil was "standing in the middle of the highway" when he was struck. "He's damn lucky I was wide awake, otherwise he'd have been dead," Mailliard said of his last-second veer to avoid hitting Vigil head-on.

The 29-year-old attorney was eastbound on a duck-hunting trip when the accident happened.

USF Awarded $40,000 For Law Program

The University of San Francisco School of Law has received a $40,000 grant to establish a new criminal law program that will put law students in Marin County courtrooms and in San Quentin Prison.

The grant, from the Council on Legal Education for Professional Responsibility, will fund the program for two years.

Operated in conjunction with the Marin County Public Defender's Office and the prison, the program calls for the participation of law students in misdemeanor cases and the reviewing of cases of indigent inmates, all under the supervision of faculty.

Robert A. Smallman, municipal court presiding judge, said, "I look forward to giving my wholehearted support to this program, which gives law students the opportunity to participate actively in the judicial process. It is this type of program that will insure the law gradutaes of the future are better able to represent clients in the courtroom upon graduation."

Population Up By 1.8 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Census Bureau says U.S. population has increased by 1.8 million in the past year.

The July increase of 139,000 persons brought the population to about 208,837,000 or 0.9 per cent above July 1971.

Last month's increase, the Census Bureau reported Monday, was accounted for by a natural gain in population— excess of births over deaths—of 110,000 and immigration of 29,000.

Death Sentence In Bizarre Death Case

TAIPEI (UPI)—A man was sentenced to death Monday for hitting a 6-year-old boy with his car, placing the youth in the vehicle and taking a five-hour spin around the countryside until the victim died of his injuries.
